The St. Johns Oil Company tank farm was locked and guarded, according to Ted Beal, plant manager. Federal budget cuts by President Nixon threatened the future of a proposed St. Johns sewer project and "yes and no" answers from the Michigan attorney general's office had left the community wondering whether they were or were not going to have a sewer.

John B. Wilson, superintendent of the St. Johns Oil Company, said steps are being taken to prevent the fire from spreading to 3 large fuel tanks within 10 feet of the fire.

The Sewer Commission was scheduled to begin the operation of the Clinton Area Ambulance Service on Jan. 31.

The Michigan Municipal Finance Commission announced the approval of a bond sale to finance the sewer project.

If you’re interested in continuing your education!

Over a year ago, John Wesley College launched one of its most important educational programs for the adults who want to continue their education but find themselves working full-time or are interested in other primary roles in life such as a full-time career and a family. The department, called Continuing Education, operates the program, called the Adult Degree Program (ADP), utilize two unique approaches to meet the needs of Weekend College and Resident Independent Study Program. ADP has been actively interested in earning a bachelor of arts degree or who may want to continue their journey in life.

Weekend College term begins in the fall and ends in May. Classes begin at 6:30 p.m. on Friday evening and conclude by 11 p.m. The seminars are followed by a four-week period of independent study and the return for another weekend which includes evaluating and midterm examination. This is followed by another period of supervised independent study, in turn, followed by the final evaluation and seminar weekend.

The seminars are open to continuing education and the public who want to earn credits or units may enroll in the seminars. If you’re concerned about education in America!

A report of a study of college costs shows that the average family in America is spending 5.6% of their income on higher education. This is a significant increase from the 3.9% reported in 1985. The study also found that the cost of higher education has increased at a rate of 8.3% per year, which is more than twice the rate of inflation.

Congressional action was taken to address this issue in the recent past. The Higher Education Amendments Act of 1986 was passed to help reduce the cost of higher education for students. The act provides for grants and loans for students who demonstrate financial need. The act also allows for the establishment of state scholarship programs to help students pay for college.

John Wesley College is committed to providing affordable education to its students. The College offers a variety of programs and financial aid options to help students afford their education. Students are encouraged to apply for financial aid, and the College is dedicated to helping students succeed in their academic pursuits.

No more medical school support

We have, in our thirty-one years, two medical schools, both relatively new, and both in the Lansing area. The Michigan State University College of Human Medicine and the College of Osteopathic Medicine (COM), established relatively recently, will no longer be able to present graduate school students. Clearly, we no longer have a surplus of doctors, as was hoped for by the medical school's supporters. The shortage of doctors, in fact, has led to a situation where medical schools are now being considered surplus.

The doctors here are much more in demand than they were in the past. The superabundance of doctors that was anticipated has not materialized.

In fact, Dr. Edwards seems to be obsessed with the idea of medical students being in short supply. He has even announced that the state should provide financial assistance to medical schools in order to encourage more students to enter the medical profession. The doctors currently working in the area are much more in demand than they were in the past.

If it Fizz...

Another crisis passed

By Jim Fitzgerald

If you want to make this world’s end a Christmas, you must buy a paper. No paper runs the year-round Christmas issue. This is the only issue she produces. She’s been doing it for a year. It’s been a success. The paper is called The Christmas Issue. It’s a quarterly publication that sells for $1.50 a year.

If you want to know what’s in it, we’ve already seen it. It’s a collection of short stories and poems about the Christmas season. The stories are written by various authors, and the poems are written by schoolchildren.

If you want to know how it’s done, it’s a lot of work. The editor, a woman named Dorothy, spends several months getting the stories and poems together. She then sends them to the printer, who prints them on special Christmas paper. The printer, in turn, sends them to the mailing service, who sends them to the subscribers. The subscribers, in turn, pay for the paper and receive it in their mailboxes.

If you want to know why she does it, she believes it’s important to keep the Christmas spirit alive. She says that it’s too easy to forget about Christmas in the hustle and bustle of everyday life. She hopes that her paper will help people remember the true meaning of Christmas.

If you want to know who she is, her name is Dorothy. She lives in a small town in the Midwest. She’s a retired schoolteacher and has been married for 40 years. She has two children and five grandchildren.

If you want to know what to do, you can subscribe to The Christmas Issue. You can order it online or by phone. The cost is $1.50 a year.

If you want to know where to find it, it’s only available through subscription. You can’t find it in bookstores or on newsstands.

If you want to know what it’s like, it’s a wonderful experience. The stories are heartwarming and the poems are beautiful. It’s a reminder that Christmas is more than just buying presents and going to church.

If you want to know what to do next, you should keep an eye out for next year’s issue. Dorothy promises it will be even better than this one.
There are times when the holdup of the day by day legislation may not sit well with the voters. At times, one sees those who rail at the Legislature as the 'bad guys.' It is the fault of the atmosphere that is charged with the irresponsibility statements and stereotyping of their work. The atmosphere for the present is worse.

Maybe I'd like to think so.

The Legislature, like any other organization, seems to work better under pressure. The pressure, a kind of "two minute " alibi" that we use to the professional football games, I have never thought was played in the last few minutes of a game, but is all in the rest of the game. In the fall we have some of the biggest and "two minute " demonstrations in other factions in the state. I have been a legislator in the state for years to come.
