Foreign students, Clintonians may join in Christmas program

ST. JOHNS — Clinton County Extension Service is participating in the Adventist Christmas Computer Center. This center, which will serve as a host family for American families and foreign students, will be an interesting experience for all who visit.

The center will feature local families living in the community in family-style fashion. The families will be matched with the students according to their interests and personalities.

The students will have the opportunity to participate in American family life, such as attending church, shopping, and attending community events.

In return, the American families will have the opportunity to share their American culture with the students. This will be a valuable experience for both the students and the American families.

The Adventist Christmas Computer Center is a wonderful opportunity for Clintonians and foreign students to experience and share American culture.

Newsworthy

ST. JOHNS — Ernie Becker had a trip to remember when he won the St. Johns Football Trophy.

Becker, a St. Johns High School graduate, was named the winner of the trophy, which is awarded to the most valuable player of the Central Conference championship game.

The trophy was presented to Becker by the football team's coach, who commended him for his outstanding performance during the game.

Becker's teammates and coaches were also impressed with his performance, and the trophy was a well-deserved recognition of his talent and hard work.

Becker expressed his gratitude for the award and stated that he would continue to work hard to improve his skills and help his team.

This is a proud moment for Becker and his family, and it is a testament to the dedication and hard work that goes into being a successful football player.

Bank profits increase 13% at CNB

ST. JOHNS — barrel tapping, members of the Clinton County Bankers Association held their annual meeting.

The meeting was held at the Centralia Bank and Trust, and members discussed the state of the banking industry and the challenges faced by banks.

According to the latest reports, the bank's profits have increased by 13% over the past year, which is a significant achievement.

The increase is attributed to the bank's strong management and the efforts of its employees.

The association also discussed the importance of community involvement and the role that banks play in supporting local businesses.

Janet Barnes receives scholarship
The annual North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University Scholarship Fund was established in 1940 to provide financial aid to students who wish to attend North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University. The fund is administered by the North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University Foundation, a private, nonprofit corporation.

To qualify for the scholarship, a student must be a resident of North Carolina and must be enrolled in a degree program at North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University. The student must have a minimum grade point average of 2.5 on a 4.0 scale and must demonstrate financial need.

The scholarship is awarded on a competitive basis to students who meet the eligibility requirements and who demonstrate financial need. The scholarship provides financial assistance for tuition, fees, books, and living expenses.

At St. Johns
Swimming is added as fulltime sport
The Aquabirds, St. Johns' swimming team, will compete in the state swimming meet on Saturday, Nov. 27, at the St. Johns High School pool. The team consists of nine swimmers and one diver.

The team is coached by Coach Jim Fedewa, a former member of the St. Johns swimming team. Coach Fedewa is also a member of the local Red Wing swim team and has been a swimming coach for over 10 years.

The team will compete in various events including the 200 yard free relay, 400 yard medley relay, 200 yard individual medley, and 100 yard butterfly. The team is expected to have strong performances in all events.

The team's success is attributed to the hard work and dedication of the swimmers and divers. The team practices six days a week and spends up to four hours a day in the pool. The team is also coached by Coach Bob Phipps, a former member of the St. Johns swimming team.

The team's success is also attributed to the support of the community. The community has provided financial support and has been very encouraging to the team.

The team's goal is to win the state swimming meet and to qualify for the national swimming meet. The team is working hard to achieve these goals and is expected to perform well in the state swimming meet.

Their coach, Tom Bartol, felt they looked good at times but at the same time felt they looked better.

Their three starting players off of last year, shooting 29 per cent from the floor and 57 per cent from the free throw line, were the conference title for the third year in a row, with a 13-1 record.

MIDLAND — Jim Whitford Jr., former Rocket basketball standout and present Tri-Central Athletic Conference Commissioner, will serve as the emcee for the Midland-Bullion-Middleton Tri-City Christmas Festival on Saturday night.

Whitford, who graduated from Tri-Central in 1964, spent four years in the Navy before entering college. He played basketball and football at Central Michigan University, where he was a member of the Mid-Michigan Conference.

Whitford has been instrumental in promoting the Tri-Central Athletic Conference for the past 20 years, and he says it has been a great experience.

"The conference has been great for me," Whitford said. "I've been able to meet a lot of great people and have had a lot of fun. It's been a great experience."
The Tradition of Freedom...Our Cherished Legacy

Freedom is a tradition in our great nation. From the earliest beginnings, the courage of our Pilgrim forefathers made it possible. The will and faith of our people have kept it alive. It will remain ours with vigilance and dedication. So the present and the future are inexorably woven together. Through freedom. Today we give thanks for this precious legacy. We remember and cherish our tradition. We pray that freedom will become the inalienable right of all nations.
Panthers plan on running

By TIM YOUNKMAN

DeWitt - The DeWitt Panthers will be back this year to accomplish what no other team has been able to do in the past three years. That is defeat Peoria in the championship game of the state tournament.

With the selection of the top six high school players in the state, the DeWitt Panthers have earned their place in the Class A state tournament this year.

The selection of six seniors including Dan Davis, Ron Wilcox, Doug Klaver, Bill Mullikin, Mark Simon, and Randy Pitts to the all-star team is a sign of the talent that the DeWitt team possesses.

The team's consistency throughout the year has been a key factor in their success. The Panthers have lost only one game all season and have averaged over 90 points per game.

The team's defensive play has been another major strength. The Panthers have held opponents to an average of under 50 points per game, allowing them to run a high-scoring offense.

Doug Klaver, a 6-2 senior center, has been a force in the post with his scoring and rebounding. He has been able to outplay his opponents and has been a key factor in the team's success.

The Panthers have the depth to go deep in the tournament. They have a strong bench with players who can contribute off the bench.

The team's chemistry and teamwork have been essential to their success. Each player knows their role and works well with the rest of the team.

The Panthers have the experience and talent to challenge for a state championship. They have the desire and determination to bring home the gold ball.

The team's coaching is a big factor as well. Coach Frank Deak has done an excellent job of preparing the team for the tournament and has instilled a strong work ethic in the players.

The DeWitt Panthers are looking forward to the challenge of the state tournament and are ready to prove themselves on the big stage.

Central National Bank Present... No. 3 In A Series

"KNOW YOUR COMMUNITY"

Industrial Phosphating Co.

Industrial Phosphating Co. . . . Steady Growth for 9 Years

Original headquarters were in an old 30x40 foot barn. That was back in December of 1962. Today, a modern plant stands in the place of that humble abode. The company has grown to be the dominant force in the metal finishing industry in the area. "The average coating cycle takes 45 minutes to complete. The length of each cycle, however, depends on the job specification and the metal parts being treated."

Since the barrels are loaded, the line operator merely sets the appropriate knob and the line takes over. The tumbling barrels are programmed to follow a definite and exact processing sequence, allowing no room for human error. Through the use of this line, Industrial Phosphating is able to provide not only a quality coating but the promise of continued good results through controlled operations.

Industrial Phosphating's automatic line is programmed at this time, to meet the following customer requirements:

1. A black, heavy zinc conversion coating is applied. A cold water and subsequent hot water rinse are used following the blackening process and preceding the heavy zinc phosphate process. A water soluble oil is applied in Stage 16 of this line if desired by the customer to provide the ultimate in corrosion resistance.

2. A heavy zinc phosphate coating is applied. A cold water rinse follows before the parts are conveyed into a rack for final processing.

3. A heavy zinc phosphate coating is dark grey in color and offers excellent corrosion resistance.

Ed Spaulding, founder and president of Industrial Phosphating, Central National's Harold Wellman, president of Central National, take a tour of the plant prior to a tour of the plant. They are shown in the recently expanded and remodeled offices and plant located at 6055 Krepps Road.

One of the cherished customs for this nation is Thanksgiving, which has become a symbol of the treasured American institution. Thanksgiving offers firm reassurance of the continuity and stability of all that is good and wholesome in U.S. life today. As families and friends gather to share the repast of Thanksgiving, they should take the time to recall the purposes of that first day of thanks participated in by a handful of Pilgrims centuries ago.

Traffic offenders beware

Police agencies that have made a concerted drive against intoxicated motorists are showing good results in bringing to court these most minor traffic of offenders. The Traffic Safety Association of Detroit, as an example, says that drunk driving arrests in Detroit for the first nine months of this year were 77 per cent higher than the same period of 1935. A recent drive against intoxicated motorists.

Unicameralism dealt big blow

By: WILLIAM S. BALLINGER

In 1935, the people of Nebraska made a decision to change their legislative structure from a bicameral system to a unicameral system. The unicameral system, which consists of a single legislative chamber, has been in effect ever since. This decision was made through a state-wide referendum and was approved by a majority of the voters.

The unicameral system has been praised for its efficiency and effectiveness. It allows for faster legislative action and reduces the possibility of debate and filibustering.

However, the unicameral system has also been criticized. Some argue that it is too powerful and that the single legislative chamber is too far removed from the people. Others believe that it is too weak and that the unicameral system is unable to adequately represent the interests of the people.

In Nebraska, the unicameral system has been in place for over 80 years. It has been successful in many ways, but there are also challenges and criticisms.

New level in glass project

BY JACEY AYLESWORTH

The Country Center for Rural Management, with headquarters in La Crosse, recently announced that it would begin a new program to provide leadership training for rural communities.

The program, known as the "New Level in Glass Project," will be directed by Dr. Jace Ayleworth, who served as the director of the Center for Rural Management for 10 years.

Dr. Ayleworth stressed that the new program would build on the success of the Center's previous leadership training initiatives.

The VICTOR 4 Club is pleased to announce that its 2021 spring meeting will be held on Saturday, April 17, at 7:30 PM in the main hall of the local community center.

The meeting will feature a keynote address by Dr. Ayleworth, who will discuss the importance of leadership in rural communities.

The meeting is open to all members and guests, and registration is required. To register, please contact the club at (507) 555-1212.

The KREWE 4-H Club members held their fall achievement meeting and handed out several awards to their members. The meeting was held on Tuesday, October 18, at 7:00 PM in the local community center.

At the meeting, several club members were recognized for their outstanding contributions to the community.

Aylsworth selected Trails-a-Way, Circulation Office, for their 75th birthday celebration. The meeting will be held on Saturday, September 25, at 7:00 PM in the local community center.

By REV. HUGH BANNINGA

For most Americans, of course, the holiday season begins the day after Thanksgiving. But for most Jews, who celebrate Hanukkah in December, the season begins on the day after Thanksgiving. This year, the two holidays overlap, and for many people, the question of which holiday to celebrate first arises.

For some, the answer is clear: Hanukkah is the more important holiday. For others, the answer is not so clear. But for me, the answer is simple: Hanukkah is the more important holiday.

Hanukkah is a celebration of light, of hope, and of courage. It is a time when we remember the power of faith and the importance of perseverance. It is a time when we remember that even in the darkest of times, there is always a glimmer of hope.

And that, my friends, is why Hanukkah is the more important holiday. So let us celebrate Hanukkah with joy, with light, and with hope. Happy Hanukkah to all!

Chicago hosts international show

From the Chicago Today News

Chicago is playing host to the 72nd annual World's Greatest Livestock Show, the most prestigious livestock show that the city has ever hosted. The event is expected to attract over 70,000 people to the city's Soldier Field and McCormick Place.

The event features a variety of livestock, including beef cattle, dairy cattle, hogs, sheep, and chickens. In total, over 10,000 animals are expected to be on display.

The show is open to the public from November 24th to 27th, and admission tickets can be purchased online or at the door.

The International Livestock Show is a world-renowned event that aims to bring together livestock producers, buyers, and sellers from around the world. The event features a variety of competitions and events, including beef cattle judging, dairy cattle judging, sheep judging, and poultry judging.

The International Livestock Show is an important event for the livestock industry, and it is a great opportunity for people to learn more about the different types of livestock and the different ways in which they are raised.

The show is also a great opportunity for people to see some of the latest innovations in the livestock industry, such as new feed technologies and new breeding programs.

Overall, the International Livestock Show is a fantastic event that is sure to be a highlight of the holiday season.

A review of the most important developments in the States and provinces.

This has been an important season for snowmobile legislation, one reason is that every state legislature and provincial parliament has been in session. And it is at these levels most snowmobile legislative activity is being conducted.

Another reason is that public (and industrial) pressure has been growing for better regulation of snowmobiling in particular and recreational vehicles in general.

There are some, particularly among snowmobilers, who look upon any regulation of snowmobiling as something to be avoided at all cost. However, most within the industry recognize the importance of developing laws and regulations which not only protect non-snowmobiling related areas are being discussed or introduced. This is the U.S. NCAA's current major law legislation which has been proposed during the current session of the legislature.

Pennsylvania: Pennsylvania currently has before its legislature a comprehensive snowmobile bill which would regulate snowmobiles, and is patterned after the laws of Minnesota, Wisconsin and New York. Snowmobile industry spokesmen consider this to be a good bill which will give the state a comprehensive law in the state. Under the bill, however, snowmobiles would be regulated by the Department of Transportation, while snowmobile regulation are generally preferred by most industry sources to come under the authority of the conservation department or Department of Natural Resources. However, the Conservation Department has recently undergone some restrictions and at this time it is felt it would not be advantageous to put the snowmobile law under this department.

New York: A fine snowmobile law was passed in New York last session, according to ISIA, it is patterned after the law in Minnesota, which is considered to be the model snowmobile legislation. ISIA said in its recent report that "there will be no need to add any snowmobile legislation this year." However, some sources in New York have expressed concern because of the negative feelings of some top state officials toward snowmobiling, possibly some unfavorable legislative proposals as a result. However, at this time ISIA considers this to be a good snowmobile legislation.

Michigan: Michigan is considered to have a good snowmobile law, which is, in general grading at the present time. A bill which would have upgraded the law has been introduced this session, but did not pass and has been re-introduced in the current legislative session. The bill does not change the present law too much, at this time it is felt it would not be advantageous to put the snowmobile law under this department.

Iowa: Iowa has a bill in the legislative session last year did not pass, and was scheduled to be introduced again this session, this is much like that of Minnesota, except that the governing agency for snowmobiles in Iowa would be the Department of Transportation rather than the Conservation Department, which is considered to be the legislative session.

South Dakota: A bill in the legislative session last year did not pass, and was scheduled to be introduced again this season, the latter is much like that of Minnesota, except that the governing agency for snowmobiles in South Dakota would be the Department of Transportation rather than the Conservation Department.

Colorado: This state considered to have a good bill, which has been patterned after the Minnesota Other bills which might be considered to have a snowmobile bill which has been proposed during the current session of the legislature.

WYOMING: Wyoming has a good bill similar to that of Colorado, and legislators are in the process of reviewing the current session, no bills have been proposed during the current session of the legislature. The state Conservation Commission has made the proposal to upgrade the law, the state considers this commission's proposal to be good. The Department of Public Safety seems to be against any change in the law, according to ISIA, particularly in that Wyoming, which is considered to be the model snowmobile legislation.

Pennsylvania: Pennsylvania is currently has before its legislature a comprehensive snowmobile bill which would regulate snowmobiles, and is patterned after the laws of Minnesota, Wisconsin and New York. Snowmobile industry spokesmen consider this to be a good bill which will give the state a comprehensive law in the state. Under the bill, however, snowmobiles would be regulated by the Department of Transportation, while snowmobile regulation are generally preferred by most industry sources to come under the authority of the conservation department or Department of Natural Resources. However, the Conservation Department has recently undergone some restrictions and at this time it is felt it would not be advantageous to put the snowmobile law under this department.

Wisconsin: Wisconsin is considered to have a good snowmobile law, which is, in general grading at the present time. A law which was passed at the end of the legislative session last year did not pass, and was scheduled to be introduced again this session, the latter is much like that of Minnesota, except that the governing agency for snowmobiles in Wyoming would be the Department of Transportation rather than the Conservation Department.

South Dakota: A bill in the legislative session last year did not pass, and was scheduled to be introduced again this season, this is much like that of Minnesota, except that the governing agency for snowmobiles in South Dakota would be the Department of Transportation rather than the Conservation Department.

Colorado: This state considered to have a good bill, which has been patterned after the Minnesota Other bills which might be considered to have a snowmobile bill which has been proposed during the current session of the legislature.

Snowmobile fashions for 1972

Pity the poor snowmobile clothing designer! He makes a suit that's as functional as a pull-chain John and the public cries, "Give us some style and color like those fancy skiers have!" He makes a suit to rival the Billy-Kidd—Jean-Claude-Killy—Robert-Redford crowd, and the cry goes up, "Give us something that will keep us warm and not rip apart at the seams!"

But pity the snowmobile clothing designer no more. He's made it, the best of both worlds, for the buyer of '72. Practical, colorful, stylish, warm and flexible snowmobile wear for next season will send skiers from Vail, Colorado, to Mt. Snow, Vermont, tearing off to their local snowmobile dealers in everything from beat-up Volkswagen buses to brand new yellow Porsche.

The snowmobile clothing designer for '72, we must approvingly admit, has been listening to Germaine Greer, too. Refrigi-Wear has turned out a new "Lib* suit which gives the ladies a break with two nylon zippers on the outside which continue around to the rear. Ski-Doo Sports also offers a drop-seat on some of their models.

All this, and a warm body is in store for '72. If you had trouble with chilly winds whipping under the jacket of your two-piece suit last season, try on some of the new bib-style high waist pants. And don't give a second thought to the weather when you check out those flare legs. Several companies featuring over-the-boot pants this year have a snug-fitting inner lining to keep out the frost.

The snowmobile clothing designer for '72, we must approvingly admit, has been listening to Germaine Greer, too. Refrigi-Wear has turned out a new "Lib* suit which gives the ladies a break with two nylon zippers on the outside which continue around to the rear. Ski-Doo Sports also offers a drop-seat on some of their models.

Snowmobile popularity has cut across all walks of life, regardless of income, family circumstances or geography. Even folks who live in warm climates buy snowmobiles and trailer them into snow country during the winter. Snowmobiles come for every size pocket-book and person and for folks of all walks of life. Their ever-increasing versatility is shown above. The 1972 line of Ski-Doo snowmobiles numbers 33 models, 10 of which are shown here.

Winter sportsmen should know of broken bones

By JEAN PAYEN
Michigan Snowmobiler

A broken bone itself doesn't hurt as much as the pain caused by the trauma of the accident. Broken bones are characterized by intense pain, swelling, and deformity. The pain is usually very sharp, as the skin and muscles contract to guard the injured area. A definite swelling around the bone with myriad nerve endings and blood vessels from which the pain originates.

When a bone is broken, the covering is usually torn or stretched, causing searing, sharp pain.

Whenever there is a spill or a mishap the first question that rushes to mind is, "Are there any bones broken?" Whether you're on an isolated trail, on a race track in full view of hundreds, or on your own back steps, it pays to know the clues and symptoms for which to look in detecting a broken bone.

Look first right here that "fixing" a broken bone is strictly for the medics, but there are things that can be done to detect a broken bone and thus make the injured person more comfortable until professional help can be reached.

Almost any twisting or wrenching injury, fall or blow can result in a broken bone.

HOW TO TELL: A SUDDEN PAIN AND SWELLING OF THE INJURED REGION is a good indication of a fracture. The pain is usually very sharp, as compared to the dull ache of a sprain or bruise.

A definite swelling around the bone is a sure result from damaged muscle and ligaments.

All such injuries should be treated as if fractured until x-rays can be taken.

A DEFINITE LIMITATION OF MOTION. Broken bones in the extremities are much easier to detect than such fractures as a broken rib or collar bones. A broken rib often makes breathing difficult and painful, as chest muscles contract to guard the broken motion.

A snapping sensation is very likely to indicate a fracture, though not always. Sometimes a sprained joint or torn ligament may cause the same sort of distressing pain.

SHORTENING OR DEFORMATION OF A LIMB strongly suggests more than a "little bump" especially where a long bone is injured. The adjacent muscles often contract, pulling the bone fragments out of their normal alignment, causing muscle cramps as well as deeper severe pain. Controversially the ends of bone even overlap.

Any grazing feeling nearly always means a break, as does false motion at a joint.

WHAT TO DO: There are two first-aid measures that can be safely taken, no matter where you are.

First, try to splint or immobilize the fracture to help minimize the pain and prevent further injury.

This can be done with materials, on hand, straight tree limbs or branches will do for legs, using someone's long coat or scarf. In dire emergencies strips or under garments can be torn into strips. An arm should be gabled well and strapped securely to the victim's chest, or put in a sling.

Strips of cloth, if available wrapped firmly around the chest before splinting a rib fracture, is extremely careful with this one.

Order any circumstances it is advisable to pull or "traction" a broken bone back to normal, unless you have medical training.

Second, try to combat shock, which very often follows. Keep the injured person quiet, warm and comfortable until professional help can be reached.

KEEP FLUIDS TO A MINIMUM, unless you have medical training.

If you suspect any injury to the back or neck, get medical aid BEFORE moving the victim for the very serious damage can be done AFTER an accident, BEST OF ALL be careful.

Ski-Doo drops racing plans

RICHMOND, Mich. - On the heels of Bombardier's announcement in Minneapolis that their factory team would pull out of racing this year, Heath Recreational Sales in Richmond announced a similar move.

Heath is the Ski-Doo distributor for Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee.

"The time has come in Ski-Doo racing," Heath vice-president Bert Swanson said, "for us to return racing to the level at which it belongs. This is the one who gave snowmobile racing its beginning and he is also the one who suffered most by competing against well-financed factory and distributor teams."

"The 1972 re-designed Blizzard racing machine will still be available from us," Swanson continued, "and awarded to those serious individual racers who deserve them based on their past performances and also upon their racing intentions in the future."

"We will also continue to maintain a racing co-ordinator at Heath for those Ski-Doo racers who desire aid during the racing season."

Swanson said money previously spent in the racing field could now be re-directed into areas of snowmobiling that need to be improved: ecology studies, safety programs and public relations aid to those interested in promoting the sport.

Legislation Snowballs

The essence of the proposed bill is that it would cover all recreational vehicles, then work up to a committee which would work with the Department of Natural Resources to establish proper regulations concerning each individual sport.

In Canada, a brief rundown of the primary snowmobile problems looks like this:

MONTANA: This province has one of the best snowmobile laws in Canada. A law to upgrade the noise law is currently under consideration.

ONTARIO: Snowmobilers in Ontario have shown a reluctance toward any snowmobile regulation. This has hurt legislative efforts in the province. The existing law primarily covers what snowmobilers can and cannot do regarding highway operation. The ISIA does not consider this to be good enough, and work and cooperation is needed and being sought in Ontario.

QUEBEC: The only snowmobile legislation in the province is attached to the Motor Vehicle Code, and most snowmobile regulation is concerned with operation on roads. There will be a law passed this year in Quebec, which is now being readied. At this time, the ISIA indicated the law is difficult to assess because the law-making process in Quebec follows a pattern which does not clarify a bill until it is well along in the legislative process.

ALBERTA: Along with Manitoba, Alberta is considered to have a most comprehensive of the provincial laws in Canada. Legislation and regulation are considered to be the best in Canada.

Several trends in snowmobile legislation in the past few months have been noted by the ISIA. Among those trends are:

ENVIRONMENT: This is becoming an issue in nearly all legislatures and land management agencies.

NOISE: This is the biggest single problem which seems to appear at all levels. A new snowmobile noise level standard which has been set by the Society of Automotive Engineers (SAE) and which is going into effect is expected to cure many of these problems.

TREASURY: This has become a major issue in most states and provinces for snowmobiles and other recreational vehicles.

The major trend is to give exemption to landowners for any liability toward operators of recreational vehicles, except where payment has been made for use of the land.

EDUCATION: SAFETY: This has become of great interest, and several legislatures are implementing a safety training program, and this is being used as a guideline in many states.

ROAD RIGHT-OF-WAYS: Most provinces and states have good regulations to keep snowmobiles off roads and highways except to cross them and use the ditches. State police, however, have in most cases indicated they would like to see all snowmobiles turned from roads and right of ways, or to require drivers' licenses if they are used.

ACCIDENT REPORTS: Reporting programs for accidents are being implemented in several states and provinces, and probably will become standard.

HORSEPOWER: Limitations in horsepower have been proposed by several states. Horsepower restriction is a topic of concern among legislators in nearly all areas.

The major issue in most states and provinces for snowmobiles and other recreational vehicles is the primary snowmobile provision is outlined as follows:

MANITOBA: This province has one of the best snowmobile laws in Canada. A law to upgrade the noise law is currently under consideration.

ONTARIO: Snowmobilers in Ontario have shown a reluctance toward any snowmobile regulation. This has hurt legislative efforts in the province. RESORT FREQUENTLY rest machines and operate trails for a fee. All have similar insurance problems. For that reason let's discuss both in this article.

A recreational activity that has emerged on the recreational scene like the snowmobile. The snowmobile is by far the largest selling winter vehicle. It offers more thrill because of the high speeds, its maneuverability and its ability to get into inaccessible areas.

DUE TO SOME OF the insurance problems encountered by individuals or organizations involved in the operation or sale of these machines, First, let's discuss the dealer.

1. The stock or merchandise must be insured to protect the investment of the dealer. The dealer that holds stock or merchandise for sale and demonstration does not need to have as broad of coverage as is normally afforded to an individual who is using a snowmobile.

2. Customer Goods. Any dealer that operates a repair facility should have customers' good coverage to protect them in the event of damage to or loss of customer's merchandise while in his possession for repairs, etc. This amount will usually be determined by adding up the amount of machines that he stocks and the value of the stock at any one time. The main concern will be theft, vandalism, and fire. Again, the better the building in which the machines are stored, the lower the rate the dealer will obtain.

3. General Liability. Here is the area that poses the biggest problem. A dealer, of course, needs owners, landlords and tenants coverage for the place where his business is conducted. In addition to the GLAT coverage, he needs coverage while machines are:

A. being demonstrated.
B. produced for promotion for services he performs for his customers that could result in later claims for faulty workmanship.
C. coverage for a race team. If he sponsors a race team he must have liability coverage to protect his drivers. It is involved in an accident injuring spectators at a race. Frequently that coverage is provided by the driving team. It is racing in events sanctioned by a national snowmobile association. An additional coverage that should be carried, if a dealer has a racing team is accident coverage for the drivers. He can obtain and should have:
D. accidental death, accident, medical and weekly disability coverage for the drivers while operating machines in races or rains.

THE RENTAL AREA is one of the very different areas for providing coverage because usually rent machines do not own a machine and lack experience in operating machines. Coverage can be written to include or exclude liability for injury to the lessee while operating a machine. Generally the assumption of liability coverage is no problem. This is due to the possibility of another person resulting from the operation of the machine by the lessee protecting his interest of the lessor or the owner. Further, a lessee unit in which he has coverage for passengers who may be injured while on the lessee. This, of course, presents further difficulty. The owner of the machine should have physical damage coverage on the machines, and a deductible is suggested in order to take care of the small claims which are expensive to a company. A dealer who has a good person for maintaining the machines is able to make minor repairs and thus effect a savings in their insurance costs if they will have at least a $500 or $1000 deductible.

Accident coverage for persons riding on machines is suggested. Accident coverage that automatically provides coverage for injury to people while riding on the machine, will make the liability coverage a little easier to obtain and will frequently prevent liability suits in case of injury if the medical expenses are automatically paid following an injury.

ANY PERSON RENTING MACHINE should have a hold harmless agreement to be signed by the person renting the machine. The hold harmless agreement should make him responsible for the machine while it is in his possession while he is renting the machine. The owner of the machine should be in an agreement to provide the insurance if a dealer has a good person for maintaining the machines because it is an accident that is the fault of the lessor and not usually to the owner, but an accident that is the result of a poorly maintained machine will usually end up in a claim against the lessor.

Insurance is vital.

Usually fire, extended coverage, vandalism and malicious mischief and theft is in order. A deductible is advisable in order to keep the cost down.

If a dealer makes sure that the machines are stored in as good a building as possible, that has a low fire risk, in order to keep down the cost of the above insurance coverages. The deductible is suggested to further reduce the cost. The dealer should be primarily concerned with the major loss and not small individual losses. Frequency of small losses will make a risk unprofitable for an insurance company. The dealer should be concerned with a major loss that would deal a blow to his business.

If a dealer has machines that are used for demonstration, either on the premises or away from premises, he might want to have a limited amount of broader coverages to include collision while machines are being demonstrated. If a dealer picks up his machines from a factory and it delivers machines that are returned in a trade, it is suggested that the inspector's list, a delivery or endorsement provision to his policy to provide coverage for machines while they are being transported by him in or from the place to the lessor. It is not usually possible and advisable to arrange for physical damage coverage for machines during the test run for a testing by a team sponsored by a dealer. The cost is too small and the dealer is usually in a position to特效 repairs at a reasonable cost and hence, realize an insurance saving.

C. Customer Goods. Any dealer that operates a repair facility should have customers' goods coverage to protect him in the event of damage to or loss of customer's merchandise while in his possession for repairs, etc. This amount will usually be determined by adding up the amount of machines that he stocks and the value of the stock at any one time. The main concern will be theft, vandalism, and fire. Again, the better the building in which the machines are stored, the lower the rate the dealer will obtain.

2. Customer Goods. Colored Goggles

Goggles with colored lenses for bright days are indispensable, Amber or yellow lenses are very useful days or late in the afternoon. These lenses, used in the proper light conditions, can reveal dangerous obstructions in the snow. In addition, they give your eyes important protection from exposure to the wind and cold.

Also worth looking at is Wall's Habitat Pre-fabric suit by CN-Cox that features non-slip Naugahyde legs and seat at Park City, Utah (where these machines are paved in more attention to complete water-proof protection."

In April, we found at our "SNOW公開 Spring Show Show at Park City, Utah (where these pictures were taken), that a good share of machine manufacturers are paying more attention to snowmobile fabrics this year. Firms like Polaris, Sno-Jet, Johnson and Evinrude are all offering the "wet" look as well as completely new styled suits to match their machines."

"The designer of snowmobile jackets for '72 has remembered those important apres snowmobile parties, too. Not only is this year's selection sharper and more stylish, but the pile fur introduced successfully by Midwest Outerwear last season is looking better than ever in a variety of plush colors. Arctic Enterprises did their spats homework also, and for the new season offers to the fireplace crowd such interesting items as body stockings, polyester jumpuits and purple, black or white ponchos."

"What could be more appropriate for with-it snowmobiling gals at the end of the trail than those pants?"

This is Ray Parr Week

For nearly fifteen years Ray has served the St. Johns School District as its president or board member. During this time the area has grown in numbers of students, teachers, employees and buildings including the new St. Johns High School. In addition to the demands of this position, Ray has always supported activities of the Chamber of Commerce and other civic groups which work toward the betterment of the community. For his achievements on the school board and his constant civic-mindedness we've selected Ray as our citizen of the week.
