Letters to the Editor

Support milkage

Dear Editor:

As I see the earth being plowed on fields, and crops are planted in the spring, I can't help but see an analogy between farming and education. The farmer must fertilize, water and use sunshine to make his crop grow. If he doesn't do this, he'll suffer. Similarly we can't neglect education. They need fertilizer, water and sunshine to make them grow.

Sincerely,

[Name]

Gunnisonville receives state historical dedication May 15

The Gunnisonville, now known as DeWitt Township, was the first town in Clinton County, Michigan. The post office was established in 1838. Today, it is a small community with a population of around 1,500 people. Gunnisonville was once a thriving farming community, but like many other small towns, it has seen a decline in recent years. The Gunnisonville Historical Society has been working to preserve the town's history and culture, and they have recently received state recognition for their efforts. The dedication ceremony will take place at the Gunnisonville Church, which is located at the corner of Main Street and US 27. The ceremony will begin at 10:00am and will include speeches, music, and a reception afterwards. The public is invited to attend and celebrate this important moment in DeWitt Township's history.

POISONING DANGERS AT GARDEN CENTER

June 26, 1976

Poisoning is a threat to nature lovers who visit garden centers. Many plants can be poisonous if ingested, but the most dangerous are those that contain the compound pyrethrin. Pyrethrin is found in many garden plants, such as chrysanthemums and daisies. It is commonly used as a pesticide, but it can also be found in some garden products, such as fertilizers and soil amendments. It is important to always read the label of any product before using it, and to keep all such products out of reach of children and pets. In case of poisoning, seek medical attention immediately.

Stored fabrics subject to damage

Navigating winter clothing presents several challenges and can require careful attention to keep them in good condition. Fabrics used for winter clothing are often made of materials that are delicate and prone to damage, such as wool, cashmere, and silk. To prevent damage, it's important to follow proper storage techniques. Here are some recommendations:

1. Dry Cleaning: If possible, dry clean your winter clothing to remove any dirt or perspiration that may have accumulated during the fall season. This will help prevent mold and mildew growth.

2. Cradle Storage: Use a cradle to store your winter clothing, ensuring that it's flat and not folded. This will help prevent wrinkles and damage to the fabric.

3. Hanging Clothing: Hang your winter clothing in a warm, dry location away from direct sunlight. Avoid hanging it near heat sources to prevent shrinkage and damage to the fabric.

4. Storing Seasonally: Store your winter clothing in a cool, dry place during the summer months to prevent damage from heat and humidity.

5. Proper Storing: Use the right storage containers, such as boxes or bins, to prevent dust and moisture from settling on your clothing.

By following these tips, you can help ensure that your winter clothing remains in excellent condition year-round.

Tri-County pinpoints river pollution

Most people are aware that pollutants enter the region’s rivers, lakes, and streams through the discharge of raw sewage, industrial waste, storm water, and sewage lagoons, closed and open storm drains, industrial and commercial buildings, and many more storm water discharge points which empty into tributaries of those streams.

By sampling discharge data from specialty laboratories, members of the Tri-County Regional Planning Commission, City Engineers, Michigan Department of Natural Resources, and many other organizations are able to get a clear picture of the types of pollutants entering the region’s waterways.

Most people are aware that the region’s waterways can be polluted at any time by a variety of substances. As a result, the need for a five-county water pollution control program was felt to be necessary.

Tri-County Regional Planning Commission (TCRPC) has compiled a discharge list of all reported sources of pollution entering the region’s waterways. Currently, TCRPC’s lists are adopted by the five counties and include over 1,000 discharge points which empty into the Sanilac, Huron, Saginaw, Huron, and Lake Huron watersheds.

Memorial Day traffic could set record

Memorial Day weekend traffic is expected to be heavy due to travel on 1-75 and 1-94 and US-10 over the four-day weekend. Heaviest traffic over the four-day weekend is expected to be Monday afternoon and Tuesday through Thursday.

The damage estimate was based on ground observation, aerial photography, and aerial photography with digital equipment. The damage estimate was based on ground observation, aerial photography, and aerial photography with digital equipment.

The Environmental Protection Agency regulates the amount of pollutants that could enter the region’s waterways. The primary sources of pollution are the region’s 1-75 and 1-94 highways, and the region’s waterways.

903 W. McConnell St. Johns
In this day and age when the need to bring knowledge to our young people is so important, we, the senior members of the community area, owe a debt of gratitude for the many hours expended by Ken Lashaway, Bob Niemi, Ben Wieber and Dick Vitek in making the vocational department's building projects a reality. We owe thanks, too, to the many local people who served on the Advisory Committee and the school boards of St. Johns, Ovid-Elsie, DeWitt, Pewamo-Westphalia, Fowler and Bath area schools for their farsightedness.

It pleases us here at the bank, to say, "Well Done!" We urge everyone in the community to visit the homes that the high school students of our area built with their own hands. We also are pleased to publicly acknowledge the splendid efforts of anyone else who made the projects the success they have been.
Welcome! Why don't you come in?

Enter into the newly finished house built by 47 members of the St. Johns High School building trades class and see what students are not only learning, but practicing while attending classes.

Most school projects are as extensive as this—but then, how many students undertaking building a house as a school project? Equality, the classes are much like a job. Students report for work at a certain time every day and instead of learning through textbooks, they learn while doing.

One school year’s work has gone into this project, and students can now drive by the house at 903 W. McConnell and say they helped to build that house.

MORE ABOUT THE HOUSE
The colonial-style house contains 1,584 square feet of living space. There are 3 bedrooms, 1 full bath and 2 half baths; a living room facing the road, a kitchen with many built-in appliances, family room with fireplace and a full basement with utility and safety shelter.

What more could a home owner want? The living room is 12' x 19'6" and features two large thermal windows and a swirl plastered ceiling. From the living room, one can walk into the dining area which measures 11' x 12' and is decorated with a tiny colonial gold and rust wallpaper.

A unique open hearth brick enclosure over the range is one highlight featured in the kitchen. The built-in wine rack, pull-out shelves, fruitwood stained cupboards and harvest gold built-in oven, range, and dishwasher—all compliment each other and make for an ideal working kitchen.

The sunken family room measures 15' x 16' and features a full hearth fireplace, rough sawn trim, mantle and ceiling beams. Sliding glass thermal doors lead from the family room onto a cement patio in the back yard.

All 3 bedrooms are located in the western portion of the house, with the master bedroom measuring 16' x 19'6". It is wired for telephone and for color television.

THE UNITED WAY
The United States, with the highest crime rate in the world, has the harshest laws and the longest sentences, according to the National Council on Crime and Delinquency (NCCD), a member service of the United Way of Michigan. NCCD also says that 16 per cent of the people in jail are awaiting trial and that 200,000 children are in jail for offenses for which an adult would not be incarcerated.
Step back into history and into the kitchen

The quaint open hearth cooking is revived in the McConnell Street home, in the colonial-styled kitchen.

Above the built-in range top, is one of the unique features of this home—an old-fashioned real red brick open hearth. The "fireplace" design is arched and completely covers the range and black slate counter top which enables the cook of the house to place cooking utensils and foods to be prepared close to the range for easy accessibility.

Next to the open hearth is a built-in oven with electric timer so meals can be baked safely, even while the cook is out of the house on an errand or in the backyard enjoying the sunshine. All kitchen built-in appliances are of harvest gold.

Another interesting feature of the hearth area in a built-in wine rack which can store favorite bottles of the bubbly or sauterne to be used in making French cuisine favorites.

Lots of cupboard space is also another feature of this kitchen. The cupboards, of knotty pine with a fruitwood stain, are finished in a warm colonial style that complements the rest of the kitchen. A set of roll out shelves is located below the range, with each wide shelf able to be pulled out individually. This eliminates excess bending and searching for an item which is located at the back of a cupboard where there is usually no light to see the item.

Across the kitchen from the hearth area are a built-in dishwasher and double steel sink with disposal. A chopping block-style counter top gives the appearance that the large counter space is made of wood, while it is actually made of durable laminated plastic.

A tiny-gold and rust-print wallpaper covers the kitchen soffits and adjoining dining room walls, providing unity between the two areas. A rust stained short pile kitchen carpet flows throughout the two areas.

The kitchen is 10' x 11' and the dining area is 11' x 12'. Wood-grained baseboards and casings also carry out the colonial theme.

A quiet neighborhood will greet the new owners

Located just north of the high school at 903 W. McConnell Street, this new home is situated in one of the nicest residential areas of the city.

The house is located on a 105' x 148' yard which will feature a sodded front yard, a seeded back yard and a cement driveway.

The outside of the house will require little maintenance—as there is a brick front, aluminum siding and one-piece aluminum eaves troughs which will eliminate leaks.

The two-car garage measures 22' x 28' deep and is plastered inside. There are 2 service entrances to the garage and a 16' overhead garage door can enclose the 2 cars and a work bench comfortably.

"Sink' into the family room

From the dining area, one can "sink" down into the 15' x 16' sunken family room which extends from the house into the backyard.

Attention is focused upon the full-hearth red brick fireplace with a rough sawn mantle which complements the rough sawn ceiling beam and criss-cross wall trim. A short incline which can be used for a seat extends the whole length of the wall on which the fireplace is located.

Sliding thermal glass doors dominate one of the walls of the family room, with the doors opening up onto a cement patio. A wooden spindel divider separates the family and dining rooms, promoting an openness throughout the kitchen, dining, and family room areas.

The ceiling of the family room has been sprayed with glitter and glistens when the sun or evening lights strike it. The new owners of this house will also be happy to know that the family room has already been wired for color television by the high school electronics class.

Bathroom facilities are convenient

- There are 3 bathroom areas in the McConnell Street home, with the full-sized master bathroom and a half-bath being located on the main floor, while a half-bath is located in the basement.

  The master bath is located between the dining and bedroom areas and it has been decorated with the colonial theme in mind. The vanity features 2 white porcelain sinks built into a colonial-styled wooden cupboard.

  A wide marbleized tub enclosure provides additional elegance to the bath area which is carpeted in a rich gold carpeting.

  The toilet is located in the back of the bath, with wooden stained spindles dividing the toilet area from the vanity.

  One of the safety features installed into the master bath is a non-skid bathtub.

  If the master bath is occupied, there are always 2 other half-baths available. One of the half-baths is conveniently located between the garage and the kitchen. Dirty hands can easily be washed in this kitchen without having to trek through the rest of the house.

  If the homeowner is playing pool or doing the laundry downstairs, another half-bath in the basement can be used without having to climb any steps to the main floor.

- The 2 other half-baths available are located in the garage and the basement, respectively.

  The garage entranceway which enters into the kitchen and a set of sliding glass doors which separate the backyard patio from the family room.

  The family room is carpeted in a rich gold carpeting. A quiet formal relaxing atmosphere can prevail in this living room while delicious scents of an evening’s meal float through the room from the nearby kitchen.

  Visitors can also enter into this home through a garage entranceway which leads into the kitchen and a set of sliding glass doors which separate the backyard patio from the family room.

  There are actually 3 entrances into the McConnell Street house, but let’s enter the front door first. A large covered porch protects the caller while he or she stands at the steel-clad thermal front door.

  When inside the front door, one finds oneself in a short entrance hallway which opens up into a 13' x 19'6" living room. The spacious living room is located in the northeast portion of the house and two large 4' x 5' thermal colonial windows look onto the front yard at McConnell Street.

Features
storm shelter

Beneath this spacious house is located a full basement, which features a utility room and a crawl-space below the sunken family room.

The basement has been built 12 blocks high for extra headroom and is ideal for a playroom, recreation room or storage space, whatever the homeowners desires may be.

On the north end of the basement is located a storm shelter which is actually built below the front porch. The storm shelter is made of reinforced cinder blocks and would provide protection in the event of a tornado.

Located in another portion of the basement is a 150-amp electrical service panel. A special ground fault interrupter has been built into the panel to protect the residents from accidental electrocution.

This device trips the power in the event of a short circuit for instance, caused by a radio accidentally falling into a bathtub.

Just a minute amount of fault is needed to trip the power. In the mentioned case of the radio falling into the bathtub, the person taking a bath would probably receive a slight shock, but would not receive the same jolt had this ground fault interrupter not been installed.

Installing a portion of the heating system is Carl Pettit.

Six down and another planned

The McConnell Street house is the 6th house that the St. Johns High School building trades classes have built and they're not going to stop building houses after this one is completely finished, either.

Every year, students construct one house from start to finish. They draw up the plans, they install the gas line, wire the furnace, do the duct work and, in short do all of the work.

Forty-seven students have had a hand in constructing the McConnell Street house. They broke ground in September and worked throughout the school year. They now are culminating their work with the Open House.

Actually, 3 classes work on the house project. The building trades class builds the house under the direction of Bob Niemi, vocational instructor. The electronics and electrical trades classes under the supervision of David Birdsley installs the television antenna and wiring throughout the house. And, then the home management classes under the direction of Mrs. Grace Ormston selects the paint, carpeting, wallpaper and light fixtures for the house.

Next year's house is already on the planning board. It is tentatively set to be built on a lot at Lansing and Sturgis Streets. It will be a ranch home and will be smaller than the McConnell Street home, due to the increasing costs of materials.

Working with the sliding glass doors which lead from the family room to the outside patio is Joel Henning.
