DeWitt elects mayor, councilmen . . . again

By Tim Edwards

DEWITT — Another chapter in the stormy era of DeWitt city politics was closed Monday when the City Council officially announced the results of the Aug. 14 general election.

Three school districts announce opening dates

CLINTON COUNTY — St. Johns, Peace River and Port Austin schools recently announced that school will begin as follows for the 1973-74 school year:

St. Johns: Monday, Aug. 27.
Peace River: Monday, Aug. 27.
Port Austin: Monday, Aug. 27.

Cattle thefts continue

CLINTON COUNTY — The theft of several head of cattle and equipment continues to plague farmers in and around the county.

A local farmer, who refused to be identified, claims he was the victim of cattle theft last week. He found four of his head missing from his pasture near the railroad tracks and was forced to replace the animals with secondhand stock.

The last reported theft occurred in late July, when a farmer near Meadville reported his entire herd stolen.

High school students may pick up

ST JOHNS — High school students may pick up their report cards early this year. Students will be able to get their cards as early as four days before the end of the school year. This is due to a change in school policy.

The new policy allows students to pick up their report cards on the last day of school, which is June 10. This is a change from the previous policy, which allowed students to pick up their report cards on the last day of school, which is May 31.

New mayor of DeWitt

DEWITT — The City of DeWitt Police Department is currently investigating a shooting of 2 Holstein cows Sunday near Port Austin.

The incident occurred at approximately 9:30 pm at the Gary Sansote's residence on Bailey Rd, Bath. Mrs Sansote told officials her husband, Donald Ducharme, was shot in the leg by his own gun.

The DeWitt man involved is Douglas Pelham, 22, of DeWitt. Pelham, who was arrested and released on $5,000 bail, is expected to face charges.

DeWitt Chief Wendell Myers said the investigation is ongoing and that no arrests have been made.

The cows were shot in the head by Pelham, who was shot and killed in the process. Pelham is in critical condition at St. Mary’s Hospital in Lansing.

Police said the shooting was being investigated as a murder and robbery.

DeWitt Police, assisted by the Oakland County Sheriff's Office, are continuing to investigate the incident.

Parker and his partner were transient workers who had been working in the area.

BATH — Business was held in a town meeting Monday night's Bath Township meeting. The only business on the agenda was the purchase of a radar gun to help enforce traffic laws.

The meeting was held in the Bath Township Hall. The meeting was attended by several residents who spoke in favor of the purchase of the radar gun.

A Bath resident said, "It's a good idea to have a radar gun to help enforce traffic laws. It will help catch speeders and make our streets safer."

Another resident added, "I think the money spent on the radar gun is well worth it. It will help keep our streets safe for all of us."

The meeting concluded with the adoption of the purchase of the radar gun for $1,500.

J.O.Y. works

Dear Editor:

As the J.O.Y. Youth Program draws to a close, we want to thank the St. Johns community for its support. We have been in operation this past year and we are currently ending our program.

Our goal was to provide a place for youth to hang out, socialize, and participate in various activities that are not available at school. We also aimed to foster community involvement by giving young people an opportunity to serve their community.

We would like to give a special thanks to all those who have supported us throughout the year. This includes families, friends, community members, and local businesses.

We are grateful for the feedback we have received and we hope to continue our efforts in the future.

Sincerely,

The Executive Board

THE EXECUTIVE BOARD OF J.O.Y.
Greenbush United Methodist Church to celebrate 75th anniversary

The Rev. John Murphy, as the pastor of St. John's United Methodist Church in Greenbush, will celebrate his 75th anniversary in the ministry on Sunday, Aug. 27.

Murphy was born on Dec. 6, 1946, in the small town of Greenbush, Michigan. He grew up in the church and attended Greenbush High School.

In 1968, he graduated from Central Michigan University with a Bachelor of Arts degree in religious education. He then attended the Iliff School of Theology in Denver, Colorado, where he received a Master of Divinity degree in 1971.

Murphy served as the pastor of several congregations before coming to St. John's in 1976. He has been a tireless advocate for the church and its members during his time here.

The celebration will include a special worship service, a reception, and a dinner. Members of the church and community are invited to attend.

For more information, please contact the church office at (517) 555-1234.
Approve teacher contract for Ovid-Elsie Schools

The Master Agreement between the Ovid-Elsie Elementary Schools and the Ovid-Elsie Secondary Schools was ratified by the O-E School Board at its regular meeting Aug. 13. The Master Agreement between the school system and Ovid-Elsie Secondary Schools was also ratified.

Upon the recommendation of Superintendent Donald L. Ramsey, contracts were awarded for 3 Michael O'Boyle, high school business teacher; Dorothy S. Niles, English; Margaret V. Lewis, high school social studies; Margaret Zintz, high school English; and Donald D. O'Malley, director of guidance. All were given 1-year contracts.

Also receiving contracts were Elsie Junior High School teachers Lila C. Knott, 9th grade; Robert D. Anderer, 10th grade; and E.E. Knight, 11th grade.

A letter received from the Rev. Robert Prange of Grove Bible Church stating their interest in starting an elementary school was filed.

A letter received from the Michigan Education Association concerning the transportation of students, including transportation of students in the Ovid-Elsie High School to Ovid school by utilizing presently established routes.

A letter of resignation was received from Thomas Barse, teacher at Ovid-Elsie High School. The resignation was accepted with regrets by the board.

A letter was received from Board President Terri Hulbert, treasurer at Ovid-Elsie High School, regarding a report of the meeting of oats, the report being filed.

A short discussion was held regarding problems of the Ovid-Elsie High School's 1973-74 school year. It was agreed that people using the building for their own purposes needed to be queried as to their use of the school for the year.

The board was invited to receive the regional basketball teams in each junior high school building.

Reduce protein cost with NPN - corn silage

BY WILLIAM LARSON
Richardson-Rominger, Inc.

NPN - corn silage, when used as a protein source in diets for cattle, can be a valuable tool in reducing feed costs. When fed at the proper level, corn silage can help reduce the total protein level in the ration and still maintain adequate performance and nutrients to the animal.

Protein concentrations of corn silage range from 10 to 12% in the dry matter. This value is higher than that of corn fed as a grain but lower than that of most legumes. Producers who choose to use corn silage as part of their rations should be aware of the following points:

1. Corn silage is well suited to the type of animals being raised. If the animal is rumen-fermented and meat production is the primary goal, the use of corn silage is more efficient than the use of legumes. However, if the animal is a dairy cow and the primary goal is milk production, the use of legumes is more efficient.

2. Corn silage is high in fiber and therefore low in digestibility. This means that the animal must eat more of it to meet its protein requirements. This can result in increased passage rates and a lower meat yield.

3. Corn silage is high in carbohydrates and therefore low in energy. This means that the animal must eat more of it to meet its energy requirements. This can result in increased passage rates and a lower meat yield.

4. Corn silage is high in organic matter and therefore low in protein. This means that the animal must eat more of it to meet its protein requirements. This can result in increased passage rates and a lower meat yield.

5. Corn silage is high in calcium and therefore low in phosphorus. This means that the animal must eat more of it to meet its phosphorus requirements. This can result in increased passage rates and a lower meat yield.

6. Corn silage is high in potassium and therefore low in sodium. This means that the animal must eat more of it to meet its sodium requirements. This can result in increased passage rates and a lower meat yield.

7. Corn silage is high in vitamin A and therefore low in vitamin E. This means that the animal must eat more of it to meet its vitamin E requirements. This can result in increased passage rates and a lower meat yield.

8. Corn silage is high in vitamin C and therefore low in vitamin D. This means that the animal must eat more of it to meet its vitamin D requirements. This can result in increased passage rates and a lower meat yield.

9. Corn silage is high in vitamin B1 and therefore low in vitamin B2. This means that the animal must eat more of it to meet its vitamin B2 requirements. This can result in increased passage rates and a lower meat yield.

10. Corn silage is high in vitamin B3 and therefore low in vitamin B4. This means that the animal must eat more of it to meet its vitamin B4 requirements. This can result in increased passage rates and a lower meat yield.

11. Corn silage is high in vitamin B5 and therefore low in vitamin B6. This means that the animal must eat more of it to meet its vitamin B6 requirements. This can result in increased passage rates and a lower meat yield.

12. Corn silage is high in vitamin B7 and therefore low in vitamin B8. This means that the animal must eat more of it to meet its vitamin B8 requirements. This can result in increased passage rates and a lower meat yield.

13. Corn silage is high in vitamin B9 and therefore low in vitamin B10. This means that the animal must eat more of it to meet its vitamin B10 requirements. This can result in increased passage rates and a lower meat yield.

14. Corn silage is high in vitamin B11 and therefore low in vitamin B12. This means that the animal must eat more of it to meet its vitamin B12 requirements. This can result in increased passage rates and a lower meat yield.

15. Corn silage is high in vitamin B13 and therefore low in vitamin B14. This means that the animal must eat more of it to meet its vitamin B14 requirements. This can result in increased passage rates and a lower meat yield.

16. Corn silage is high in vitamin B15 and therefore low in vitamin B16. This means that the animal must eat more of it to meet its vitamin B16 requirements. This can result in increased passage rates and a lower meat yield.

17. Corn silage is high in vitamin B17 and therefore low in vitamin B18. This means that the animal must eat more of it to meet its vitamin B18 requirements. This can result in increased passage rates and a lower meat yield.

18. Corn silage is high in vitamin B19 and therefore low in vitamin B20. This means that the animal must eat more of it to meet its vitamin B20 requirements. This can result in increased passage rates and a lower meat yield.

Irish Hills: attractive spot for camping and sightseeing

The picturesque Irish Hills, one of the leading resort areas of Michigan, is a haven of natural beauty and recreational activities. Located in the rolling countryside of southeastern Michigan, the area is home to a number of scenic lakes and parks that attract visitors from all over the state and country.

Hills, one of the beautyspots Wampler's Lake. The park according to Automobile W.J. Hayes State Park, rolling scenic hills and in miles west of Clinton on US-12 east of Cambridge built in 1832 and associated Park is at the intersection of Michigan State University in acres of rolling Irish Hills. The gardens were*a gift to of worshippers to its Outdoor attractions, ranging from a Michigan State University in 1967. The area's attractions, ranging from the Irish Hills Playhouse to the Irish Hills Institute, provide a variety of opportunities for visitors to enjoy the beauty of the natural world.

Our state is doing something effective about the Irish Hills situation. All interested parties - residents, business owners, and others - are being encouraged to participate in the process of finding a solution. The state is working closely with local officials and community leaders to ensure that the Irish Hills situation is resolved in a way that benefits everyone.

A NATIONWIDE TURNOVER

What's more, in this case of Irish Hills, we should all be very pleased. The state's effort to address the Irish Hills situation is a positive step toward ensuring that everyone has the opportunity to enjoy the beauty of this unique area.

WHOLESALE PRICE INDEX INCREASES

According to the Michigan Department of Agriculture, the wholesale price index for the month of July increased 1.4 percent compared to the previous month. This increase is attributed to higher input costs for farmers and processors, as well as increased demand for processed goods and feeds. The substantial July increase is expected to continue into the future, as demand for processed goods and feeds is expected to remain strong.

HELP ON THE WAY

The state has announced plans to provide additional aid to those affected by the rising costs of processed goods and feeds. These plans include increased funding for farm programs and increased support for processors and feeders, as well as increased funding for the development of local food systems. The overall goal is to reduce the impact of rising costs on the agricultural sector and to ensure that farmers and processors have the resources they need to continue to supply the state with high-quality, affordable food.

Powell canemands tax relief in St Johns

State Representative Powell has introduced a bill that will allow those affected by the rising costs of processed goods and feeds to receive tax relief. The bill is designed to provide a way for those affected by the rising costs to receive financial assistance and to help ensure that they are able to continue to supply the state with high-quality, affordable food.
