Accept bids of $190,280 for new addition

Basic Mike totaling $190,280 for construction of another new wing in the Clinton County Courthouse were counted by the board of supervisors Wednesday.

At the same time, the radiation alteration that had been issued a county still orders emergency operating center in the basement of the new wing.

While the CO phase of the courthouse project seems to be on track, the emergency operating center is not. The board met recently and informed the county of its design, to make a survey somewhere where it would be feasible to build the structure.

In ADDITION TO accepting the basic bids of the low bidders on the various phases of the work, the board agreed an alternate list of $641,900 for remoting the area to the front office of the courthouse and the court house.

The bids were in the hands of $232,800 for the electrical work and $60,600 for the plumbing, heating, ventilating and air-conditioning work, Low bids were on the general contract work. Two other general contract bids were received from Kepper Construction Co., for $134,300, and from Clark Construction Co., for $112,400.

Approved for the city’s needs and electrical contract was Brothers Electrical and Air Conditioning, Lansing, low bidders on the general contract work. Two other general contract bids were received from Kepper Construction Co., for $134,300, and from Clark Construction Co., for $112,400.

The NOT TO ACCEPT the low bid without the alternative for the city’s needs and electrical contract was Brothers Electrical and Air Conditioning, Lansing, low bidders on the general contract work. Two other general contract bids were received from Kepper Construction Co., for $134,300, and from Clark Construction Co., for $112,400.

City puts salary change amendment on fall ballot

St. Johns voters in the November election will have a proposal to amend the city charter that would give the city commission the authority to raise salaries at any time.

A compromise Tuesday night passed a resolution placing the proposed change on the November ballot. The resolution, if approved by the voters, would allow the city commission to raise the salaries of any city employees. The resolution states that the city commission shall have the power to raise the salaries of any city employee if the city commission shall determine that such raise is necessary for the proper performance of the employee's duties.

Vanilla ice cream is national favorite

Twelve-ounce quarts of ice cream are among the newest American successes among the flavoring mixtures, substances and beverages. It is a new kind of product, and so many times less expensive than vanilla and chocolate and strawberry.

There are more than 2,000 ice cream establishments in the United States, and the demand for ice cream and ice cream makers is greater every year. The United States' home is the ice cream. Knox gelatin is a new name for an old product. This name is already a household word and wine.

SHEPARDSVILLE — Work is about to begin on a new annex to the Shepardsville Methodist Episcopal Church, a project that has been in the works for several years. The building committee, led by Dan Baker, has spent many hours planning and discussing the project, which is expected to be completed by the fall. The new annex will provide much-needed space for the congregation, including additional educational rooms, a new kitchen, and a fellowship hall.

The church building was constructed on the south side of 301 N. Clinton in 1927 by the LeRoy brothers. Thirty-eight years later with a 1965 addition, the facility was expanded to accommodate the growth of the congregation.

The new annex will be constructed on the north side of the present building as it now stands. Charles Swender, Mrs Ronald Baker, John Huhtala, Robert Tait, Mrs Howard Baker and Mrs Charles Swender served on the building committee.

Chairman Dan Baker spoke of the need for additional space for the congregation. "The church has grown tremendously in recent years," he said. "We need more space for our educational programs, for fellowship, and for our worship services."

The dedication of the new annex will be held on September 10, on a day! Aug. 10, on a

THE EDUCATIONAL facility for all members of the church — young people, youth adults and adults — will provide additional space. The new annex, which will include a new kitchen, will bring more people into the church to worship, study and participate in the church's activities.

The dedication will take place on a sunny day, with Dr. Howard Baker, the pastor, officiating. "We are very excited about this project," he said. "It will provide much-needed space for our congregation and will help us to grow in the future."

The church has planned a series of events leading up to the dedication, including a special worship service on September 5, a picnic on September 6, and a reception on September 7.

The church members are looking forward to the dedication and the new space it will provide. "This is a wonderful opportunity to come together as a church and celebrate our growth," said Mrs. Charles Swender. "We are very grateful to everyone who has contributed to this project."

Severe drought hits upper Michigan

The State Disaster Committee has requested that the drought certification be issued for Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Montmorency, Ogemaw, Oscoda, and Wexford Counties. The certification was requested because of the severe drought conditions throughout the counties, especially in the northern part of the state. The certification enables farmers to apply for federal disaster relief funds.

Wool, lamb referendum

Sept. 12-23

A referendum for wool and lamb will be held in Michigan. The referendum will determine whether the state will continue to participate in the federal wool and lamb marketing program. The program allows farmers to receive higher prices for their wool and lamb by pooling their production and marketing it through a centralized system. The referendum will be held from Sept. 12 to 23. For more information, contact your local Michigan State University Agricultural Extension office.

High school ag teachers get mandate to look ahead

"The speaker said we need to be thinking ahead. The program is about long-term planning. We need to think about what the next 10 years will look like for our industry. We need to look at the challenges ahead and how we can prepare our students for the future." - George Hazle

The Michigan State University agricultural economics professor urged high school ag teachers to think about the long-term implications of their work. He said that the next decade will bring many changes to the industry, and teachers should be preparing students for these changes.

Wheat and feed grain payments being computed

The federal government is computing wheat and feed grain payments to farmers. The payments will be based on the difference between the price received by farmers and the government's target price. Farmers who sold their crops at prices below the target price will receive a payment to弥补 the difference.

It takes more than money to keep 'em in school

J. S. T. Steinbeck, as quoted in The Literary Gazette, said, "You can't buy a child's interest." And so it is, the slogan goes, that the old saying "Money talks" is just another way of saying, "money can buy anything." In a world where education is at the top of the list of priorities, it is often difficult to find the money to keep students in school. I stepped in to the child with John Plowman of Tompkins' Shoes, who is the 7th, 8th grade teacher at the School District of St. Johns, and, along with the rest of the staff, has been working with the children in the school system for several years. He is also the field director for the St. Johns School District.

The old wolf's idea of how to keep the pupil in high school is, speak your true minds. Now, said Steinbeck, you can't be sold on doing out tax dollars in increasing quantities.

Dedicated teachers, responsible school boards, and most important, concerned parents, still hold the key to the dropout problem.

Money from Washington is not going to work any miracles in keeping the nation's youth with school. But Steinbeck is a realist: in the battle to keep the pupil in high school is the home front, particularly the parents, because the old wolf is going to keep pupils in school.

The old wolf replies to the young wolf

John Steinbeck said as good as he got, and in Tompkins' Shoes in Yevgeny Yevtushenko reminded Steinbeck that on a visit to Russia in 1963 he had exhorted young Soviet writers: "Young wolves, always remember: speak your true minds. Now, said Steinbeck, it is time to speak your true minds. Now, said the old wolf's reply, 'you can't be sold on doing out tax dollars in increasing quantities.'

In his challenge, published in Moscow's Literary Gazette, Yevtushenko reminded Steinbeck that in the battle to keep the pupil in high school is the home front, particularly the parents, because the old wolf is going to keep pupils in school.

While I was walking the mountains this past weekend, I was looking for a place to get a quiet place to listen to some music. I decided to try a place near the top of a mountain, the view was magnificent.

I was looking for a place to get away from the world, to listen to some music. I decided to try a place near the top of a mountain, the view was magnificent. The world had gone by, the sun was setting, and I was enjoying the music. Suddenly, I heard a noise and turned around to see a man with a gun.

The man walked up to me and said, "What are you doing here?"

I told him that I was just enjoying the view and the music, and I asked if I could listen to some music. He said, "Sure, go ahead."

I sat down and listened to some music for a while, and then I got up to leave. The man said, "Wait, I have something for you."

He handed me a packet of cigarettes and a bottle of water.

I thanked him and said, "I can't pay you for this."

He said, "Don't worry about it. This is my way of giving back to the community."

I thanked him again and left the mountain.

Food inspection division helps protect consumer

The telephone rings often at the peak inspection office of the Michigan Department of Agriculture. Food Inspection Division. When the phone rings, it means a consumer who has contacted the Food Inspection Division has reported a food problem. The division sends inspectors to the store to check the contents of what looks like an empty canister. The inspectors check the labels and the cans themselves to make sure the food is safe to eat. If the food is found to be unsafe, the division issues a recall and the affected stores are notified.

New rehabilitation plan set for young criminals

BY ELIZABETH WHEELOCK, Staff Writer

A new rehabilitation plan for young criminals is set to be announced by the Michigan Department of Corrections. The plan is designed to divert young offenders away from adult prisons, primarily with first offenders. The new program would probably be used to parole a youth to a juvenile court for trial on the same charge.

Handling of juvenile delinquents is constantly undergoing changes. Young people are sometimes referred to a different court or to a different facility for their actions. This is done to ensure that the juvenile is treated appropriately and that the court has the necessary resources to handle the case.

Note of thanks to Legation help on schools

The note has been a winner for over a week in the Daily News. The Legation of the American Legion has swung behind the note in a big way. The Legation has been one of the main sponsors of the Inter-Legion school which has been most successful in the past year. We are grateful for the support of the Legation.

We hope that this fine relationship will continue and that the "little people" and will go to school with the "big people."

The Legation has been most helpful in our efforts.
