Safety steps being taken on Francis Road

By ROY ARTHUR

A rash of accidents along an estimated two mile stretch of Francis Road, northeast of St. John's, has led to the implementation of safety measures. A project to widen the road has been discussed, but a decision has not yet been made.

The stretch of road has been a source of concern for residents for some time. The road is narrow and poorly maintained, and there have been several accidents in the past year.

The state highway department has been notified of the problem, and is considering options for improvement. The cost of the project is estimated to be around $1 million.

Public concern has been vocal, and the local government is responding. A public meeting is scheduled for next month, where residents can voice their concerns and hear about the proposed safety measures.

The opinions about Color TV expressed below are not necessarily those of RCA's competitor's. But the facts speak for themselves.

Back in the Fifties, when the other setmakers gave up on Color TV as "impractical" and "too costly," RCA decided to go it alone. A reckless gamble, many people called it. But they ended up eating their words. It took $137,000,000 in research and development to get the job done, but today Color TV is a reality in millions of homes.

Thanks to RCA, and the company that has worked longest and hardest at perfecting Color figures to be the company that knows how to make the best set. Most people seem to figure that way, because they've made RCA America's first choice in Color.

In the new 1969 line, you'll find a wider choice of screen sizes, more trouble-free circuit designs and better-looking cabinets than ever before. The sold text, though, is the color picture RCA delivers. On this subject there is a waste of time. The thing to do is see for yourself. At

New bridge to open Dec. 2

The old bridge on Tallman Road between the townships of Perry and Haslett is being replaced and about completed, and the piers and abutments are being replaced. The new bridge is scheduled for completion by the middle of next month, with the opening-to-traffic date set for Dec. 2.

The new bridge is 189 feet long, with a 123-foot main span and a 55-foot approach span. The bridge is designed to allow record-high water to pass under it without difficulty. The old bridge was closed in August when the new bridge was started.

The new bridge will make Tallman Road a lot easier for the drivers, as the bridge decks are 63 feet long and weigh about 20 tons each. The crane was used to lift the sections into place. The crane would be relocated for the new bridge, and the piers and abutments are being replaced. The crane would be moved to the new bridge.

Local man excited about study

Family tree traced to 1630 in France

By LORRAINE L. SULLIVAN
Editor

Tracing down a family tree is a hobby that many people are interested in these days. There are countless stories of one person or another who has managed to trace a family line back many years with the help of church records, old letters or other documents.

Recently, a local man began to trace his family line back to the 1600s, and he has made some exciting discoveries.

The man, whose name was Charles, had always been interested in his family history. He had heard tales from his parents and grandparents about their ancestors, but he wanted to know more.

Charles started his research by going to the local library and looking through old manuscripts and records. He found a document from the early 1600s that mentioned his ancestor, François Broyez, who lived in France.

Charles was excited to find this document, as it provided him with a starting point for his family tree. He began to search for more information about François Broyez and his family.

As he dug deeper, Charles discovered that François had three children: Jacques, Marie, and Pierre. He was able to trace his family line back through several generations, eventually reaching a point in time when his ancestors lived in France.

Charles' research led him to a website that specializes in genealogy, and he was able to find more information about his family. He discovered that his ancestors had lived in various parts of France, and he even found a picture of his great-great-great-grandfather, who had lived in the same city as Charles.

Charles' enthusiasm for his family tree has not waned since he discovered this exciting information. He plans to continue his research and hopes to eventually trace his family line back to the 1300s.

In conclusion, Charles' story serves as a reminder that the pursuit of family history can be a rewarding and fulfilling endeavor. With patience and perseverance, one can uncover the rich tapestry of their ancestors and gain a deeper understanding of their past.

1x10 x 32.90%

Over a doorway in the St. Johns High School newsroom appeared a sign that the teams, with a few figures inside it, 1 x 10 x 32.90, could be seen everywhere.

"I was just passing by the high school yesterday when I noticed this sign," said one player, "and I was just wondering what it meant."

The sign, "1 x 10 x 32.90," represents a football player, the figure "1" being the ball, the figure "10" representing ten men, and the figure "32.90" representing the number of points scored in a game. The sign is placed in the high school newsroom to encourage players to keep up their game.

"We've been working hard this season and we're hoping to win," said another player. "We're looking forward to the game and we're going to do our best."

Mrs Henney thankful to be home after trip abroad

Mrs. Helen Sykora Henney of R-1, Middleton, spent three weeks visiting relatives in Czechoslovakia. While on their trip they went by plane to visit the homeland of her parents at Vamberk, their country and the homeland of Mrs. Henney's family work in the textile factories or make toys. They stay in the family homestead for July 4. In the family homestead there is a small wall painting of her parents at Vamberk, Czechoslovakia, while on their 3-day trip they visited three maternal aunts, one uncle, and their friends. I wished them all the best, their country and the homestead. Mrs. Henney accompanied her.

The standard of living is about the same. They use new machines and appliances. The land has its own good quality of soil. There is no modern farming equipment. There is no tractor. There is no modern machinery. They have in their homes an old telephone, a manual typewriter, a sewing machine, a radio, and a television. Mrs. Henney returned from Czechoslovakia with memories and gifts. Her family made her a silver necklace and the other cloth items, her several wall paintings, and the hand painted glass vases are some she purchased.

Grain agreement divides wheat market

Burlington, Vt. (AP) -- The agreement to divide world wheat market quota for the 1968-69 season is dividing the market, with exporters expressing concern over the potential for an oversupply.

The International Wheat Trade Center, sometimes known as the International Wheat Pool, was created to regulate world wheat trade and ensure fair prices for producers and consumers. The agreement was reached in November, following a meeting in Chicago.

The agreement divides wheat quotas among five nations: the United States, Canada, Australia, Argentina, and the European Economic Community. The quotas are based on the nations' production capacity and are intended to stabilize world wheat prices.

However, some exporters are concerned that the agreement may lead to an oversupply of wheat on the market. They argue that the quotas may not accurately reflect current production levels and may result in excess supplies of wheat.

The United States, for example, has been experiencing a decrease in wheat production in recent years, which may be reflected in its quota. Some exporters fear that the agreement will not take into account the current supply and demand conditions.

The International Wheat Trade Center has been tasked with monitoring the market and making adjustments to the quotas as needed. However, some exporters believe that the center is not sufficiently responsive to market conditions and may not be able to prevent an oversupply.

The agreement is seen as an important step in regulating world wheat trade and ensuring fair prices. However, concerns about potential oversupply remain, and the market will continue to be closely monitored.

Building Tomorrow Together!

Building tomorrow

It is fitting that the highly organized markets, in which we deal with today's highly organized markets, are building tomorrow together. With the President's call to action, and the Department of Agriculture's efforts to assist in the development of increasing food production, we must work together.

Farmers must sell together to get the best dollar. The Clinton County Farm Bureau reports that the grain agreement divides wheat market.

Robert Kissane, 69 membership chairman

At the November meeting of the Clinton County Farm Bureau in Delton, MI, the class was heard. They were greeted by Robert Kissane, 69 membership chairman, who introduced the speaker, the Rev. L. V. Hord.

Rev. L. V. Hord, the assistant manager of the local market, talked about the need for increased production. He emphasized the importance of working together to meet the needs of the world market.

The meeting was held at the Clinton County Farm Bureau headquarters, where the members discussed ways to increase production and meet the needs of the world market.

To Be Thankful

It used to be that a picture like this would only rain harvest times — big orange pumpkins, shiny and spooky, colorful silhouettes of Indian corn. And of course, a turkey in the pan. But what about today? You can buy apples almost any time. Pumpkins are available in a can twelve months of the year. You can buy a frozen turkey as early as July or as late as November.

We Americans talk for granted what we've got real treat in our parents' times. But in the midst of this wonderful plenty, there is a danger of spiritual famine. To keep the proper perspective, we appreciate the gifts of life to the fullest we heed the Church and the story it has to tell us.

Maybe you can't be a Pilgrim. But you can follow your forefather's example at Plymouth that first November. You can offer genuine thanks in the church of your choice.

SEWER WORK UNDERWAY IN OVIO

Ovio's sewer contracters, Reed and Nooyan of Lansing, were working toward M-21 (bushnell house in background) from the west edge of the village last week as the community's new sewer program is underway. This is an eight-inch sanitary sewer being laid. Streams in the south and west portions of Ovio are lined with sewer pipe and manhole units, as these two pictures show.

4-H Club Chatter

By JOHN AYLSWORTH

Extension 4-H Youth Agent

"Chicago, here we come!" are the words heard from boys, girls and adults at the Clayton County 4-H central board meeting, held at the courthouse last week. The board members are hard at work planning an 18-day trip to Chicago for the spring of 1969. The trip will include tours of the city, the White City, the Prudential Building and many other popular and interesting places.

At the meeting, the planning committee was enlarged by the addition of Miss Katherine Behrens, who has volunteered to work with the 4-H tractor program. She will work with leaders and younger members in planning the program.

The 4-H tractor program is being developed in the state of Illinois and will be available for use in Clayton County next year.

The monthly teen leaders meeting was held Monday, Dec. 1, at the home of Mary Ann White, Extension engineer from the Central National Bank. The meeting was attended by 40 members and leaders of the 4-H tractor program. The meeting was held to plan the program for the spring of 1969.
