Meet Clair Stevens of Riley

He’s still fiddlin’ around... at 90

Clair Stevens is in his 90th year. For the past five years he’s been pulling together a collection of his violin collection and enjoying every minute of it.

"It’s right where I want it now," he says. "We’re going to do it, for sure." The collection includes violins from the 14th century to the present day, and it’s all going to be on display at the Clinton County Museum on Saturday, June 17.

Charge manslaughter in 14th traffic death

A Lansing woman is being charged with manslaughter in the death of a Motor City bystander. The woman, a 27-year-old Lansing resident, is accused of causing the death of a 22-year-old Lansing man who was struck by a car while crossing the street.

Service section response good

The service section of this newspaper has responded well to the challenges of the past year. The section has been able to maintain a steady pace of production, and the staff has worked hard to ensure that the section continues to be a valuable resource for our readers.

A success story

Despite the fact that the Manchester Union has been faced with several challenges in recent years, the newspaper has managed to maintain a strong reputation among its readers. The newspaper has been able to attract new subscribers, and it has also been able to retain many of its existing subscribers.

Preliminary allocation draws fire

The Clinton County allocation list for the 2023 budget year has been released, and it has drawn some criticism from local residents. The list includes a number of changes from the previous year, and some residents are concerned about the impact these changes will have on the community.

“Positive approach” to city problems urged

We must face the facts. We have to give a damn about something before we can be expected to face the facts on the serious problems that have plagued us for some time now. This is the key to the success of any city. When faced with these problems, we must face them directly and not try to avoid them.

The general trend has been to avoid these problems, but we must face them head on. We must face the problems of pollution, crime, and poverty. We cannot ignore these problems. We must face them and work to solve them.

The only way to solve these problems is to face them head on. We must face the problems of pollution, crime, and poverty. We cannot ignore these problems. We must face them and work to solve them.

The only way to solve these problems is to face them head on. We must face the problems of pollution, crime, and poverty. We cannot ignore these problems. We must face them and work to solve them.

How Much Of Your Money Will Uncle Sam Inherit?

The Importance of a Will

Through the years, we have seen numerous families, benefiting from a well-drawn and kept up-to-date will. Also, we have seen families suffer undue hardship and waste of money, because their estate was not properly planned.

There are two basic reasons why you should have a will:

1. To provide for the benefit of your family in the event of your death.
2. To provide for the proper distribution of your estate after your death.

A will is a legal document that allows you to designate who will inherit your assets and how those assets will be distributed.

Your will can be as simple or as complex as your needs require. It can be written in your own words, or may be drafted by a qualified attorney.

California is one of the leading states in the nation when it comes to estate planning, and it is important to make sure that your will is properly drafted and updated periodically.

Contact a qualified attorney in your area to discuss your options for estate planning, and to ensure that your wishes are properly reflected in your will.

Advantages of a will include:

1. It allows you to control the distribution of your assets.
2. It can provide for the care of your minor children.
3. It can reduce the amount of inheritance tax you will have to pay.

Remember, it's never too late to start planning for the future. Contact a qualified attorney today to learn more about the benefits of a will.

Smorgasbord ends Elsie club year

ELsie—Mrs. Robert Dornan announced the end of the Elsie Library Club when it met Monday night. The club serves a total of 200 members and has operated for the past 22 years. The club will have its final meeting Thursday evening with a program of a tour of the library and its facilities. The club was formed by Mrs. Dornan and Mrs. Ruby Walker, who have been active members since the beginning.

There will be a special program for the library, including a reading of the library's history and the opening of the new library. The club will also have a special presentation of the library's art collection.

The club has been active in the community, sponsoring several events and programs throughout the year. The club has also been active in the promotion of library services and the support of the library.

The club will hold its final meeting Thursday evening at 7 p.m. at the library. All members are invited to attend.

Once king's domain, Beaver Island now
vacationers' retreat

A foreign king, a feudal system and an island knight are all connected to the history of Beaver Island, a former colony of Jesse Strang, CountFeodora

Strang was a prominent figure in the 19th century. Despite the small population,
Strang was able to control the island from Charlevoix in northern Michigan. His metaphorical "kingdom" included the island,
which he renamed to honor his origin.

Island was so named because of its strategic location on old maps. It looked like a beaver's head, which was the inspiration for the island's name.

Sand of time turned back at Michilimackinac

Strang's own colony who shot and killed the fort's defenders. The fort, built in 1780 as a command post for the British during the American Revolution, was abandoned by the soldiers, fur trappers and traders who had made it their home. The fort and its inhabitants, along with 60 of their horses and cattle, were spared.

Strang was a member of the Shakers, a sect founded by John and Ann Mumford. The Shakers were known for their communal lifestyle, simple living, and religious beliefs. They settled in New York State in the late 18th century and later expanded to other parts of the United States.

The British took control of the fort in 1796 after defeating the American forces in the Battle of Fallen Timbers. They continued to use the fort as a military base until 1815, when it was abandoned.

The fort is now a museum and historic site, offering visitors a glimpse into the past. It is open to the public for tours and educational programs.

The fort and its surrounding areas have been well-preserved, allowing visitors to experience the history of Michilimackinac Point and the role it played in the struggle for American independence.
Sands of time turned back at Michilimackinac

Barron W. Tatum, commander of the 2nd Infantry, was finally forced by the governor to resign his commission.

The resolution created quite a stir, and it was debated in the Congress. The new government was not strong enough to prevent the disbanding of the army. The Indian war was on, and Rogers was captured.

Rogers was brought to Fort Michilimackinac, but his reception was a failure and he was later burned.

He was later burned.

The fort is much more popular today than it was two centuries ago, and will be a place of interest for many years to come.

Fort Michilimackinac is open throughout the summer months. Summer visitors can see his- torical displays of early Michilimackinac, and dioramas depict life as it was during the fur trading season. The fort is a popular tourist attraction in the "un-coverlng." Excellent highway system; Inter- state 96 runs through the peak of the fur trading season.

New Tomorrow

"I had time tonight, I might be a bit frightened. But just now, there's time to feel only excited and happy. It's funny... when you're a little kid, it means as if you go to school forever. Then all of a sudden, It's graduation night, and you know that this is an end and a beginning all at once.

Mom and Dad will be out in the audience, and so will Dan. He sent me these roses. Our minister will... But just now, there's time to feel only excited and happy.

Michigan's food production ability big asset to state

As the Michigan Chronicle says, "The Michigan farmer growers and makers have an abundance of products produced in a large volume."

In 1967, Michigan farmers produced 11.8 million tons of produce, representing an average of about 56 acres per operator. This is an increase of 8.8 million tons from 1954, when Michigan farms produced only 30.6 million tons of produce. The increase in production has been due to a number of factors, including improved farming practices, increased use of fertilizers and pesticides, and better weather conditions.

Michigan's food production is a significant asset to the state. The state is a leading producer of cherries, cucumbers, and pickles. In 1967, Michigan produced 1,176,400 tons of pickles, which is about 10 percent of the nation's total production.

This is Michigan Week. During this week, the state is promoting its agricultural products and encouraging people to eat more Michigan-grown produce. The Michigan Agriculture Council is a key player in this effort, and it is working to increase the awareness of Michigan's food production around the country.

Michigan has a long history of agricultural production. In fact, the state was one of the first to provide a system of State Income Tax, changes in which it has in Michigan.

How much extra nitrogen does corn need?

This is one of the most important questions you have to answer. It can determine your profits.

Bargaining power is the ability to get the other seller to accept your terms. To increase bargaining power a seller (or buyer) needs control and command over one or more factors that influence price and income. Bargaining power may be used to raise the bargaining power of your firm or to get the other seller to accept your terms of sale or purchase.

How successful a negotiator are you? Are you aware of the factors that influence your bargaining position? Are you able to influence decisions and conditions of a sale that are more advantageous for you? Do you have control of a product's price? Can you influence the price of a product that you do not control? Can you influence the price of a product that you do control?

A few simple steps can help you to improve your bargaining power in your next negotiation. For example, you can:

1. Control of production or supply. A product with a limited number of producers in a concentrated area has greater control over its price and can negotiate for better terms. You can control your production in such a way.

2. Few substitute products. A product with no substitutes on the market is stronger in its bargaining position.

3. Availability of product. A product that is produced in large quantities is more available and can negotiate for better terms.

4. Lack of loyalty to the seller. A product that is used infrequently or rarely is more likely to negotiate for better terms.

5. Availability of information. If you have complete information about the seller's production costs, you can negotiate for better terms.

These factors can influence your bargaining position and can help you to secure better terms in your next negotiation.

What is bargaining power?

Bargaining power is the ability to get the other seller to accept your terms. To increase bargaining power a seller (or buyer) needs control and command over one or more factors that influence price and income. Bargaining power may be used to raise the bargaining power of your firm or to get the other seller to accept your terms of sale or purchase.

In the next meeting will be Monday, June 17th, at 9:00 am. E. Blackwell Chemicals, a wholesaler of stabilizing chemicals in Florida, has in Michigan.

P-W FFA workshop representatives selected.

By DIANE HUHN

The P-W FFA has drawn its top six officers for the 1968 school year. They are President Carol George, Vice President Mary Lou Keilen, Secretary Sandy Wickerham, and Treasurer Steve Tarra. The other four officers are Secretary/Treasurer Nickie Sanderson, Junior Officer Kathy Davis, and Seniors Officer Lois Miller.

The election of officers took place on May 16 at the P-W High School. In the election, juniors and seniors were eligible to vote for the current Seniors Officer and for up to three Jr/Sr officers. Those elected were Kathy Davis, Lois Miller, and Steve Tarra.

The election of officers took place during the P-W FFA's annual meeting, which was held on May 14 at the P-W High School. During the meeting, the new officers were installed, and the FFA's annual report was presented.

7 youths get a break from the law

Four youths got a break from the law and their "sisters" were formed for the student body, the group received their state degree, the highest degree they can attain, for their work in the FFA. On May 14 the eighth grade was assigned a "big sister" and their "sisters" were expected to tell them about FFA.

On May 23 the school council presented their state degree to the seniors of the school's FFA organization, a very high rank of honor that is conferred to the worthy corps. All in grades of the school were eligible to be selected for the honor, but only those in the upper grades received it.

The honor was presented to them in a ceremony held at the school, and they were presented with the state degree certificate and other insignia that represent their recognition.

The physical science classes also presented their state degree certificates to the seniors of the school's FFA organization on May 23.

The annual meeting will be held on May 30 in the FFA's long history. Those who have been working on the project for over a year will be recognized, as the students and teachers who are members of the FFA will be present to receive their state degrees. The seniors will also receive their state degrees.

FOR SAFETY'S SAKE

By DIAKE HUHN

P-W High School students and teachers are being given a whole new look at safety. The seniors will be required to take a course in safety education, which will be offered as an elective course during the summer. The course will be taught by a member of the school's faculty, and it will cover topics such as traffic safety, fire safety, and general safety.

The course will be offered during the summer, and it will be required of all seniors. The course will be held on the last day of school, and it will begin at 8 a.m. and end at 5 p.m. The seniors will be expected to attend the course, and they will be tested on their knowledge of safety at the end of the course.
