Spring break-up of roads bad

The jouncingest problem of spring

By SANDY RATHBUN

There is nothing quite like a run through a country road after a hard spring cleaning. And to Clinton County talkers, it is a spring favorite.

It is a fact that as driving begins, the roads will be in a terrible state. The weather is bad, and the roads are a mirror of the weather. Rain and snow have left the roads with a dusting of mud and ice.

The weather this year has been a series of cold and warm spells. The cold weather has made the road conditions worse. The warm weather has made the roads settle and become more uneven.

The BREAKUP ON CLARK ROAD . . . A tough problem this time of year

Elective

During the past few months, the township roads have been a source of frustration for many residents. The roads are in a bad state, with potholes and uneven surfaces.

The township is responsible for the maintenance of the roads, but as a result of the spring cleaning, the roads are in need of repair.

The township has received grants from the state and federal government to help fund the road repairs. However, the funds are not enough to cover the entire cost of the repairs.

The township is considering hiring a private contractor to do the work.

The township has also received grants to help fund road projects in the future. These grants will be put to good use to improve the roads for the residents.

Downtown values highest in area of Clinton, Walker

Clintonds Williams & Associates in determining the 12 disposal parcels in the project area, used but one method of evaluation: that of the Commercial and Public Land Use Cost Approach, and their findings are outlined in the following pages.

Because of the nature of the data obtained, all four methods required the use of various approaches to the determination of the actual cost of the lands and structures. This was due to the nature of the data obtained, and the use of the data in urban renewal is often urban renewal in other communities in the Eastern United States.

It is true that in several urban districts of many large cities throughout the nation, the methods of the Evaluation of the Commercial and Public Land Use Cost Approach are most often used. The method, however, does not necessarily imply the use of the Commercial and Public Land Use Cost Approach, but rather simply defining Clinton Avenue to the northward between Walker and McLain Streets.

A historically oriented analysis of the block, the use and use potential of the land shall therefore be treated as a prevailing rate of return. This will, of course, indicate evidence of the presence of a public improvement, or a public improvement, or a public improvement, or a public improvement, or a public improvement.

The land use plan imposes certain restrictions on use of the parcel as a result of the density and the manner of the land use. A developer, in determining the cost of the parcels, shall determine a price for the land based on the prevailing rate of return. This price shall reflect the minimum financial interest and shall yield the only fair return for the land owner and the land user.

The reasons for the calculations give us an indication of land valuations ranging from 100 to 200 percent from a maximum of 200 percent, with the minimum financial interest of the order of 300 percent, with the minimum financial interest of the order of 300 percent. 67 Wool Incentive Payment Rates Announced

The U.S. Department of Agriculture announced the Wool Incentive Payment Program for the 1967 marketing year. Details of this program, which is designed to encourage the wool production of many dairymen, can be found in the following text from the June 4, 1967 issue of the Clinton County News:

"...the new plan, which takes effect this year, provides for an incentive payment to producers of wool from the wool on milk. The payment is designed to encourage the production of wool and is intended to offset the drop in demand for wool and下跌 of prices..."

Higher soybean yields
follow 'right' practices

Michigan farmers in 1966 got an average yield of 25.6 bushels per acre with their soybean crop.
Compare this to 15.4 bushels per acre in 1961, and a 40
cent increase in cash price would mean a $6.20 million in income for Michigan farmers.'
A new Bushel Industries report, "The Soybean Farm in Michigan," gives the baseline for a good soybean crop.
Leaching and erosion losses are regularly checked for the first few years of soybean production. If the beans are in a strip rotation, an average yield of 22.5 bushels per acre is considered normal.

"I believe farmers can get their soybean yields up to 50 bushels per acre," former Michigan State University
professor George N. Kruiver, Clinton County, recommends.
High yields can be achieved with a proper soil test and chemical analysis. A high phosphorus content in the soil is essential. "Weed control is also of great importance," he states. "Weeds can be applied.
Manganese, though valuable in the plant's metabolism, may be a limiting yield factor.

"A Michigan Department of Agriculture inspector does me a visit during every tour and asks me about my soybeans.
Agriculture to assure that conformity and allows air to get into the root zone of the crops.
The soybean farmer also benefits from the use of modern chemicals, such as antibiotics and pest control, and from research and extension service.

Spring brings out a lot of nice features about life, but one which fails to cause trouble and heartache to the guildable is the staph. They seem to come out of the woodwork about this time every spring, prey on homeowners with both product and service. They need to be spotted and nipped in the bud before they can cause a step ahead of later customers.

The moral of the story: Use common sense in those places where the peddlar at your door offers his sham proposal. If his service or product was as good as he says, he would be selling it in one location where people can come do it rather than running from town to town telling about it. Local merchants found it works best to locate in a place common where the customer can come do it.

If common sense even exists, consider the legality of the peddler at your door. St. Johns has a city ordinance which requires solicitors to have a license, and when they have one they'll be wearing a badge-type affair that will tell the customer he is licensed. The license doesn't guarantee the product or the service, but it does discourage most shysters.

The same old story when it comes to repairs or conversions. Without a building permit or license, the work cannot be done. City officials point out the rules were set up by the commission for the protection of the public.

Your best bet is to peddler on and buy the product or service from a reputable local dealer where you know who you're going to hire before you hire anybody.

The Miracle of Modern Transportation

ội’s vote justified twice at polls Tuesday

It's no fun doing a job without a set of guidelines or under unnecessarily dangerous conditions. Yet, respectively, St. Johns city officials and Democratic candidates are doing just that.

There are no real guidelines on how much tax they can legally assess. There's doubt whether the legal limit will reach the 5 mills. Until that's cleared up, there will be inefficiency in planning, budgeting and carrying out a city program with the money they have in the account.

Proposed charter amendments will clear up the uncertainty about milling, and among other things will set the limit at 5 or 6 mills. The present 6 mills is the last rate set in 1913 and is, of course, the highest rate in the recent months always figured was the legal limit. But unless it is spelled out, as in a law, a city's financial plight may not always be sure.

A "yes" vote at the polls next Tuesday on Proposition I will clear up the bluff: a "no" vote would only confuse things more.

Half of the danger in being a firearms dealer in St. Johns is in getting to the fire ball. The location of the present store that was closed recently always figured was dangerous. But unless it is spelled out, as in a law, a city's financial plight may not always be sure.

Proposition No. 2 on the ballot next Tuesday is for a three-mill tax levy to finance a new fire and police hall. The three-mills would be assessed only in 1967 and 1968. The need and advantages of the new fire-police building justify a "yes" vote. They're YOUR firemen and policemen. If you can't provide adequate and safer quarters for them, so one else can.

The battle of Lake Erie

We have met the enemy . . .

BY JANE MARIE SMITH

The battle of Lake Erie, the turning point of the war of 1812, was fought off the south shore of Lake Erie near present-day Put-in-Bay on September 10, 1813. 30 vessels were involved in the battle. It was a decisive struggle of the war of 1812. America lost 15 ships, 323 men, and 4 guns; Britain lost 10 ships, 119 men, and 2 guns. Twenty-three of the American ships were captured by the British.

Perry was born in UTICA, Ohio, on Oct. 27, 1809. At the age of 22, he succeeded his father in the Navy. In 1823, Perry was appointed by President Monroe as a special agent to Chile. On December 3, 1823, Perry married Sarah Flower, and they had two children, Jesse Perry, Jr., and Sarah Perry. Following the Mexican-American War, Perry served in the United States Navy for 30 years. He became a rear admiral in 1862 and retired in 1866.

Perry's career began with the War of 1812. He was captured by the British twice during the war, and was released as a hostage in 1813. Perry's capture of the British ship General Hunter in 1814 was a major victory for the United States.
