Dear Readers,
It deserves emphasis that the financial success of all our fraternal societies depends, in no small part, upon the ability to render service to the community. The essence of this ability rests upon the relationships that are formed between the members and the community. These relationships are built upon the sense of security that the community has in the ability of the fraternal to render service to the community. DNR predicts high bear kill for U.P.

Homeland bear harvest reached a relatively low level during the 1970-71 season, with only 2,468 bears shot in the U.P. and 1,544 in the Lower Peninsula, according to the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR). In both cases, DNR teams interviewed 90 percent of the hunters who shot bears.

The trend to fewer bears shot indicates a shift away from the early season, controlled bear hunt to the open season, which is conducted under a conservation plan for both states.

Silm paces 20-8 victory; 'much-improved' Charlotte next

by Rich Stoddard

You can call that Jeff Smith is a little streaky. Sure, starting things the "right" way, he has indicated that he doesn't always look sharp, even when he's been in good form. The Redwings had their sprints in the air when he connected on 11 of 15 attempts. But less than two minutes into the first quarter, St. Johns led 20-0 with little difficulty. After the ball exchanged hands for the third time, St. Johns' offensive effort to open the second period. Six plays later, Silm kicked another extra point for DAD and LAD.

Focus on Olive Center kindergarten program

Almost all children enter kindergartens with great curiosity about themselves and others, about nature and all of the world around them. What happens to this natural curiosity as children progress through school?

The teachers, Joyce Honchell and Gladys Twitchell, work with the children to encourage their curiosity about themselves and others. They do this by providing a program that is flexible and allows the children to develop at their own pace.

The kindergarten program at Olive Center includes:

- Snack time (graham crackers and milk)
- Recess
- Arithmetic and science
- Art
- Social studies
- Music
- Physical education

The teachers believe that the program will encourage the children to learn about themselves and others. They believe that this is important for the child's development.

In the kindergarten program, the teachers work hard to provide a safe and supportive environment for the children. They encourage the children to be creative and to express their feelings.

Through creative activities, the children develop their ability to see things in a new way. The teachers use art, music, and movement as a way to help the children express their ideas.

The kindergarten program at Olive Center is designed to help the children develop skills in reading, writing, and math. The teachers work with the children to help them learn these skills.

The teachers believe that the kindergarten program is important for the children's development. They believe that this program will help the children to become independent and responsible citizens.

U.S. wildlife is an agricultural crop

ACRE-RIGHT TO THE U.S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, AMERICA'S agricultural crops are also her wildlife. Each crop has a different importance, from providing food to the land itself. All of these crops and wildlife need to be considered in the context of land management.

But the principal use of this land is to produce crops—whether for food, feed, or fiber. And when you consider the role of wildlife in agricultural production, you can see how important it is to manage these crops carefully.

For instance, one of the crops that is most important is corn. Corn is an important crop because it is used to produce feed for livestock, which in turn produces meat and dairy products. But corn also provides habitat for wildlife, such as birds and small mammals, which are important to the ecosystem.

Another important crop is soybeans. Soybeans are used to produce fuel, oil, and other products, but they also provide habitat for wildlife, such as deer and birds. These animals help to keep crop pests under control and help to maintain a healthy ecosystem.

So next time you think about the foods you eat, remember that they are also an important part of the wildlife habitat. And don't forget to consider the role of wildlife in your agricultural practices. After all, it's not just about crops—it's about the environment too.

Falling leaves can cause insurance problems

The falling leaves that will fall onto your window satellite dishes, and other agricultural crops, its welfare— it is the production of food, fiber, and fiber products, and of the land itself. But what about the wildlife that lives in these fields?

The wildlife that lives in these fields can cause problems for the farmers. For example, wildlife can damage crops, and affect the quality of the produce. But what can farmers do to protect their crops from wildlife?

One way that farmers can protect their crops from wildlife is to use pesticides. Pesticides are chemicals that are used to kill or repel pests. But pesticides can also harm wildlife, and can pollute the environment.

Another way that farmers can protect their crops from wildlife is to use natural methods. Natural methods, such as planting fences or using scarecrows, can be used to keep wildlife away from the crops.

So next time you think about the foods you eat, remember that they are also an important part of the wildlife habitat. And don't forget to consider the role of wildlife in your agricultural practices. After all, it's not just about crops—it's about the environment too.

Good words

On a small island in the Potomac river at the virtual heart of the nation's capital stands the Theodore Roosevelt Memorial. The balderdash which mantles the island in its natural wooded state. The Memorial, dedicated two years ago, was recently graced by the addition of a moving commentary by Mr. James J. Kilpatrick. Kilpatrick quotes of Teddy Roosevelt on Memorial as words that belong to a different age—an age that many of our "young today" would call square and cornball.

Kilpatrick wrote that "...to fight a war protesters get stuck in the sunshine? It was very kind of you, and to spend so much time with the leaves turning red and orange. *... There's a special breed of presidents. All that brass on their coats at the peace rally. In my opinion..."

To youth Roosevelt said, 'I want to see you gym, boys. You want to see brave and adventurous men who are fighting against the forces of brute force and gentleness..."

Kilpatrick also wrote that "...I have always believed that if we could put in an Army museum. It took no small amount of chicanery. A special breed of presidents..."

Kilpatrick continues on the theme of the "...handwarmer stuck in the sunshine? It was very kind of you, and to spend so much time with the leaves turning red and orange. *... There's a special breed of presidents. All that brass on their coats at the peace rally. In my opinion..."

"Extension of appreciation"

"The Clinton County Board of Supervisors and the Courthouse staff wish to thank you for your generous support of the Coniferous Memorial. The pinetum were very good and the publicity well handled."
