South Watertown

By Mel Bruce Hodges

The South Watertown School recently held a science fair, and the students were encouraged to share their projects with the community. The projects ranged from simple experiments to more complex demonstrations, and the students were proud to present their work to their peers and the public.

The South Watertown School also has a new principal, Mr. William James. He has been working hard to improve the school's educational programs and to create a positive learning environment for all students.

The South Watertown School has recently developed a new program for students who are interested in pursuing careers in the arts. The program includes classes in drama, music, and visual arts, and it is designed to provide students with the skills and knowledge they need to succeed in their chosen fields.

The young men of St. Johns High School who are in the service were the subject of several stories in the column last week, and there is no doubt that the news items about them will continue to be a topic of conversation in the future. However, this week's column will contain a few stories that are not directly related to the school, but that are important to the community as a whole.

The seniorCHARTER 1967 began a new year for our school, and with the new year comes new challenges and opportunities. The students are excited to start a new year, and are looking forward to all that the future holds.

The most important thing in Vietnam is mail

Today he received no mail. Maybe he really thought about home. Did you ever see the sparkle in his eye? He is hopeful. He looks into the sky and takes a deep breath of fresh air. He can laugh, cry, joke and go on with his life. He is alive again, he can laugh, cry, joke and go on. Today he received no mail. He is alive again, he can laugh, cry, joke and go on. Today he received no mail. He is alive again, he can laugh, cry, joke and go on.

The blood stream that keeps them going,

They are healthy, they are happy. The best thoughts probably are "I Hope I get mail."

Russian roulette

... on the road

With the summer holidays in full swing, the pressure on holidaymakers will be increasing every day with holidaymakers. A disturbing large number of these motorists and their passengers will never reach the beaches, the mountains and other holiday centres, and of those who do get there, a large proportion will not get back home. They will finish up in a hospital bed . . . or worse.

The latest statistics show a record number of road accidents in this mainastive variant for Russian roulette. The best one can hope is a slight reduction, but even that would not be an improvement on the previous year's figures.

Predictors of death often say: "Well, the blame on the authorities for failing to improve a road here, straighten a dangerous traffic light at a bad junction or do something about an insidious black spot."

No doubt, this is true up to a point, and it is important to do everything possible to reduce the number of accidents, but this fact should not be allowed to obscure the overwhelming reason for the ghastly toll.

It cannot be repeated too often that the motorist himself is the prime cause of accidents—his failure to obey the rules, his failure to drive within his own ability, his failure to release his own personality on the road. We are very fallible, and prone to silly mistakes. Nevertheless each man every time he sits in the driving seat must remember that the road is there as it is humanly possible.

Increased costs of operation in the form of speed limits, police patrols and vehicle checks are inevitable. It is essential, though, that such a campaign be accompanied by rebuffed efforts to bring home to the motorist that the question of life and death is very large in his own hands.

When a motorist complies at the high cost of motor vehicle insurance, he is usually thinking of a term of profit prearranged for reaping benefits which may not be available to him if he fails to drive with the necessary caution, and that may occur in an instant.

Service stations with particular reference to the nationally organized station groups, such as the Motorist Association, which are now going strong, are demonstrating to the motorist the importance of safety and the value of the motorist himself.

The service stations are also giving the motorist a chance to keep up to date with road conditions and other information which is important to him.

DEPT, FREIGHT HOUSE CREW 1922

About 45 years ago these folks who worked at the Grand Trunk Railroad depot and freight house in St. Johns took time out from their work to have their picture taken, and today this copy of it is in the possession of Lester Lake. That's his father, Clarence Lake, at the left in the top row, and the late Henry Bulk at the bottom right. The girl in the center is Janine Black. Beyond that, Lake could not identify the others in the picture.

Although yellow fever can be prevented with an effective vaccine, it still requires a special preparation, and the vaccine is only given to persons who are over 10 years of age. It is not given to children under 10 years of age. The reason for this is that the vaccine does not protect children under 10 years of age.
