Progress seen on sewer...

But DeWitt Twp withdraws promise

DeWitt - The DeWitt Township Council meeting on Aug. 15 was pivotal in determining the future of the sewer project in DeWitt Township. The council voted to withdraw from the joint sewer agreement with Bath Township, citing the high cost of the project and the need for a more comprehensive plan.

The council had been working on a joint sewer project with Bath Township since 1998. The project was intended to improve the quality of the water in the area and provide a more sustainable solution for sewage disposal.

However, after several years of negotiations and delays, the council decided to withdraw due to the high cost of the project and the need for a more comprehensive plan. The withdrawal will have implications for the future of the project and the sustainability of the area's water quality.

DeWitt - DeWitt Township Supervisor Don Handley said that the withdrawal of DeWitt Township from the joint sewer project with Bath Township was a difficult decision to make. Handley said that the council had been working on the project for several years and had invested a significant amount of time and resources into it.

"We have been working on this project for years," Handley said. "It's been a long process, but we have come to the conclusion that the project is not feasible for our community." Handley also noted that the high cost of the project was a major factor in the decision.

The withdrawal of DeWitt Township from the joint sewer project with Bath Township will have implications for the future of the project and the sustainability of the area's water quality. The council has said that they will explore other options for improving the water quality in the area and will continue to work towards a more comprehensive solution.

The council's decision has been met with mixed reactions from the community. Some residents have expressed frustration with the decision, while others have praised the council for making the difficult decision.

"It's a tough decision," said resident John Smith. "But I think the council did the right thing by withdrawing from the project. It's just not feasible for our community." Smith also added that he hopes the council will continue to work towards a more comprehensive solution for improving the water quality in the area.

Other residents have expressed disappointment with the council's decision. "I'm disappointed with the council's decision," said resident Sarah Johnson. "The joint sewer project was a good idea, and I think it's a shame that they decided to withdraw from it." Johnson added that she hopes the council will continue to work towards a more comprehensive solution for improving the water quality in the area.

Program provides job funding for area high school students

Bob Hardinge, Shirley Erickson, Tom Dallie, Alene Hartley and Karen Fosler are only a few of several high school students recently accepted into a Clinton County program that has been providing students with jobs in various industries for a few years. The program was started by the Clinton County Chamber of Commerce to promote economic development. The chamber has been working with area businesses to find positions for students, and the program has been very successful.

The students are paid a minimum wage, and the program provides them with valuable work experience. The program is open to all area schools, and interested students can apply through their school counselor. The program is funded by a combination of government and private funds, and it is a great opportunity for area students to gain valuable experience and prepare for their future careers.

Volunteer painters brighten Redwing football facilities

Nothing like the old pain to bring the kids together for a good cause. Volunteer painters brightened Redwing football facilities this past weekend, cleaning up the school's athletic facilities for the past 2 weeks in the Redwings' football and athletic complex under the direction of athletic director, Coach Bob Tissot.

County officials view Sleepy Hollow opening with mixed reactions

County officials are beginning to see demands from residents who will be demanding the parking of Sleepy Hollow State Park in Victor and Ovid Townships in the proposed state park. County supervisors have agreed to the development of the park, which will be further developed by the state parks department. The project will be designed to accommodate the county's needs without a great deal of expense.

"We're (the Tri-County area)恐怕 that we're looking at a peak in the number of visitors coming during the Summer," he said in explanation of the proposal. "We're probably going to have to widen and upgrade, and to ask the Highway Dept. to turn over to the Highway Dept. our access roads, Price and Shepardsville Roads, to accommodate the expected park goers."

So far, Gonzales said, they've used 30 gallons of white paint to paint the goal posts, scoreboard and 30 gallons of red paint to paint the bleachers and scoreboard. The wide-awake bank makes it all so easy.

The birth of the committee

One spring day many years ago, a city fellow took the day off from the office to hike through the countryside. He paused to watch a farmer plow his field with one mule, "Giddap, Billy! Giddap, Barney! Giddap, Moel!" the farmer kept shouting.

The puzzled observer asked how many names the old mule had.

"Just one," the farmer informed him. "His name is Barney, but he seems to have several different names, depending on whom he's working for. When he's working for Mr. Smith, he's "Barney." When he's working for Mr. Jones, he's "Bill." And when he's working for me, he's "Moe.""

"Why does he have different names?" the puzzled observer asked.

"Well," said the farmer, "it's because he doesn't know his own name. So I put blinders on him and yell, "Barney!" and "Bill!" and "Moe!" and he acts accordingly."

MSU Spartan's home schedule features 6 top opponents

What could be the mostdifficult and exciting college football schedule in the land for the Michigan State Spartans? It starts off with four straight Big Ten opponents. It includes a highly-touted Big Ten, and ends with a tough Little Ten Big Ten. But Danny Doeren's Spartans are undefeated. Can they handle the pressure of being in the top handful of teams in the country? The answer is yes, according to the media.

The Spartans face a challenging schedule, including the Michigan Wolverines, Ohio State Buckeyes, Penn State Nittany Lions, and Nebraska Cornhuskers. The team will need to maintain its strong defense throughout the season to remain successful. The Spartans will also have to improve their offense to compete with the nation's top teams.

LEGALISATION Proposed would increase loan amounts for young farmers

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The members of a House Agriculture Subcommittee are considering the legalization of marijuana. This is an amendment that would make it legal for young farmers to grow hemp in the state.

State Rep. John Smith, a member of the House Agriculture Committee, said that the amendment is in line with the committee's mandate to support young farmers. He added that the amendment would encourage young farmers to participate in the family farm tradition which is so deeply rooted in American agriculture.

At the recent Congressional hearings, he was asked what impact he expected the legalization of marijuana to have on young farmers. He replied that he expected the amendment to help young farmers by providing them with an additional revenue stream. He added that the amendment would also help farmers in states that already have legal marijuana markets.

The amendment has been introduced by a number of other members of the House Agriculture Committee, including Rep. Jane Doe, who represents the state's hemp district. She said that the amendment would help young farmers by providing them with a new market for their crops.

The amendment is scheduled to be voted on by the House Agriculture Committee next week.
Farmers should eye supermarket patterns

It’s too soon to predict whether the market changes in dairy products have been fully absorbed in the market. The results of the Michigan Dairy Products Producers Association’s (MDPPA) statistical survey of supermarket sales of milk has been released for the December 1975-January 1976 period. The survey indicates that the demand for milk has increased since the milk price increase took place in September.

The survey was conducted by the MDPPA’s statistical services department and the results reflect the sales of milk to supermarket merchandisers in Michigan. The survey covered nearly 4,000 supermarket locations throughout the state.

The statistics show that dairy products, including milk, have experienced a significant increase in sales since the milk price increase took place in September. The increase in sales has been especially pronounced in the areas of milk, cream, butter, and cheese.

The survey also indicates that the demand for milk has increased since the milk price increase took place in September. The increase in sales has been especially pronounced in the areas of milk, cream, butter, and cheese.

The Michigan Dairy Products Producers Association (MDPPA) is a non-profit organization representing dairy farmers in Michigan. The association is committed to promoting the health and well-being of its members and the dairy industry as a whole.

The MDPPA’s statistical services department conducts surveys and other research to provide information to its members and the public about the dairy industry. The surveys include market research, consumer behavior studies, and other data collection methods.

The survey results are used to provide guidance to dairy farmers, processors, and other industry stakeholders. The information is also used to inform policy decisions and support advocacy efforts.

Recreation Round-up

By Dave Darrell
City of St. Johns

August 13, 1975

The City Manager presented his report to the Council regarding the suspension of the Junior Boys and Girls League's baseball league. There was no action taken on this report.

The Council also discussed the possible adoption of a new parking ordinance. The ordinance would prohibit parking on city streets during the summer months.

The Council voted to appoint a committee to study the issue further.

The City Manager also presented a report on the progress of the city's new water treatment plant. The plant is expected to be complete by the end of the year.

The Council discussed the possibility of extending the city's water system to the adjacent town. A decision was made to further study the feasibility of this project.

The Council also considered a request from the city's recreation department for additional funding. The request was denied due to budget constraints.

The Council discussed the need for additional parks and playgrounds in the city. It was agreed that the city should prioritize the construction of new facilities.

The Council also considered a request from the city's recreation department for additional funding. The request was denied due to budget constraints.
