DIGGING FOR BARGAINS

St. Johns merchants will take part in the city’s fall promotion. "Sidewalk Days" will be the big event of the season. The event will run Aug. 1 and 2, with merchants all-out to offer sharp values and to make the area a major shopping center.

The St. Johns city council has decided to use a high school with 1,200 students in the city to head the event. The high school will provide space and facilities for the merchants.

The city council has also decided to have "Sidewalk Days" run for two days instead of one. This is in keeping with the trend of other similar events in the area.

Appoint officials

Mayor Coletta presented Mr. Furry as a candidate for the office of city commissioner. He is currently serving as a council member. Mr. Furry has been serving on the council for the past four years.

TUESDAY, JULY 25, 1968
CLINTON COUNTY NEWS, ST. JOHNS, MICHIGAN

The first of the season's Jaycee sponsored extracurricular events for youth is the annual Jaycee swim meet, which is scheduled to begin Aug. 11. All talks are oriented to stimulating interest in the pool by some of the group's members.

The director, Joe Stiffler, said he was very pleased with the turn out so far and that he was confident the meet would be a success. He said that the plans for the meet were being completed and that the meet would be open to all swimmers who were interested in participating.

Mr. Stiffler said that the meet would be divided into two age groups: ages 15 and under and ages 16 and over. He said that the meet would be held on Aug. 11 and that the swims would be held at the St. Johns Memorial pool.

Postal cutbacks to be felt throughout county

Residents of Clinton County will feel slightly the pinch of the post office cutbacks that will be imposed as part of a government program to reduce the cost of mail delivery. The cutbacks will affect rural and suburban areas as well as urban centers.

Mail will be delivered on a three-day schedule, with mail being picked up on Friday, Saturday, and Monday. This will result in a reduction of mail delivery days by two in most areas, except for larger cities where delivery will remain on all weekdays.

As a result of this change, mail service will be adjusted to conform to deliveries on non-delivery days. Mail will be held at post offices for pick-up and delivery will be made on the next scheduled delivery day.

In addition, mail will no longer be delivered on Saturday, except in a few select areas. This will result in a significant reduction in mail delivery days and will affect a large number of households.

The cutbacks are expected to result in a savings of approximately $100 million for the U.S. Postal Service. However, these savings will be offset by increased costs for processing and sorting mail.

Residents are encouraged to make adjustments to their mail delivery schedules in order to accommodate the changes. Those who are affected by these changes will be notified in advance.

Fabrics that resist oil not far away

By LONNIE SPRAGUE

It seems that there is more to oil than just being a cooking agent. There are numerous applications for oil that may at first seem unrelated to oil. One such application is in the field of textiles. Oil resistant fabrics are becoming increasingly important in various industries where oil exposure is inevitable.

Oil resistant fabrics are typically made from fibers that are treated with special chemicals. These chemicals make the fibers resistant to oil, allowing them to be used in applications where oil exposure is common. The treatments can be permanent or temporary, depending on the application.

One of the most common applications for oil resistant fabrics is in the automotive industry. Oil resistant fabrics are used in the manufacture of oil filters, which are essential for the proper functioning of engines. These fabrics are also used in the production of oil coolers, which help maintain the oil at a constant temperature.

Another application for oil resistant fabrics is in the food processing industry. These fabrics are used in the production of oil press filters, which are used to separate oil from plant or animal matter. Oil resistant fabrics are also used in the production of oil coolers, which help maintain the oil at a constant temperature.

Oil resistant fabrics are also used in the construction industry. These fabrics are used in the production of oil resistant membranes, which are used to seal oil tanks and pipelines. Oil resistant fabrics are also used in the production of oil resistant coatings, which are applied to surfaces to provide protection against oil exposure.

In conclusion, oil resistant fabrics are becoming increasingly important in various industries where oil exposure is inevitable. These fabrics are made from fibers that are treated with special chemicals, which make them resistant to oil. The treatments can be permanent or temporary, depending on the application.

McCurdy Park scene of Black and White Show

County Fair at St. Johns received fourth place ribbon for its gusson under another junior 4-Her.

Prior to the show held by Miss Michigan's Black and White Show, the day opened with the prelims for the Open Class and Junior Classes. The senior exhibition class was open to exhibitors and also to exhibitors not affiliated with the county fair. The junior show featured exhibits by exhibitors not affiliated with the county fair.

The Black and White Show featured a large number of exhibitors, with many entries in the junior and senior classes. The show was held at the hall in the upper part of the county fairgrounds. The senior exhibition class was judged by a panel of judges, who selected the best exhibits in each category.

Many people turned out to see the exhibits and support the exhibitors. The show was a great success, with many interesting and colorful exhibits on display. The Black and White Show is an annual event at the county fair, and is always a highlight of the fair.

Most of us know the qualities we would like to see in others, but only a few try to practice what they preach.

To satisfy their hunger or give a refreshing sense of well-being become the desire of man. Perhaps one of the grandest qualities of man is the desire to give and to receive. There is no satisfaction that can be fully enjoyed by a human spirit except the experience of love. Love is the act of giving. Jesus said that love is the fulfilling of the law. We love what we give. When we look upon the grandeur of nature—when we gaze with awe at a masterwork of art—when we are filled with the awesomeness of the great our minds—then we often wonder about the source of all this beauty.

Undoubtedly, our energy and ability is God. It is He who is the real source of beauty in our culture. Human spirits, to the height of imagination have given the world savoring capital.

Consider Da Vinci's The Last Supper, Consider Handel's Messiah. Consider the magnificence literature of the Holy Bible. Truly some of the very best of man's creations have come as the result of an awareness of God.

Indeed today our culture continues to be touched by the expressions of man's faith in the Eternal. Our churches bring us faith in God which is still a vital source of inspiration and beauty. Let the church work your life. Amen this Sunday and every Sunday.
Eye-level rule won't work for hanging pictures

The old rule that pictures should be hung at eye level just to be eye level is being challenged by the expertise of a noted interior designer.

Margaret Boschettl, specialist with 100% Comfort Design, a home decorating firm, asks: "Does 'eye level' mean where you're standing or sitting?" When you look at a picture, you see a face, not a head or shoulders, she explains.

But she doesn't recommend putting pictures just anywhere.

"Standing where your own face is where the picture is to be hung is not enough, either," Boschettl said. "The eye-bottom rule is to make sure the furniture is in proportion to the size of the picture and the space where it is to be hung."

Instead of putting pictures just anywhere, Boschettl suggests:

1. Main picture in a room is a sofa, lamp or table, or just a single sketch or knickknack. In your own eyes, extend the lines up from the outer edge of the furniture to keep in mind where the eye should rest.

2. Headache is where pictures are in the hallway or to one side of the wall. It is also one part of the whole decorating design to have the furniture in proportion to the space. But she doesn’t recommend putting pictures just anywhere.

3. To make sure the eye level is right, make sure you look at the picture from a sofa, lamp or table, or just a single sketch or knickknack. In your own eyes, extend the lines up from the outer edge of the furniture to keep in mind where the eye should rest.

4. Pictures should be in scale with each other and with furniture lines. Unless the pictures are to be formal, they should be informal and to be eye level. If the pictures are formal, they should be more in scale with the eyes. But she doesn’t recommend putting pictures just anywhere.

5. Pictures should be in scale with each other and with furniture lines. Unless the pictures are to be formal, they should be informal and to be eye level. If the pictures are formal, they should be more in scale with the eyes. But she doesn’t recommend putting pictures just anywhere.

6. Align pictures with each other and with furniture lines. Unless the pictures are to be formal, they should be informal and to be eye level. If the pictures are formal, they should be more in scale with the eyes. But she doesn’t recommend putting pictures just anywhere.

7. Setting the eye level of a picture, either crosswise or up-and-down, is being hung over an extremely large piece of furniture, while informal balance is established when the picture is centered over a small square print over a low table, a small square or oval over a round table or a single table or television set.

8. Decide where to place pictures, either crosswise or up-and-down, is being hung over an extremely large piece of furniture, while informal balance is established when the picture is centered over a small square print over a low table, a small square or oval over a round table or a single table or television set.

Good management highlight of state farm tour on Aug. 1

State management meeting, which affirmative action policies and procedures were among the topics discussed at the 97th Annual Farm Bureau meeting in Lansing, Aug. 1-2.

The meeting was held in the State Farm Building, St. Johns, Mich.

Several resolutions were adopted at the meeting. These resolutions, which reflect the views of the Farm Bureau members of Michigan, will be forwarded to the Michigan Farm Bureau, which represents the views of the members at the state and national level.

The resolutions deal with a variety of issues, including the need for increased funding for state and local programs that support the environment, the importance of conserving natural resources, and the need for improved access to information and resources for farmers and rural communities.

The meeting also featured a presentation by a representative of the Michigan Farm Bureau, who discussed the importance of maintaining a strong relationship between the Farm Bureau and the state government.

The meeting concluded with a discussion of the future of the Michigan Farm Bureau and the role it will play in the coming years.

The meeting was well-attended, with over 1,000 members in attendance.

The next meeting of the Farm Bureau will be held in November, when the Board of Directors will be elected.

Supplies control, legal teeth are key bargaining issues

Two key issues in the list to build management and financial strength (1)> 100 legal teeth for suppliers. This would allow the management to more effectively negotiate contracts with suppliers and ensure fair compensation for the company.

Two key issues in the list to build management and financial strength include:

1. Lower overhead costs for management decisions made at the director level.

2. Improved financial management, including better control over expenses and revenue streams.

Supply control, legal teeth is key bargaining issues

The company has a strong supply chain, which is essential to maintaining a competitive edge in the industry. The company should continue to focus on improving its supply chain management, including better control over supply costs and more effective procurement strategies.

The company should be aware of the current legal landscape and the potential risks associated with supply chain management. It is important to ensure that the company is compliant with all relevant laws and regulations, and to maintain a strong legal team to handle any potential legal issues that may arise.

The company should also consider implementing new technologies to improve its supply chain management, such as electronic data interchange (EDI) and real-time inventory management systems.

One aspect of supply chain management that should be emphasized is the importance of maintaining good relationships with suppliers. The company should work to build strong relationships with key suppliers, and to negotiate favorable terms with them.

Another key area of focus should be the management of inventory. The company should have a clear understanding of its inventory requirements and should work to maintain a lean inventory system that is both cost-effective and responsive to customer needs.

The company should also be aware of the potential risks associated with supply chain management, including the risk of supply chain disruptions. It is important to have a plan in place to address these risks, and to ensure that the company is prepared to respond to any supply chain issues that may arise.

In summary, the company should continue to focus on improving its supply chain management, including better control over supply costs and more effective procurement strategies. It is important to maintain a strong legal team to handle any potential legal issues that may arise, and to implement new technologies to improve the overall efficiency of the supply chain.
