Roseville's gain is St John's loss

After serving St John as city manager for 6 years, Harvey Weatherwax will be leaving to accept a new position in Roseville. This larger community (approximate population is 62,000) and will carry more responsibilities and its share of headaches as well.

We wish Harvey the best in his new position and, at the same time, commend him for his time-performance in St John. The selection of the new city manager is a hard task, especially in a city that has been accustomed to high finance. It is well known that city managers in this area have to be able to handle the city's financial situation and be able to provide the city with new storm sewers. We wish Harvey good luck and apologize if any errors or omissions were included.

We wish to add that the following story was a true story about Harvey Weatherwax's time in St John. Harvey was a hard worker and always made sure that the community was well taken care of.

Women in the general election have to do some planning to make sure that they don't get caught without the proper identification when they go to the polls. One of the things that most women don't know is that they have to have a picture identification in order to vote. This is not something that can be done on the spot and it is important to make sure that you have the proper identification before you go to the polls.

The U.S. Census Bureau has estimated that there are 32,000 women who are not registered to vote in this country. It is important to make sure that you are registered to vote and have the proper identification before you go to the polls.

Many Michigan corn farmers were hard hit this year by a late, cold, spring planting, followed by a mid-season drought standing on the plots and ending off with a late freeze in the fall. The Michigan State Agricultural and Conservation Committees conducted an extensive study of the 1974 corn crop.

Marketing the 1974 corn crop

With corn marketed at harvest time, the crop is also sold. The team had to sell their 1974 crop at harvest, before it was damaged by the late, cold weather. The Michigan State Agricultural and Conservation Committees conducted an extensive study of the 1974 corn crop.
