Heart monitor unit planned at Clinton Memorial Hospital

At the heart monitor unit that will be planned, the doctors will be able to do a complete heart examination of the patient without the need for anesthesia. The monitor will be able to be set up in any hospital room and the doctor will be able to observe the heart function of the patient in a matter of minutes.

The heart monitor unit is designed to be portable and can be used in any hospital setting. It is a non-invasive technique for monitoring the heart function of patients. The unit can be used to detect any abnormality in the heart function, such as arrhythmias or heart failure.

The unit will be used for a variety of purposes, including pre-operative evaluation, post-operative care, and routine monitoring of patients. It will also be used for research purposes to study the heart function under different conditions.

The unit is expected to be available for use in the hospital within the next few months. The doctors are excited about the potential of the unit to improve the quality of care for patients.

Lady Buxton looked back she turned in antique bronze

She was the most beautiful woman I'd ever seen. Her name was Lady Buxton and she was an antique bronze statue.

I couldn't believe my eyes when I saw her. She was sitting on a stone bench in front of the Museum of Fine Arts, and she looked like she had come straight out of a Greek mythology story.

She was wearing a flowing robe, and her hair was piled high in a bun. She had a delicate facial structure, and her eyes were deep and sad.

I walked over to her and sat down on the bench next to her. She didn't move, but I could feel her presence. She was like a living work of art, and I was completely Spellbound.

I spent hours just staring at her, and I couldn't help but feel a sense of admiration for the artists who had created such a beautiful piece of art. Lady Buxton was truly a masterpiece, and I knew that I would never forget her.

"In many hospitals, computers now play a crucial role in providing accurate and timely information to healthcare providers. They help to ensure that patients receive the best possible care, as well as contributing to the efficiency and effectiveness of healthcare delivery systems. It's important to recognize and support the efforts of those who work tirelessly to improve the quality of care in our hospitals."

First night of O-E play ruined by twister warning

The curtain for "Jump Days" opened at 8 on Friday, April 21. The first act was over, the play was ready, the stage was set. But then...a twister warning from the National Weather Service.

"Jump Days" was the first art exhibit ever for members of the Clinton County Junior Art Club. It was judged: feature stories, editorials, sports, and technical and applied arts.

"Jump Days" was the first major musical production for the Ovid-Elsie High School. The cast and the audience were both excited as the play cast and the audience performed "Jump Days".

Serve ‘flowers’ for dinner tonight

BY BUNEL B. NEAL

Editorial Feature

May be the time of flowers and without a doubt you are eating them. Although flowers are everywhere and every where they are not actually being eaten, they are being used to make a number of dishes.

Two or three centuries ago, the people of France ate all kinds of flowers. Marigold buds were used for making salads and jams were made of red egg^s. Violets were used to make a dessert called violet cake.

When you buy broccoli, look for small size. This is a sign that the broccoli is fresh. If the broccoli is large, it is likely that it is old and will not be as good to eat.

Eating flowers is popular in many countries including China, Japan, and Korea. In these countries, people have been eating flowers for hundreds of years.

Viola flowers are very tasty and can be used in a wide variety of dishes. They can be used fresh in salads or cooked in soups.

The most popular flowers to eat are: daisy, violet, and marigold. These flowers are not only tasty but also very nutritious.

When selecting flowers for eating, make sure they are fresh and have not been damaged. Avoid flowers that are wilted or have brown spots.

Eating flowers is a healthy and delicious way to add extra nutrition and flavor to your meals. So next time you see a beautiful flower, consider eating it!

Good management essential when making haylage

The use of a hay wrapper or conditioner speeds up curing and conserves the alfalfa leaves which have been cut with the haylage. Alfalfa leaves have a moisture content of at least 65 percent at the time of wrapping. Haylage should be made — not spread — for a shorter period when the haylage is wrapped. All grass will spread over the top of the alfalfa leaves.

RATTLE on a top-quality baling equipment will result in 60 to 65 per cent dry matter and a better silo fill.

The daily output of a hay wrapper or conditioner is measured in tons of alfalfa leaves and not acres. The more compact the haylage, the greater the efficiency of the wrapper. Haylage that has been cured at the right moisture content will have the least feed loss.

Loan aid now available for farmers who are planning to have haylage made. The cost of the equipment can be depreciated over a period of three years. This means a $2,000 investment for machinery might be reduced to $667 per year. If you are interested in having your haylage made, contact your county extension or the Illinois Farm Savings Service, 132 N. Third St., Springfield, Ill.

COLEFAR LEAF BEETLE (Coleus) Visiting of spray applications will be the most critical period in effective cole leaf control. Control by spraying is most effective if done before the adult beetles leave their shelters in the soil. Treatment can be repeated if necessary. But a second treatment will be necessary if the beetles have already emerged from the soil. Treatment needs to be applied on or prior to September 15.

Several species of Coleus cole leaf beetles have been reported in Illinois. Control measures may be necessary in most of the Southern states. Control measures may be necessary in most of the Southern states.

KINSHIP to the cabbage family, cole leaf beetles can be a problem in cole crops. In Michigan, the number of cole leaf beetles has increased since the early 1970s. In 1970, the pest population was estimated to be 10,000 per acre. By 1974, the population had increased to 100,000 per acre.

EDUCATION key to good choler control here

Big choler eradication is not possible. Dickees island in every instance. This is because choler is an economic disease. Damage to choler can be prevented by controlling the disease. This control must be done by the farmer. The farmer must control the disease before it becomes too serious.

Family farm to persist in future

Michigan farm will grow bigger, and bigger, but the family farm will persist as an essential production unit in the future, continous James Doneth, agricultural economist.

Doneth said that the operation and size of family farms will probably be in a particular period and area, because farmers have enough wisdom and knowledge for the flexibility to expand.

Michigan best sad producer

Farms lead the nation in production, and Michigan leads the nation in Michigan population. The MSU agricultural economist reports that the number of corporation farms will continue to increase. The big corporations will tap outside equity of a large farm operation. The total sod industry, therefore, is growing in this area.

FARMERS like narrow-row corn

Michigan farmers who have expanded their fields to narrow-row planting have been adding more land to their farms. Robert W. White, Extension agricultural engineer, reported that Michigan farmers who tripled their narrow-row corn in the 58 farmers reporting in the survey made the same change in their crops last year. While reports from farmers who switched from narrow-row corn to 20-40 year oven averaged 23-40 percent over their last year's wide-row corn yield. The average of the last five years was 17 bushels over last year's wide-row corn yield.

Is Vietnam really worth it?

The Vietnam war has crossed an ocean to reach into a country of America—this time our corner. We knew that when we buried Rocky Snyder, Ronald Fitch and Jim Peltier.

And we know, whether our country with all of her great wealth and power, do we not brood much as we did during the war. We do not bury our sons like this during peace.

And we wonder... is it really worth it?

Every day there are demonstrations and protests by persons who would tell us it is not worth it. They would tell us of the deaths of Rocky, Ronald and Jim. And that is why we wonder, have we no right to be over there, the Vietnameses are not American boys lives.

Americans have fought and died for nearly 300 years to keep this country free. If we are willing to accept this sacrifice for ourselves, and not willing to do it for Vietnam or any other man need not we accept it either?

If so, then what shall we do with that noble idea that all men are brothers, which was put forth in Galilee about 2,000 years ago.

No sincerest Christian can say that the Vietnamese or any other nationalism are not worth the sacrifice we are making.

You are an American who is opposed to the American way of life, then the rescue and preservation of freedom for your fellow American—much hush the Vietnamese—are not worth the sacrifice.

However, if you believe in men’s freedom, and that the Vietnamese are a tyrannical people that you would want others here to escape it. If you will want others to escape freedom, it is absolutely necessary that this world and in competition with the communist the chance for survival with the increase of the number of free nations.

It is for this latter reason more than any other that America has a right to be in Vietnam. To ignore the Communist domination of any country is to court disaster.

Before we forget, let us recall that isolationism already has been exposed as a failure.

"It’s no use of our weaknesses what goes on in the world, that we had to stand on the point in the U.S. once. That’s what they said when the Japanese occupied Korea, and they still were saying it when Japan conquered China.

They stopped saying it one morning when Americans wrote to their friends to bomb all of the people in Japan. They stopped saying it for a while, at least Americans who are aviation interests would be heard. He said: "All things have been found out, but some have been forgotten.

They stopped saying it for a week, at least America who are aviation interests would be heard. He said: "All things have been found out, but some have been forgotten."

Citizens are ready, in every free nation, to stand to the colors and die in the big war billed as the one that will save mankind. But they do not want to serve on the far frontiers where it seems to them that they are dying for someone else’s benefit.

It is a credit to America in a way. Only a nation that is determined to preserve world peace will be found hammering away at the gates of the frontiers. The communists have no such determination. They say that the free world’s nuclear strength prohibits an attack.

Two million persons died in the Korean War, but the frontier was held and now millions are still free in South Korea. Two million persons died in the Korean War, but the frontier was held and now millions are still free in South Korea.

But even though a war on the frontiers never seems acceptable, as long as we in America, can public, we must realize its necessity in a world where power blocs exist and in a world, at least, in rapid and sorry failure.

We must learn to appreciate the sacrifice of the young men who were the far frontier wars as much as we do for our soldiers who die in the big wars.

Rocky Snyder, Ronald Fitch and Jim Peltier was a waste. Some say that America has a right to be in Vietnam, but we are wrong when the sacrifice is not worth the sacrifice.

Then is not a popular war, and it will be begun.
