Ten family doctors, specialists needed here

Ten central doctors recommended the establishment of a central Michigan medical center located today from the statistical and research departments of the Michigan Medical Society. The data show that Michigan's 82,000 family doctors and 18,000 central Michigan medical specialists are unable to attract qualified medical students to their profession.

The data from the 3,330 general practitioners showed that only 1,400 of these doctors now receive any training at all. Of those doctors who are trained, only 300 are scheduled to graduate this fall, according to the city civic and the St Johns resident feels now.

With the grant money comes...

An excerpt from the Revenue Sharing Advisory Service, Inc, an independent consultant firm, explaining the pitfalls of federal grant programs.

The Federal government funds are believed to be distributed in December. We feel the following is a fitting commentary on the problems of unwise and expensive federal grant programs.

With the usual Federal grant requirement that states and localities match Federal funds, state and local budgetary priorities have become distorted in the process of "chasing federal bucks."

Thus: these units find themselves spending extravagantly in some areas, while starving in others. Mayor Uman of Seattle told the Senate Finance Committee, "Our precinct stations built in the 19th century have so much insurance will pay for his.

Legislature, it will be some time at least, annual cost of over $2.6 million - just to meet these men all the newest radio equipment made, but we deserve a pat on the back."

A private consulting firm has recently reported about 25 per cent of the money already spent on "Health Care" in Detroit is wasted.

The money is being spent on a variety of useless health care programs. This is an example of the many programs misdirected because of lack of information on the proper use of federal funds.

We feel that the most important thing to remember is that the money is being spent on programs that are not helping to improve the health of the citizens of Detroit.

Turkey organic soils man visits Clinton

Turkey has made a public appeal for the organic soils, according to a report in the Clinton County News. Turkey, a community in the south-central part of the state, has a large number of organic soils, which are known for their rich, fertile characteristics.

Turkey, a member of the County Conservation Board, said that the organic soils are important for agriculture and can be used to improve crop yields. Turkey also said that the organic soils can help to reduce soil erosion and improve water quality.

Turkey said that the organic soils are not only important for agriculture, but they are also important for the environment. Turkey said that the organic soils can help to reduce greenhouse gas emissions and improve air quality.

Turkey also said that the organic soils are not only important for Turkey, but they are also important for the state of Michigan. Turkey said that the organic soils can help to boost Michigan's economy and improve the quality of life for Michigan residents.

Deer hunters this fall in Michigan's Lower Peninsula can expect another good season!

According to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, the deer hunting quota for the Lower Peninsula has been set at 120,000, the same as last year. This is expected to result in a similar number of deer being taken in the region.

The DNR is encouraging hunters to follow the rules and regulations to ensure a successful and safe hunting season. They emphasize the importance of maintaining a balance between hunting and the needs of the deer population.

The season will run from October 15 to December 19, with specific days and times for different counties and regions. Hunters are reminded to obtain their permits and licenses before heading out to the field.

In the meantime, the DNR is reminding hunters to stay aware of their surroundings and to be cautious when hunting in areas near residential areas or in areas where there may be other hunters.

Check the DNR website for the most up-to-date information on the hunting season and regulations. Happy hunting!
