The Labor Day issue brings out the crowd to public events. The activities sometimes overlap holidays. There are a couple of events in Clinton County that are unique to this time. In Middletown, there will be a car swap meet with a parade, and in the county seat, there is a labor festival.

A big Labor Day celebration begins at Fowler on Monday afternoon. The parade starts at 11 a.m. There will be a Fireman's Tower, a tugboat race, and a horse race. The parade ends at the county fairgrounds, where there will be a chicken dinner, a rodeo, and a dance. The fair will continue on Tuesday.

Renewal rehab standards developed here get OK from federal agency

The Steering and Technical Development Authority has approved development standards for commercial rehabilitation projects which were developed by the Clinton County Planning Commission. A feasibility study was made of the county's rehabilitation program. The study was undertaken to determine the best method of providing rehabilitation funds. The study found that the most effective way to provide rehabilitation funds was to establish a rehabilitation fund. The study also recommended that the rehabilitation fund be administered by a rehabilitation board. The Board would be made up of representatives from the county, the city of DeWitt, and the city of St. Johns. The Board would be responsible for the administration of the rehabilitation fund.

The Wakefield Fire Department, which is located near Maple Rapids, has been mentioned as a potential candidate for the truck. New bus routes for schools here

School bus routes in the St. Johns School District can cause major headaches for parents and students alike. Parents have recently been hearing a lot of noise from the school bus drivers, who have been expressing their concerns about the schedules of the various school districts. The new routes for the school year have been put into effect in an attempt to alleviate some of the problems that parents have been facing.

The new routes include a number of changes. Students who previously rode the buses to East Essex, Eureka, and other locations will now be riding to different schools. Thursday will be a full day, and students, including St. Joseph, will ride on Friday, September 9th. All buses will leave the bus garage around 7 a.m. or shortly after.

The new routes are designed to minimize the problem of students being on the bus after 7:15 a.m. On some of the longer routes, students will be transported in the morning and then be picked up at their homes around 10 a.m., depending on the distance from school.

The new routes include a number of changes to make it easier for students to get to school on time. They include:

2. Students living on the east side of US-27 will travel north on US-27 to Hill Street, west on Hill Street to Grand River, north on Grand River to US-27, and back to school.
3. Students living on the southern end of the district will travel down US-27 to Salad Bowl Road, west on Salad Bowl Road to US-27, and back to school.
4. Students living on the northern end of the district will travel north on US-27 to Beulah Road, east on Beulah Road to US-27, and back to school.

These new routes are part of a larger plan to improve transportation in the St. Johns School District. The district is working with transportation experts to develop a more efficient and effective system.

Montgomery College of Agriculture, University of Michigan, now offers for the first time a practical, low-cost, high-quality service to farmers for their livestock. The new service is known as the "Livestock Exchange Program." It is designed to help farmers increase their livestock production through the use of improved genetic material.

The program operates on a cooperative basis, with farmers supplying the livestock to be exchanged and the college supplying the labor and equipment. The livestock is handled in a humane and efficient manner, and the farmer is assured of receiving the best possible material available.

The program is open to all farmers in the county, and the college will provide the necessary facilities and equipment. The program is expected to be of great assistance to farmers who are interested in improving their livestock production.

For more information, please contact the Montgomery College of Agriculture, University of Michigan, at (517) 383-6000.

Urea-treatehd corn silage in high favor

The results of a recent study conducted at the University of Michigan indicate that urea-treated corn silage is highly favored by dairy cattle. The study was conducted by Dr. W. E. Mathews, a dairy scientist at the university.

The results of the study showed that urea-treated corn silage produced a higher milk yield per cow than corn silage not treated with urea. The study also showed that the use of urea-treated corn silage resulted in a higher milk fat content and a lower milk protein content.

The results of the study indicate that urea-treated corn silage is an excellent source of protein for dairy cattle. The use of urea as a protein supplement in the diet of dairy cattle has been shown to improve milk production and milk quality.

The results of the study are expected to be of great assistance to dairy farmers who are interested in improving their milk production.

For more information, please contact Dr. W. E. Mathews, Dairy Science Department, University of Michigan, at (517) 383-6000.

A Salute to American Labor

A Salute to American Labor

By Lowell G. Rinker

A new stands amidst the ruins of labor and strikes in the background of the present strike. The American labor movement has made many gains in the past, but there is much work yet to be done. This article is not intended to be a history of labor in America, but rather a brief overview of the key events and issues that have shaped the labor movement.

The American labor movement began with the first union in 1834 and has grown significantly since then. In 1866, the American Federation of Labor was founded, and in 1886, the Knights of Labor was established. These organizations helped to bring about the passage of laws that protected workers' rights.

In the 20th century, the labor movement continued to grow as more workers joined unions. The 1930s saw the rise of the International Longshoremen's Association, and the 1940s witnessed the growth of the Steelworkers Union.

In the 1950s and 1960s, the labor movement worked to bring about civil rights and the end of segregation. In the 1970s and 1980s, the focus shifted to environmental issues and the protection of the planet.

Today, the labor movement continues to work towards social justice and equality. As this article illustrates, the labor movement has been a key part of American history, and its influence is likely to continue for many years to come.
