Number of farms in county drop between '59, '64

A total of 2,870 farms was counted in the county in 1964, compared to 3,283 in 1959.

The decrease in the number of farms is due to the consolidation of farms, which has been a common occurrence in the district.

Future pulpwood sales by weight seen as possibility

Michigan State University research on a new method of measuring pulpwood, and on its weight instead of volume, may be important if you sell pulpwood to lumber output, he said. Gerrard said the new method would take into account the actual weight of the pulpwood, not just its volume. Measurement by volume

The new method is based on a system of stacking the pulpwood that will be cut, with the height of the stack used to determine the weight of the pulpwood. The system is designed to be used with existing equipment, and can be applied to both hardwood and softwood pulpwood.

To make the measuring system work, the pulpwood must be stacked in a uniform manner, and the height of the stack must be determined accurately. The system requires a trained operator, and the results must be interpreted carefully.

The advantage of the new method is that it will be more accurate and consistent than current methods, and will not be affected by the quality of the pulpwood. The method will be tested further before it is fully adopted by the timber industry.

NITROGEN TRU T YIELD BOOSTER

"Nitrogen truly is a yield booster. To make the most of your nitrogen, make sure you're using it right. Don't use your nitrogen in the spring. Use it in the fall."

James A. Porter points out that over 75% of his nitrogen is used in the fall. Porter's recommendations are based on the premise that water is present in the soil to dissolve the nitrogen, making it available for plant use. He notes that if the nitrogen is used in the fall, it is less likely to be lost to the environment.

Porter also suggests that any nitrogen carrier should be used in adequate but not excessive quantities. Guidelines for the use of nitrogen fertilizers can be found in the local Extension Office.

James A. Porter points out that any nitrogen carrier is satisfactory, as long as it is economically feasible to use straight nitrogen fertilizers. If you're using a nitrogen carrier, Porter recommends using it in the fall, as this will help to maximize the yield boost.

CLAIMS FARMERS ALLOWING COLLAPSE OF U.S. ECONOMY

There are those who believe that farmers are allowing the collapse of the U.S. economy. However, farmers are doing everything they can to help the economy. They are using nitrogen fertilizers to increase crop yields and are using nitrogen carriers to maintain soil fertility.

Luman Hall has an interest in history. He has copies of many of the first newspapers printed in the county and elsewhere.

One of the early graves at the Colson Cemetery. In this form of a cradle, the stone marks the grave of a small boy.

Spring may bring break in food costs

One letter from James D. Luman Hall of 3601 Hall Road, Owosso, to the Daily News, April 10, 1866, asks that the editors call the attention of the merchants and the general public to the fact that gasoline is being sold at four cents a gallon. The gasoline is said to be of high quality. The letter states that it is possible to get gasoline for three cents a gallon in other parts of the state. The letter also mentions that the gasoline is being sold at a profit, and that the merchants are making a profit at the expense of the consumer.

He has written a book about the history of the area and has given talks to local groups about the area's history. Planning high school is different, complex.

Planning high school is different, complex. Pleaseing high school buildings is undeniably different from small elementary buildings. At the secondary level, students are usually involved in a number of activities that require planning by teachers. In fact, students themselves are involved in planning activities. It is hoped that involved students will eventually become involved in planning the future, as other students do. Self-serviceable schools should be planned with the student in mind. The student is the one who is going to use each period. It also will be considerably different than the present department cannot accommodate the high school program.

School administrators are trying to adapt to new ideas brought by the present educational system. They believe that the school is a living organism that can be affected by the environment. The school is not a rigid structure, but a dynamic entity that can adapt to changing needs and conditions.

The concept of self-serviceable schools is based on the idea that students should be involved in planning and managing their own education. This approach emphasizes the importance of student participation in decision-making processes. The school is seen as a community where students are active members rather than passive recipients of knowledge.

In summary, planning high school involves a complex process of integrating the needs of students, teachers, and the community. Self-serviceable schools provide a framework for this involvement, allowing students to take an active role in shaping their education. The emphasis is on creating a learning environment where students are empowered to make decisions that affect their learning experience.

Business, schools work together-profitably

Best training is doing it

Educators agree the best training is actually doing. The St. Johns Public Schools a couple of years ago re-established a program in which high school students in business education get actual work experience—thanks to the cooperation of a number of businesses and industries. In this Focus on Education report, John Parry, guidance counselor at Rodney B. Wilson High School and coordinator of this program, explains how it operates.

Parry is presently contacting local business for tentative arrangements for cooperative education in the 1966-67 school year.

WHAT IS COOPERATIVE EDUCATION?

Cooperative education is that part of the total secondary school program which recognizes the value of practical work as a learning experience. Vital are the personal and professional growth that comes from real work situations, where boys and girls gain valuable experience and skills which will help them to become better employees and business associates. These business experiences are to the student, the school, and the community.

WHAT WILL I LEARN?

The most important part of the program is the on-the-job experience which the student will receive while participating in this program. The following is a partial listing of the skills which will be learned.

1. Testing clerical work
2. Operating the TWX teletype
3. Operating the typewriter
4. Developing word processing

WHO QUALIFIES FOR THIS PROGRAM?

Any student who has reached the age of 16 years and can demonstrate to officials and business he has the needed skills and personality to be a successful worker under such conditions. To make the most of the program, students must have the required training while in high school. Our Program is limited to students in the 11th and 12th grades. This is a two-year program.

WHERE WILL YOU WORK?

The program is designed to give the student an opportunity to work for a minimum of 20 hours a week. As much as 10 hours a day will be allowed on a part-time basis. The student will be employed by the employer at the beginning of the program. The student will be paid for his service.

WHAT IS THE CONTRIBUTION OF THE SCHOOL?

The student is under the direct supervision of the employer and the coordinator. The employer agrees to report periodically on the progress of the student. The school keeps in close contact with the student and his employer.

WHAT IS THE EMPLOYER'S RESPONSIBILITY?

The employer agrees to offer reasonable business training, to cooperate with the high school, and agrees to teach the trade in a manner necessary to become accredited teacher in the school or business. The employer agrees to work with the school and the coordinator to make the program workable. The school is under the direction of the coordinator who will work closely with the employer and the student to make the program workable. The employer will be paid for the service.

The road to centralism is too, too easy a route

Since the new Department of Housing and Urban Affairs will be headed by a secretary with cabinet status, it might be well to note that this latest attempt on the federal-state-local relations.

Will this action, along with the mandatory reapportionment of state and national legislative districts, help solve the problems of the small towns and rural areas in state and national legislatures? Will this move increasingly solidify federal intervention into problems once considered the sole province of city and state?

Only time will tell. However, it does seem that the quickest way to solve local problems, to create homes of dignity and neighborhoods of pride, would be to give the city tax source now pre-empted by the federal government and let them solve their own problems.

IT IS LUDICROUS even to assume that a Washington bureaucrat is in a better position to judge local community problems than the local community - today and tomorrow - than the electors of the community, whose property and personal property is at stake.

However, because it is sometimes difficult to obtain the necessary financial help locally for civic projects in the process, the fallacy of permitting more and more control of government to be centralised in Washington will become clearer in the days ahead. It is hoped that this community will want to care carefully, consider the consequences, and will decide accordingly.

Fair Break for Homeowners

Reprinted from Missouri Times

The average American family's principal lifetime investment, according to the U.S. Department of Commerce and the U.S. Bureau of the Census, is the family home. In 1945, the average family's principal lifetime investment was $3,500. A year later, the figure had increased to $4,000.

The reason for the increase is the 'bonfire of the twenties,' when the family home was built. Now, as the family home increases in value, the family home is a great investment in both the economic and social sense.

The “Low Down”

By Rob St. Jhiithon

The “Low Down” is a column where Rob provides insights and opinions on various topics. In this edition, he discusses the importance of understanding credit decisions and how to make informed choices. He also touches on the impact of the vernal equinox on day-to-day activities and the importance of learning from experience.

Mud time—the 5th season between winter, spring

It is generally accepted that mud is a part of rural life, and the 5th season between winter and spring is often characterized by mud. This is a time when the soil is still frozen, but the weather is warming up, leading to a slushy, muddy environment. While muddy roads and fields can be challenging, they also provide an opportunity to appreciate the beauty of nature and the resilience of the land.
