Lancaster suggests cutting teachers' program funds

By Barbara Dunbar
News Special Writer

Revolution of the nation's sole program to underwrite classroom activities is sought, with the state's present aid to education found insufficient to give teachers what they need to do their jobs effectively.

Brown introduces revenue sharing plan to house

The White House announced President Nixon's plan to establish a revenue-sharing program. The plan will provide grants to state and local governments for a variety of programs, including transportation, education, and economic development. The grants will be calculated based on the relative needs of each state and local government, with a formula that takes into account population, income, and unemployment rates.

The program is designed to give state and local governments more flexibility in spending the funds. Under the plan, states and localities will have more discretion in determining how to use the money, with less federal oversight. The White House hopes this will lead to more effective and efficient spending on local needs.

In addition to the revenue-sharing program, the White House is also proposing other initiatives to support state and local governments. These include increased funding for education and transportation, as well as new initiatives to encourage economic growth and job creation.

The plan has been greeted with mixed reactions. Some politicians have praised the proposed increase in federal aid, while others have expressed concern about the potential for federal interference in state and local decision-making.

The full text of the proposal and more information about the revenue-sharing plan can be found on the White House website.
Ballenger to introduce coyote measure

State Rep. William Ballenger (R-Bend), sponsor of the measure, said the plan would provide for a periodic review of the current number of coyotes in the state and allow for the adjustment of the bounty if necessary. He also noted that the measure would provide for a public hearing on the bounty before it is approved.

"Coyotes are a problem in some areas of the state," Ballenger said. "This measure would provide for a more effective system of control, which would benefit both the landowners and the taxpayers."

OFLAND A. WESSGERS Soil Conservation Service

Field mapping on the Clinton County Soil Survey is now underway in Westphalia Township in December. The survey is being conducted by the U.S. Soil Conservation Service, Ministry of Natural Resources, and the Clinton County Soil Conservation District.

In going to new locations in all the townships of the county, the surveyors have the assistance of the county surveyor, Ray Thelen, who will check the completed surveys. The county surveyor can be obtained by calling 613-3201.

In the survey, every township in the county will be mapped for one of the townships uncharted, the townships of the counties in the area.

Conservation questions and answers

Do you have questions about the survey? If so, feel free to call the soil surveyor at the Soil Survey office in St. Johns.

Beautiful cure all.

Isn't that what we all do? We're looking for something wonderful to take away all the pain. Something that can make us forget about the hard work of the world — and all the sufferings of life.

But that could be beautiful. The Air Force does some of the most hard work in the world. And it also helps to heal the wounds of war.

So if you're interested in becoming part of this great organization, please contact your local Air Force Recruiter.

Using a flash attachment properly is the key to good indoor pictures.

There are a number of different flash attachments and they vary in their effectiveness. The least effective is the shoe attachment which is often a built in strobe which simply attaches itself to the shoe of the camera. The shoe attachment is the least effective because although it flashes, it doesn't fire when needed. The shoe attachment only fires when you press the shutter release button. It does not fire automatically when you need the flash. It is only effective in bright light conditions.

Sunlites is another type of flash attachment. It is a battery operated flash that is mounted on the camera. It is effective because it can be used in low light conditions. However, it is not as effective as the external flash because it is not as powerful.

The most effective flash attachment is the external flash. It is a separate flash unit that is mounted on the camera. It is effective because it can be used in low light conditions and it is more powerful than the shoe attachment.

The flash attachment should be used in low light conditions to get the best results. It is also effective in high contrast situations. The flash attachment should be used in high contrast situations to get the best results.

The Great American Dream Machine is alive and well in St. Johns.

The machine, when properly operated, is a dream come true. The Dream Machine was created by a group of Engineers who built it with the aim of creating a dream machine that could perform any task with ease.

The Dream Machine is powered by a powerful engine that can produce up to 1000 horsepower. It is equipped with advanced technology, allowing it to move with great speed and efficiency.

The machine has a sleek design, with aerodynamic curves that make it look like a dream. It is painted in vibrant shades of red and blue, with accents of silver that give it a futuristic look.

The Dream Machine is controlled by a sophisticated computer system that allows it to respond to input from its operator with incredible precision. It can perform tasks such as driving, cooking, cleaning, and even playing games.

The Dream Machine is ideal for anyone who is looking for a machine that can do it all. It is perfect for those who want to enjoy a life of leisure and relaxation, with minimal effort required.

The Dream Machine is designed to be used in a variety of settings, including homes, offices, and even on the go. It is a truly versatile machine that can adapt to any environment.

The Dream Machine is a dream come true, and it is sure to make anyone's life easier and more enjoyable. With its advanced technology and sleek design, it is the ultimate in dream machines.

Dream Machine: the future of technology is here.
We're not nasy, Trierweiler says as Eagles capture CMAC championship

Delaware was the key factor, according to Coach Chuck Trierweiler, for Fowler's strong performance in Friday's 74-60 victory over Bullock Creek. While the Eagles were not at their best, the notation of their defense was noted. In Trierweiler's own words, "We're not nasy, Trierweiler says as Eagles capture CMAC championship.

Marauders sparkl

The Marauders' confidence in their own abilities is clearly visible in their results. With a solid offensive line and a determined defense, the Marauders have dominated their opponents with ease. Their success cannot be attributed to luck alone, as they have consistently shown a high level of skill and teamwork. This weekend, the Marauders will face a tough challenge in the form of a visiting team. Despite the pressure, the Marauders remain confident in their abilities and are ready to face any challenge that comes their way. With their dedication to the sport and their passion for winning, the Marauders are poised to continue their winning streak. Their next game is scheduled for this Saturday at 2 p.m. at the Marauders' home court, and fans are encouraged to come out and support their team. The Marauders are sure to put on an exciting show, and there's no doubt that they will continue to shine on the court. So, mark your calendars and get ready for an unforgettable weekend of action-packed basketball!
Lions visit DeWitt, win 85-78

DeWitt All-Star Tom Imaenheem leap to block one of the best blocks in professional football, Charlie Sanders (88), but the Lion star got the shot away for the score.

TOM, MEET CHARLIE

Mel Farr (24) drives in for the short layup against the DeWitt Stars in their meeting for the Band Boys' Thursday night, Detroit won 85-78. Waiting in the back for a possible rebound is Ben (The Pearl) McCulloch, (93).

RETURN

Midlette (90) def-ends were knocked aside during Detroit action, but with a successful throw as the All-Star defender for two visits.

Future farmers

At one time farming consisted of 40 acres and a mule, and a man did well if he was able to feed himself and his family. Now, the story is far different. Farming is a business, and agriculture is a highly advanced industry employing the best brains among many disciplines.

A successful career in agriculture must start at an early age. That is why there are such organizations as the Future Farmers of America, which will shortly be observing FFWeek, February 20-27. The theme of FFWeek this year is, "Involved in America's Future." No theme could be more appropriate. Nothing is more closely involved with the future of the United States than the rearing of the food and fiber for more than 300 million people.

Some facts in connection with the organization of FFWeek have been released by The National Future Farmer, publication of the FFA. The FFA is a national organization of vocational agriculture in 9,000 public schools. The foundation upon which it is built includes leadership, community service, scholarship, improved agriculture, citizenship, patriotism etc. Young people in local FFA chapters are developing into the agricultural leaders of tomorrow.

These engaged in agriculture are a declining percentage of the total population of this country. As the numbers of farmers shrink, the responsibilities of each agricultural producer become heavier. Today, on the average, every farmer feeds nearly 50 other people. Tomorrow, this figure will rise, because less land is needed to produce the same amount of agricultural products.

Recent developments have been so full of emotion since I got back home that I have been left with no time for the usual kind of writing that helps to keep the brain active.

When I first came to this country, I was told that people here were not as educated as people Back Home. I was told that this was because we had better schools and a better education system. I was also told that people Back Home were better educated because they had more access to good schools and better teachers.

As I have grown older, however, I have realized that these differences are not as great as people Back Home would like to think. In fact, I have come to the conclusion that the differences between the two countries are not as great as people Back Home would like to think.

In my country, there are many people who cannot read or write. They are not educated and they do not have access to good schools. However, I believe that this is changing. I have seen many people Back Home who are learning to read and write. I believe that this is a good thing.

Back on track

By REP. DICK ALLEN

We’re back on the track. The bipartisan counterattack to put a stop to the railroad strike will start. The House of Representatives is currently considering legislation that will allow for the resumption of railroad service. The strike has been ongoing for several weeks, and it’s time for Congress to act.
