Bruce Volmar Studies LAMPREY

Bruce Volmar, Fish biologist from the Department of Natural Resources at the Roselake Research Center, demonstrated fish shocking procedures to a group of 4-H members who came up with this lamprey in the Stoney Creek (near Wixom Road bridge) in Fowler. Conservationists are becoming concerned over the presence of this lamprey in inland waters. The lamprey attaches itself to the side of a fish and can eventually kill it. At maturity they ascend streams to breed. They may remain in sterilized state and can grow to a length of 15 cm. The lamprey is uncommon for this area. Those interested in conservation of lamprey should contact the Extension Office.

Clinton 4-H chapter

The Clinton County 4-H chapter held a day of theラインセイク, conserving plants and animals, while learning about conservation. The 4-H chapter used the location of the Stoney Creek (near DeWitt Road bridge) in Fowler to demonstrate fish shocking procedures. The lamprey was found in the Stoney Creek near the Wixom Road bridge in Fowler. Conservationists are becoming concerned with the presence of this lamprey in inland waters. The lamprey attaches itself to the side of a fish and can eventually kill it. At maturity they ascend streams to breed then die. It has also been a serious destruc- tive pest of native fish found in the Great Lakes.

Food standards are somewhat like recipe

By HELLEN S. MACH

Extension Home Economist

Food standards are somewhat like recipe. The basic ingredients—sugar, flour, salt, yeast—must be present in the right amounts and quantities. If there is too much flour or not enough yeast, the dough will not rise properly. Just as in cooking, the homemaker can be sure that these basic standards are met if the bread is baked correctly. A look at the second column published by the Ohio State University, shows how the ingredients are used. Each column represents one of the basic ingredients that must be added at the start of the process. In the second column, the homemaker will learn the amounts of flour, sugar, yeast, and salt needed to make the loaf of bread. The columns also show how the different ingredients combine to form the final product.

Highways, superhighways, turnpikes, freeways, expressways—they connect America, heading in every imaginable direction. And they get you there so fast, you can put the right exit before you know it. We live in such a speed-oriented world that when we are waiting, we feel out of sorts. "Hurry up and relax," as they say, is what we often feel.

We don't really like the rush pace. We speak hopefully of peace of mind and quietude, and we take tranquillizers by the tablet. We speak hopefully of "time out," or "time out of mind," and we feel tranquillity is hard to find.

Perhaps we are seeking too hard. Perhaps tranquillity is not to be sought. Rather, isn't it what happens when you are at peace with yourself, no matter the circumstance?

The key is to be at peace with yourself only when you are at peace with God. He is the very center of your being, and His grace is forever given when you accept it.

Accept this great gift of God in the very best place of all—His Church.

A sensible pursuit

Civic forces are gathering momentum with impact directed toward Tuesday July 13. That is the day when St. John’s residents have an opportunity to indicate that a resource such as the St. John’s City Commissions should take on the question of a county income tax. While the question itself, along with the vote, is of great importance, there is an element of the issue which should, and does, hold even greater significance. That element is personal attitudes. Let’s not allow ourselves to cast shadows of hostility or resentment over the issue, the result of the vote by those with whom we might disagree. There is much value in wholesomely disagree or disapprove, but the merits are lost under the labors of a grudge.

St. John’s as a city is in the unique position of being short of finances and, as in the case of individual families, such a situation tends to increase heat and lower boiling points. It is a time when proposals are many, solutions are elusive and the effectiveness of any decision cannot truly be evaluated. Proposals of various recommendations must, indeed, support their beliefs, but only time itself will reveal the collective merits of the final action.

We have indicated a preference and we feel it to be a most expedient, but fair and effective, we are not oblivious to the interested dangers of losing perspective of the final task that is being a sound community with firm finesses and friendly plans.

There is so room, regardless of the depth of the difficulty, for resentment. That is the day when St. Johns residents changed the passage of time and can leave wounds far deeper than those which may be caused by financial difficulties.

Role of advertising

An official of the National Newspaper Assn. remarked, "Advertising with a capital 'A',” has taken an unexcelled behest at the hands of the merchants in recent years.” The consumer, he points out, say advertising to the consumer with so much useful information.

The truth is that advertising contains a staggering amount of product information, beginning with each elemental fact as so where an item is 2nd, what is mission, etc., the advertisements are usually filled with detailed information that enables purchaser and seller to come to a meeting of minds, and thus keep our entire free market economic system rolling along in high gear.

The association official touched on a phase of advertising with which the public has little familiarity—the policy guides which determine acceptance or rejection of advertising by newspapers. In practice, the self-regulation of advertising content by the newspapers is a more effective safeguard against fraud or deception than any mountain of laws. Yet, it is carried on as a mountain of laws. Yet, it is carried on under the eye of consumerists in recent years.’!

15. That is the day when St. John’s residents had a party, what a noise! The first thing that I did was to—shut up! Then I got married. Next came the baby (baby Dick Jr.). Then we moved to a house in St. Paul (the house where I now live). I got a job in the factory (where I now work). I got a loan of $500 (the loan that I have to pay off). I got a car (the car that we have had for years). I got a job (the job that I have now). I got a wife (the wife that I have now). I got a dog (the dog that we have now). I got a cat (the cat that we have now). I got a house (the house that we have now). I got a car (the car that we have now). I got a job (the job that we have now). I got a wife (the wife that we have now). I got a dog (the dog that we have now). I got a cat (the cat that we have now). I got a house (the house that we have now).

And so it is. While there are consequences of the first ever advertising, there is one thing that is sure for sure and that is that acceptance of different methods has brought about greater benefits to a woman with 12 children who had migrated to state seeking larger handouts?...Just the other day. . .

OCALA, Fla. (STAR-BANNER): ‘Does the widespread practice of the 87th Congress have the power to try to adjust a hair pin, the law of the land for the law of the land?...

ALBANY, N.Y.: ‘Have you written the boy who was home on leave, for a penny each at Grandma’s? Why was Bill Hubbell. He was going to be a priest until he met a girl. Giving up the law or the priesthood, he has a unique method of disposing of them. The boys who were home on leave, waiting to adjust a hair pin, the law of the land for the law of the land?...

Chief Justice Thomas G. Brennan has called on state legislators to enact a bill to provide for the permanent three-justice panel of state Supreme Court justices that would be created in the 1969 session. The court, he said, would "be a bulwark against the dictates of the majority." The proposed panel would consist of three justices, one of whom would be appointed by the governor and the other two by the members of the Senate and House of Representatives. Brennan said he hoped the bill would be enacted before the end of the legislative session on June 20.

In other court news, a bill was introduced in the Senate by Sen. John O'Connell and Mrs. John O'Connell, both Democrats, to create a new court of public accounts. The court would have the authority to license accountants and to police power over lawyers and accountants. The bill was referred to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

STATE COLLEGE and university campuses have closed ranks against "intentionally discriminatory" policies and practices, saying they will not "substitute" for the "intentionally discriminatory" policies of other institutions. The state's chief justice, the Rev. William Brennan, recently expressed concern about the "intentionally discriminatory" policies of some institutions.

"We will not accord any gray area within the black community," Brennan said. "One of the most important things we can do is to keep open and viable channels for appeal and redress so that people can be free to pursue their own affairs."
