Oil drill and sometimes they don't." Eckels said that a number of companies have become interest in drilling because they became aware of the large number of leases registered and assigned. To end dry days and 342 leases were reassigned. According to one geologist, Eckels, Located in Michiganner, "The primary reason they are looking in Clinton County is the discovery of new oil fields south of Mason and to the Kalamazoo-Orange area.

Ellis said that "It is a common practice to lease a new area.

It is in their company policy to lease the area and test it to see if it is a good producer." When questioned about topographic attention to the location of oil, Ellis said, "Surface has no materially to the possibility of the existence of oil.

Information must be gathered from seismic data, geological reports and the geoc                          of the area.

According to Ellis, "It's a very economical process, and reguiring a considerable amount of work to determine if there is oil.

From oil indications of information available, western Clinton

County could very possibly be in a basic area that extends from the northwestern corner of Michigan and curves down to the southeastern part of Michigan.

Many people are not leasing their land, explaining that if they are going to be reassigned at all, they need a higher lease from the oil companies.

After a survey of the lease negotiations, it was determined that the average lease coverage being registered is about 40 acres and being 126 acres, the largest lease in close proximity to existing

oil companies.

Ells said, "Surface has no bear­

Random fabric cut more easily than bonded fabric, so bonded fabric is generally used in construction. A try-out structure similar to the final project is built to test materials. Shrink best during the finishing process. Since bonded fabric is woven, it shrinks less than knitted fabric and is easier to handle. It is necessary to do tests on all materials fabricated before the final structure is made. Wings remain on top in West

By BOB GAVIN

The Wings have been able to dispose of the Orioles in a one-sided game 92-70, again overpowering the Charlotte 14 20 17 16 - 67, their loss of second place to Bath by 7 points.

The Wings led by 14 points in the first quarter, 25-14. By halftime the Wings had the game settled leading by 14 points. The big spurt came in the second half.

Disposing of Orioles

The Wings had it altogether Friday night with "The Green," Bob Eisler, at the helm with 25 points. Eisler has the best shot at becoming the next star of the team, he literally turned them in the second half.

"We play best when we have Eisler in the game," said Coach Japinga, "He is a very valuable all-round player."

The Wings are only one game behind the Wings with their win over Waverly.

Japinga said, "If we win this game we have a definite chance to win the league." The Wings are in a very crucial position.

Winning or losing may mean the difference between first and second in the league.

Early warning?

An incident that had started out to be a simple “joke” ended a Friday morning and the possible object of jokes has turned into a deadly game of Russian roulette.

A Patriot missile operated as a part of the American defense system post accidently fired a rocket at a tow truck in the same area.

The missile, which was designed to down enemy aircraft, was instead directed at the truck, killing three people and injuring several others.

The incident has raised questions about the effectiveness of the American defense system and the need for better training and safety protocols.

On the day of the incident, a group of filmmakers had sneaked onto the missile field and, after taking a picture of the missile, had decided to test the system by firing the missile without warning.

The incident has sparked a debate about the role of filmmakers in the testing of military equipment and the need for better regulations to prevent such incidents in the future.

The filmmakers have been arrested and are facing charges of interfering with a military operation.

The incident has also raised questions about the role of the American defense system in the ongoing conflict with Iran and the need for better preparedness and response strategies.

Meanwhile, the incident has also highlighted the need for better regulation and oversight of private companies operating on military bases to prevent such incidents from happening again in the future.

(End of the story of the Patriot missile incident.)

Difficult travel

By SBW, WILLIAM S. BALLINGER

It’s difficult to believe that, in our age, there are individual travelers who do not own a car — who cannot afford to own a car — and who therefore must take the bus.

But that’s exactly what Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, a middle-aged couple, did last week. They had been planning to take a trip to New York City, but the cost of gas made it prohibitive. So they decided to take the bus.

Mr. Smith said: “The bus is slow, of course, and we had to get up early to catch the first bus. But it was worth it. We got to see the city and learn about the country.”

Mrs. Smith added: “We enjoyed the trip very much. It was a lot cheaper than flying, and we had the chance to see the sights.”

The Smiths are not unique. According to a recent survey, 25% of American families do not own a car.

Food stamps

By REP, DICK ALLEN

"Heyl isn’t such a representative of the people, is he?" someone asked me the other day.

Well, not exactly. I have not been a great supporter of the food stamp program, I must confess, but I was surprised at how many of my constituents felt the same way. They seemed to think that the program was making them too dependent on government.

And I must agree with them. The food stamp program has been a great boon to the nation, but it has also caused some problems. For example, the program has been criticized for being too complex. And it has also been accused of causing people to become less self-sufficient.

But I think the problem is more one of education than of the program itself. We need to educate people about the benefits of the food stamp program, so that they will understand why it is necessary.

I support the food stamp program, and I hope that we can work together to make it more effective.

Spending cuts

By R. DOUGLAS THERRELL

New Expenditures

The nation has been facing a budget crisis for some time now, and the government has been forced to make some painful cuts. But there are some things that cannot be cut.

Education is one of those things. It is a basic right of every citizen, and it is a cornerstone of democracy. We cannot allow the education system to fall apart.

But we also need to make some cuts in other areas. We need to cut back on the military, and we need to cut back on the welfare system.

We need to find a way to balance the budget, and we need to do it without hurting the people. We need to find a way to make the cuts, and we need to do it with dignity.

I am confident that we can do it. We are a great nation, and we have the resources to do it. We just need to work together to make it happen.

NOTICE TO CUSTOMERS

and other Detroit suburbs.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jones were among the new arrivals. They had recently moved to the suburbs from New York City.

Mrs. Jones said: "We are happy to be here. The people are friendly, and the weather is nice. We are enjoying our new home very much."
