Don’t ignore the "plus" side
As the Watergate investigation becomes more involved much of the feeling in this area is, "I’m getting sick of hearing about it."
We suppose this could be a justified reaction from a public unable to escape the charges, counter charges, denials and countersignals on front pages of our daily newspapers.
Regardless of the outcome of the hearings and investigations, this activity is an example of our system of government at work.
We can be thankful we don’t live in a country where the entire situation would not be allowed to become public knowledge.
For we do live in a nation where the press is not controlled to the extent that it is merely a mouthpiece for the controlling powers.
If other nations may look at us with that, “It’s all messed up here,” we can take heart in a government with the ability to recognize and face a flaw in the system.
While we shake our heads thinking, "what’s this country coming to?" let’s also be thankful to know it’s a nation where the red tape and form, the travail of the 20th century process of making something happen, is not the end of the story. There are people who care and who want to help.

You can do almost anything in Washington. For instance, you might try to make your adopted son really rich by letting him buy an old, used car and then trade it in a few months for a nineteen hundred dollar new car.

For description of her exactly we’ll leave that up to John R. Bennett of the House, whose 11 daughters are a triumph to their parents and his.

Memorial rites for 30 passengers of the United Airlines flight that crashed in the North Atlantic April 1 were held Friday night in the John Hay Library that was built in 1947 under the direction of the U.S. Department of State.

A wedding is not just a union of two people, but of two families, according to a happy couple who made the drive from 300 miles away. Their daughter, Miss Patsy Donovan, was married to Mr. John Johnson, Jr., and the reception was held at the Elks Club.

The first resignation and 3rd wedding of the year was that of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, who have been married for 20 years. The ceremony was performed by Judge John Doe in the courthouse on Main Street.

Several newsmen have suggested DeLorean’s talents could open grand new avenues for both him and the world. If so, this could be a complete job of in-depth reporting when the world is ready for the story.

But he has also gained some things. At age 31 he got his first wife, whom he married in 1967. She is a nurse, and they have a daughter, Sarah. The couple lives in a house on the outskirts of town. They have a dog, a cat, and some fish. They are very happy together.

"I’d like you to meet my husband," the woman said.
