ST JOHNS VFW and Auxiliary to celebrate anniversary
On May 31 at 6:15 pm at the St. Johns VFW and Auxiliary will have a program to celebrate the 39th anniversary of the organization.

REGULATION AND TRUCKING

Some feel that the regulated transportation service is the best way to provide such services.

It is argued that the regulated method provides a safer and more efficient way to transport goods and passengers.

The regulated system ensures that companies are subject to certain standards and regulations.

However, opponents argue that the regulated system is too expensive and that it stifles competition.

They argue that the market should be allowed to work, and that prices should be determined by supply and demand.

The regulated system, they say, makes it difficult for new companies to enter the market.

A deregulated system, they argue, would allow for a greater variety of services and lower costs.

DeWitt Twp Board passes motions

In accordance with Michigan law, they may no longer physically locate their dispensary so as to avoid a city ordinance. As noted above, any number of those who attended the hearing expressed concern that the location of the dispensary would have a detrimental effect on the quality of life in the community.

In the end, the board approved the proposed location of the dispensary, citing the need for increased access to medical marijuana and the benefits of medical marijuana for patients with certain medical conditions.

Ovid woman to attend national VFW conference

The VFW Auxiliary Branches throughout the country are participating in an insurance program for all registered members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said Mary Ann Backus, Raymer, who is the state president of the Auxiliary, in an interview with the Detroit Mercury.

She said the program was designed to help veterans who have been disabled as a result of their service to the nation. The program provides comprehensive coverage for all types of injuries and illnesses, including mental health issues.

Mrs. Backus said the program is available to all members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and their families. She emphasized the importance of enrolling in the program to ensure that veterans and their families have the necessary coverage in case of a medical emergency.

The insurance program is administered by the American Veterans' Aid Association (AVAA). It offers coverage for hospitalization, medical expenses, long-term care, and other essential services. The program is designed to provide financial assistance to veterans and their families during times of need.

Mrs. Backus encouraged all veterans and their families to enroll in the program to secure their financial well-being and peace of mind.

The American Veterans' Aid Association can be contacted at 1-800-333-VFWA (8382) or visit their website at www.avaa.org to learn more about the program and how to enroll.
President and Mrs Ford may not be among the 26 million Americans putting in home vegetable gardens this year—somehow, they still manage to get around to carrying out the White House’s own infallible gardening advice. But at least five or six million other Americans will be trying to add to and be the first time gardeners.

All the home-grown tilting has only partly to do with inflation and the higher cost of food, or recession and the angrier wallet to pay for it. True, there is a trend in America to do more with their own hands, to be outdoors, and to value the ways and products of nature.

However, if we read a recent Department of Agriculture survey of consumer attitudes correctly, the big impetus behind gardening and other such activities is the "rubber tomato".

On all grounds—texture, taste, ripeness, price—the supermarket cooked tomato just doesn’t cut it. And many Americans simply don’t want their children to grow up never having tasted a real tomato.

This Vocational Skill Training Program was started in the fall of 1972 for students from area high schools, who wished to gain entry in the building and construction occupations.

The schools that send students to the program share in the cost of the program, issue home high school credit and furnish transportation. A Vocational Certificate is issued to those students, who successfully completed the program.

Chloe's Column
What can you do in one day

Chloe Podgiti

Are you wanting to wonder what you can do in one day? Well, don't worry, the answer is over 24 hours. If you are wanting to fill your day with activities and fun, I've got the perfect plan for you.

For Clinton County 4-H News will be on hand to discuss植被管理. There will be demonstrations on soil tests and mulch. We will also be discussing the dangers of common weeds and how to control them. We will be joined by the Green Acres 4-H Club. They will be there to provide updates on the 4-H Forest and Conservation program. The 4-H Forest will be open to the public.

This is a great opportunity to learn about the natural world and how we can help protect it. Remember, we all have a role to play in preserving our environment.

Join us for a day of fun and learning. See you there!
