Thanksgiving turkeys plentiful and plump

Borrowing a car for a joyride isn't the biggest crime in the world. But it's a start.

Westphalia
By Mrs. Joseph Personal Correspondent
Rte 1, Westphalia—P.O. 31037

A Thanksgiving dinner of plenty cooked and enjoyed by all, according to the tally of the annual Harvest dinner, offered for an abundance of Thanksgiving birds likely to appear on the table this year. Total production remains down but about 50,000 birds are expected to be available for the Thanksgiving market. This year's production, down about 50,000 birds, is expected to be about 1,000,000, far below the 2,000,000 birds produced in 1961 and 1962. However, the reduced number of turkeys available for Thanksgiving will likely result in higher prices. Demand for turkeys has increased in recent years due to the growing popularity of Thanksgiving as a family holiday. The demand for turkeys is expected to remain high in the coming years, despite the reduced production. This year, the market is expected to see a shortage of turkeys, leading to higher prices and increased demand for alternative meats.

Tips on buying your Thanksgiving turkey

By ALAN D. WELCH
Director, Home Economics

Just as nutrition is "Thanksgiving" to those on a diet, a flood of thoughts comes rushing in.

Grundren says previous convictions, younger parents with smaller incomes and the desire for more food to go around have made turkeys an even more popular item on the family table.

For at least 1/2 of your day, it's a nuisance.

Nearly each day of the year there are messages, especially in the summer months, where the phone rings and we have to immediately respond to a request for information or a situation that requires immediate attention. It can be frustrating and stressful.

For the most part, it's a nuisance. We just have to bear with it and keep our cool.

But there's a silver lining—your phone rings less than it used to, and you aren't bothered as much by some of the more annoying calls. Let's hope it continues.

The Clinton County News is a great resource for keeping up-to-date on local events and news. We encourage you to continue to support local media organizations and stay informed.
