DeWitt-a citizen group, called the Concerned Citizens of DeWitt, has formed to oppose the school expansion plan. The group, headed by Miss Kristin, 4203 W. Stoll Road, Lansing, was established to oppose the DeWitt Board of Education's recent decision to approve six revisions in the expansion plan last year, which would cost students in DeWitt High School an estimated $6 million. The group recently formed to protest the expansion plan. Miss Kristin declined to comment on the expansion plan or the group's plans to protest. However, she did say that the group is interested in the expansion plan and that they are working on a proposal to present to the school board. Miss Kristin said that the group's plans to protest the expansion plan are not yet finalized.

Bath counselor says test program offers improvement.

The Bath counselor, who requested anonymity, said that the new testing program, which was implemented at Bath High School, has resulted in a decrease in the number of students who need to be placed in remedial classes. The counselor said that the new program, which involves the use of a computerized testing system, has been successful in identifying students who need additional help and in providing them with the necessary support. The counselor said that the program has been well received by students and parents and that it has been successful in improving student achievement.

Bath and DeWitt voters will go to the polls April 4 to decide a $6 million school expansion.

The Bath and DeWitt school districts will hold a joint election on April 4 to vote on a $6 million expansion plan for both districts. The plan includes a new high school building, a new gymnasium, and new classrooms. The election is being held to raise funds to pay for the expansion plan. The plan was approved by the Bath and DeWitt school boards in December.

CHURCH NEWS

One of the great gospel groups traveling the Midwest can be heard at St. Johns Assembly of God Church on April 9 at 7:30 p.m. As you enter the upstairs sanctuary you are greeted with the familiar strains of most of your church favorites, some never sung by the local choirs that might be presented by the Bolling Choir from Detroit. The music is not only good; it is sung with a joy that is contagious. The choir consists of 16 members and two piano players. The music is a blend of old and new songs. The choir director is Rev. L. Joe Johnson, who heads the group, and Mrs. Robert Cofer is the piano player.

Parents upset with school

Dear Editor:

We would like to express our concern regarding Mrs. Blanding's decision to promote her daughter to the high school. It is our understanding that she has been selected to play the role of a character who is a student at the school. We are concerned because it seems that this decision was made without any input from the parents or the students involved.

We believe that it is important for our daughter to have a positive role model in her life. We do not want her to be exposed to a character who is not representative of the values that we hold dear. We understand that this situation may have implications for the school's image and its ability to attract new students. However, we feel that it is crucial that our daughter be given the opportunity to choose whom she wants to represent.

We would like to propose that there be an open discussion involving all the parents and students involved. This would allow everyone to express their concerns and to come to a decision that is fair and respectful to all. We believe that this is the only way to ensure that our daughter's future is not negatively affected.

Sincerely,

[Signature]

Since its founding in 1898, the F.C. Mason Company has been located at Spring and Railroad in St. Johns.

F.C. Mason, growing with the farm industry

F.C. Mason Company, one of the county's oldest firms is also one of the fastest growing.

With sales continuing to grow for both the manufacturing and distributing departments, the company is looking for a fifty per cent increase over last year, which was the finest year in the company's history.

This solid growth is credited to an efficient program and new products.

Products manufactured include bean knives, with customers now in Mexico, transplanter runners, cultivator points, sweeps and springs. These products are produced for original equipment manufacturers and replacement.

A distributor for many major farm equipment manufacturers, F.C. Mason serves a three state area. This portion of the business accounts for approximately 70 per cent of the company's total volume.

However, through product development, especially in the area of spring harrow teeth, a future goal is a 50-50 split for production and distributing.

Organized mainly as a distributing company, F.C. Mason Company of St. Johns started production of cultivator shovels in 1901. The power at that time was generated by two steam boilers to power three main line driveshafts. Open hearth coke fired furnaces were used in forging.

In the mid-thirties the furnaces were converted to gas and today automatic walker type furnaces are in use.

The first of six additions to the original shop was completed in 1908 and the largest addition in 1938.

One of the oldest firms in Clinton County carries the name of its founder today. . . . the F. C. Mason Company of St. Johns. Organized by Frank C. Mason in 1898 the company was a jobber-distributor organization. Blacksmiths were hired and the company also repaired cultivator shovels and points.

The first manufacturing began in 1901 with the production of cultivator shovels. Over the years the company has produced such items as wagon and buggy wheels, wooden sleighs with steel runners, township road graders, truck frames and neck yokes.

Today F. C. Mason is the world's largest producer of transplanter runners important in the tobacco, peanut and cotton industry. Original and replacement equipment includes cultivator shovels, sweeps, springs, bean knives.

Lack of interest kills local office

The month of March will pass in Clinton County with the County Clerk's office closed, and our local legislators have given up just a bit more of their rights to govern themselves.

The sad thing is that they have brought the loss of themselves through lack of interest and support in self-government.

Two years ago, William Bellinger, then a state representative for the eastern half of Clinton County, set up an office and did what he could, to meet with local citizens and hear complaints or suggestions.

The project was carried on when Rep. R. Douglas Trescott was elected to the 87th District post and Bellinger was elected state senator from the 30th District.

The two lawmakers shared office space, making themselves available to citizens on alternate Friday afternoons.

The experiment came to an end this month, when the two men decided to close the office for lack of public interest.

Several weeks ago, we wrote in an editorial, about the office and in jest asked if each of their representatives—so show interest in their work. They sold business picked up on Friday afternoon for a few weeks, but has since dropped back to zero. Thus their decision to close the office.

With new legislation being submitted to both houses of the legislature every day that could affect all of our life styles, either directly or indirectly, it seems imperative that we maintain access to our representatives. It has been demonstrated that lawmakers do respond to public sentiment, once that sentiment is expressed by interested citizens.

There are many bills, while not directly applicable to Clinton County, that affect farmers. Such things as education, education reform, the passage of abortion, abortion law reform and crime control, affect our lawmakers as much as they do our districts.

So far all this has been a pathetic to the goals of the establishment that holds the ears and the minds of the citizens of our country. It is recently being pointed out by persons within the practice of medicine that one reason for the lack of interest of the public in the medical profession is the lack of interest and support on the part of the public in the medical profession.

The month of March will pass in Clinton County with the County Clerk's office closed, and our local legislators have given up just a bit more of their rights to govern themselves.

The sad thing is that they have brought the loss of themselves through lack of interest and support in self-government.

Dear Editor:

In light of the opinions and statements that appeared in the "Letter of the Week," I would like to say that the view of the students is not being ignored. It is not at all necessary to respond to the student newspaper in order to maintain a relationship with our students. The second point you mentioned is that the verse of the day being postcarded to the students is posted in the Falstaff building. It is for the purpose of informing the students of religious observance.

In conclusion to the letter, there are those who feel that the students should be more involved in the church. I do not feel that the students should be involved in this type of church. I would like to comment on the type of church I am involved in. I am involved in a church that is not interested in all the different social groups of people. I am just interested in the students who are interested in their religion and their church. I am not interested in all the different social groups of people.

Sincerely,

Supervisors can help

Jose J. Llanas, M.D.
Director of Community Health Publication states,
"There is one important point of difference between making exchanges easier and making them impossible for people, which makes them resentful. When they cross the door of their place of work, they are either providing a service, or that they do not have the necessary assistance in achieving the required goal. He then may be able to make them resentful, will not make them satisfied, nor will it make them work. If he is not aware of why he is being asked to do what he is asked, he will not be as interested in his work, and his behavior on the part of his superiors is altogether another matter. He then needs recognition.

For example, the manager, because of his position, is a key person in the organization, and in case of mental health, the foreman.

For a long time now, there have been studies that show that mental health of a person, a company, and a community, that are affected by the health of the nation. That is what I want to talk about.

The company has been working on the problem of exclusion and discrimination. They have a right to demand, to the extent that they can support from the supervisors. They should be aware of the problem, that the supervisors have the responsibility to make sure that the company is not in violation of the law. Most of all, they should be aware of the importance of their work, to make sure that the company is not in violation of the law.

The company will be open to suggestions, and the supervisors will be open to suggestions. It is important that the supervisors be aware of the importance of their work, to make sure that the company is not in violation of the law.

There's a new term floating around Lansing these days which has a lot of buzz because of the truth behind the many conflicting claims. It sounds like a political nonsense word but it's really "Extremes." It's being used by both sides to describe their political opponents.

For example, you'll hear people say, "The Extremes have removed marijuana law is unconstitutional under the Constitution." But call it what you may—"Extremes" or "Conservatives" or "Democrats" or whatever you want to call them. It's a safe bet that most people who refer to "Extremes" are in a lot of trouble.

That's because the word is the political equivalent of "crazy" or "madman." It means someone who is willing to do anything to get what they want, even if it means breaking the law or doing something illegal.

But what exactly does "Extremes" mean? It's a term that's often used to describe people who are very conservative or very liberal. It's like saying someone is a "conservative" or a "liberal"—it doesn't really tell you much about them.

The problem with "Extremes" is that it's a vague term that can be used to describe almost anyone. It's like saying someone is a "hate-filled" or a "mean-spirited." It's just a way to label someone without really saying anything.

But the fact is, there are some people who are willing to do anything to get what they want. They'll lie, cheat, steal, and even break the law. And that's where the word "Extremes" comes in.

It's a way to describe people who are willing to do anything to get what they want, even if it means breaking the law or doing something illegal.

So the next time you hear someone talking about the "Extremes," you should ask yourself: is this person really an "Extreme," or is it just a way for them to describe someone they don't like?
