McDonald's celebrates 20th birthday by rolling up prices back to $15.40.

In April 1975, nearly 3,400 McDonald's opened the first McDonald's in the United States, and in honor of the occasion, the company announced that it would be rolling prices back to $15.40, a nod to the original price of a Big Mac when it was introduced in 1968.

The price rollback was part of a special promotion to celebrate the 20th anniversary of McDonald's, which had opened its first restaurant in Des Plaines, Illinois, in 1955.

This April, McDonald's - which now has over 34,000 restaurants in more than 100 countries - will be celebrating its 60th birthday. In honor of this milestone, the company is planning a variety of events and promotions throughout the year, including a special menu item introduced in April 2015 called the "McDonald's 60th Birthday Flatbread".

The Flatbread features a thin crust with a choice of cheese, vegetables, and meat toppings, all rolled up in aapeutically baked tortilla. The dish is available for a limited time only, from April 19 to May 19, 2015.

In addition to the Flatbread, McDonald's is also planning a special "Carnival" event to take place at select locations across the country. The carnival will feature games, prizes, and entertainment for guests of all ages.

The "Carnival" will run through May 2015, with specific dates and locations to be announced in the coming weeks.

Customers can stay up to date with all the latest news and promotions by following McDonald's on social media and checking their local restaurant for details.

A U of M poll last winter indicated that over half of us expect the country to go in a deep depression. Of course, that's a major cause of any country's depression—the economic fear of its people.

The fear itself fuels investments and expansion.

A business becomes afraid to grow. The individual becomes afraid to move on a house—investment that the most conservative bankers and consumers long have felt to be wise, and still do—on a lesser item.

Our economy is nothing if we don't do what Nixon ordered him to do.

If it fits, 11/10/75

The budget, which is about $2.5 billion, is expected to provide funds for schools, hospitals, and other government programs.
