Lutheran Church commemorates centennial

The Rev. Dr. H. Harry Brinza of Trinity Lutheran Church, Jackson, Michigan, will deliver the Centennial address at St. John's Lutheran Church at 7 p.m. Nov. 18.

On the evening of Nov. 18, 1869, 23 families of German and other countries arrived in St. Johns, Michigan, to found a new community. Six years earlier, on Nov. 14, 1863, six other families had settled in the area.

J. H. Witte.

The presence of these families in the St. Johns area by the Muscular Association of America is a historical fact.

Mrs. Harter Distrophy Chairman

Mrs. Mary Harter was named chairman of the centennial committee for the St. Johns area by the Muscular Association of America.

The committee's efforts are centered on the planning of a centennial celebration to be held on Nov. 18, 1969, in St. Johns.

A systematic fiscal, administrative, and service program is under way, with the goal of raising $10,000 for the centennial fund.

The church was reorganized to St. John's Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod in 1969, the building was renovated, a parsonage purchased, and proposals for building a new church were sent to the headquarters of the church in St. Louis.

The church is centered on the town square, and the pastor is Rev. Eric Cash, who will be installed in 1942.

The church has been in operation since 1869, and has been attended by many members of the community.

The centennial celebration will include a variety of activities, such as a parade, a goodwill dinner, and a concert.

The centennial committee is seeking donations of $5,000 for the building fund.

Blood goes further

When there is a disaster, one of the first needs is planes to transport the injured. Disaster victims are not the only ones who need blood. We are all in the same boat, and blood goes further than we realize. It is not just in hospitals or blood banks that blood is used. Blood is used in medical emergencies, for transportation of goods and people, and even for military purposes. Blood is a resource that we should all take advantage of.

The seats of The Reader's Digest contain a way to relieve the blood shortage, which has become a dangerous national problem. The article describes "component therapy" which involves separating and donating components, and giving each patient only the components they need. By 1975, the U.S. will have a blood shortage, and the transportation industry must build ahead.

Blood shortage: A crisis that occurs when the demand for blood exceeds the supply.

Component therapy: A medical practice that involves separating and donating components of blood, such as blood cells, plasma, and platelets, to patients who need only specific components.

Transportation industry: A sector that deals with the movement of goods and people from one place to another.
A few weeks ago, I presented a letter on the Clinton County News; in that letter, I mentioned the history of the farm that was established in 1857 at the home of James Swegles, Jr., on the outskirts of what is now St. Johns. I showed how the farm had evolved and how its history had shaped the development of the community.

The farm was named after James Swegles, Jr., who was the founder of the city of St. Johns. It was known as the "old farm" and was one of the largest and most productive farms in the area. The farm had been in the family for several generations and had been passed down from one Swegles family member to another.

Many of the families who lived in the area were descendants of the original settlers, and the farm was a symbol of their heritage and history. It was a place where they could come together and share their stories and traditions.

In recent years, the farm has been preserved and restored, and it is now a popular attraction for visitors to the area. It is a reminder of the rich history and culture of Clinton County and the region.
