School, city at peace

A potential meeting of the minds occurred at a special meeting of the school board, attended by some members of the St. Johns City Commission last week.

At least two dozen, except for the two dozen or so, thought the school board should lend easier facilities from the 1600-year-old city of St. John's, since the city council has ordered a new school building to be built over the old one.

Since an agreement worth $20,000,000 will be forthcoming to finance a new school, the city council wants to make sure the building will be constructed in a way that will be as sound as possible.

Apollo 11 film is available

The St. Johns City Commission last week was provided with a proposal to help build a new school in the current round of expansion, Charles Guttierez, a resident of St. Johns, said.

The $200,000 film, which includes the invasion of the moon and the historic first landing on the moon, was on display.

St. Johns City Commission Chairman Jack Parr suggested the possibility of a new school being built.

"It is a question of logistics," Parr said.

Recall drive in Bath appears to be off

"I think Smith had the recall movement started here, a petition started so as to possibly fire police, but it seems to have come to an end," one person said.

Calling complaints is being made by St. Johns police and Bath resident, who are saying it is difficult to get the police department to deal with some problems.

Tech ed is expanded

Editor's Note: This is the last in a three-part series examining features of the new St. Johns High School. In this part, writer Claudia McDonough looks at vocational training facilities.

Various types of engines. The work area is equipped with a variety of tools, such as tools for repairing engines, where technicians can practice repairing engines, and students can practice testing engines. To test the students' abilities, the teacher staff members will be held five days a week to allow students to work with them.

The school has added several small engine facilities for students to work with. Most of the equipment is in the metal shop area. Included are small engines, students can practice using these engines, students can practice using these engines.

High School Editor "involved"

Lynn McNeeley's name is on the front page of the St. Johns Advocate newspaper. The publication will be a weekly newspaper aimed at high school students.

Lynn McNeeley is a senior at St. Johns High School and hopes to pursue a career in journalism after high school. She has been involved in various school activities, including the Student Council, and is looking forward to writing for the school newspaper.

Although no major changes have been made in the wood shop, much new equipment will be in the work area. Most of the old equipment was left at the Rodney B. Wilson school for use by the junior high students.

The school has tried to keep one academic class a year ahead of the other classes. The school has also added two new rooms.

"Professionals use the same equipment we have here," says Fossett. "The equipment might even be better."

Most all of the equipment in the metal shop will be supplied with language examinations. The school also has language examinations to test students on their language skills.

The school has also purchased a few new pieces of equipment. As in other vocational programs, the school has added a new piece of equipment to improve students' abilities in the field.

Robinson to protest firing at Ovid council

Edward Robinson, former Po­lice chief at Ovid, will be at the next regularly scheduled meeting of the Ovid council. Tuesday after­noon, Sept. 3, to protest the firing of village house officer, Ronald Barrett, by village officials.

Robinson, 51, lives at 113 E. Seward, Alaska for five years and was police chief there before coming to Ovid.

Ed Robinson further surmised that Robert Robinson, council member, was the only one with the authority to fire a house officer. He called Barrett his "Number One choice" and said he was surprised to know he had been fired.

Robinson said he had not been served with a written discharge. He called Barrett's firing unfair.

In other action the council approved the adoption of the village code.

The average benefit for a re­tired worker is $95 a month, compared to $610 years ago.

The system—its cost of 2,000 dollars—would be covered by the Social Security Administration. It is due for the first time this year.

A new radio system will be installed in the village.

Larry Float, councilman, said, "We've been lucky so far, but one of the biggest problems is our ability to communicate effectively.

This year, the Fulton contract expired and the council was able to negotiate a better deal. This is a big step forward for the village."

We know how annoying it can be to prepare a grocery list only to find the items gone. You won’t never catch us short of specials! Sure, we sell out of our weekly specials because our customers have grown to realize the savings offered. But being left out of sharing in these savings is something you will never encounter at Andy’s IGA.

Why?

Because we have instituted a “Rain Check” system which assures you of always sharing in our weekly specials.

Whenever you shop our store and a wanted special has been sold out, simply ask one of our staff for a “Rain Check” which you keep the next time you visit. Andy’s presents the “Rain Check” and receive the item for the special advertised price.

It’s as simple as this: It’s just another service we’re devised to guarantee your satisfaction when shopping at Andy’s IGA. And it’s exclusive with our “Rain Check” service is added to a growing list of services and offers to make more shoppers, we’re constantly thinking of you.

We like to think that our service is exclusive, too!

A variety of corn, a mixture of corn and soybeans, and some soybeans alone have been grown in different fields over the years, but each crop has its own particular uses.

Any acre grown in corn has been primarily for the production of feed for livestock. The corn provides an abundant and high-quality source of protein for both dairy and beef cattle, as well as for poultry. Soybeans, on the other hand, are mainly grown for the production of vegetable oil and meal, which are used in a variety of food products.

The mixture of corn and soybeans has also been grown in the past, but it is not as common now as it once was. This mixture was primarily grown for the production of livestock feed, as the soybeans provide additional protein and energy to the corn.

The soybeans themselves can also be used for the production of oil, meal, and other products, such as those used in food manufacturing.

The area has a long history of agriculture, and many of the farmers have been growing these crops for generations. They continue to be an important part of the local economy, providing a steady source of income and employment.

Former resident shoots hole-in-one

Mrs. Elinore Purdy, the former St. Johns resident, has scored her first hole-in-one at the Port Clinton Country Club during the Central Michigan Women's Golf Association Tournament. Mrs. Purdy used a seven iron from 120 yards out and sank the 15-foot putt to make her hole-in-one.

Vere Brown, 14790 Center Road, Bath, is pictured at left with his trophies and awards he received for his achievements in two recent bowling tournaments. Brown is the 1969 Youth Bowl champion of Michigan in the boys handicap division. He won a $500 scholarship and also won the low putts competition. He has been playing the game for 14 years and anned his second straight championship.

You may not find many members of the House of Representatives who hire a full-time staff. How much time do they spend reading the contents of the House Journal so they can understand what is happening in legislative proceedings? The New York Times recently published an article by an American Government professor who estimated that the average lawmaker spends only one hour a day reading the House Journal. Several days later, I received a call from one of his colleagues who asked me if I thought it was worth my time to read the Journal. The professor clearly thought it was not worth his time. I told him that I considered it to be time well spent. He then asked me what else I did when I came back to Washington each day. So I thought about it while I was driving to the Camillus House and then realized that it was time well spent.

State milk production expected to increase

A survey by the Michigan Milk Producers Association shows that the state’s dairy production is expected to increase one pound per day during the coming year. The survey, conducted with a scientific, random sample of dairy producers, showed 4.4 per cent of those responding believed sufficient to show at least a 10.6 per cent over the next 12 months.

The survey asked 7,000 dairy producers to estimate their expected milk production during the coming year. Increases by many of the 4.4 per cent respondents are expected to make up for losses in the milk production of the other 95.6 per cent of the respondents.

The survey yielded a return of 18.9 per cent of those responding.

The survey results, reported in an earlier edition of the association’s monthly magazine, were based on the survey respondents’ estimates that the state’s dairy production during the coming year will more than make up the difference.

The Michigan Milk Messenger, the association’s monthly magazine, has served milk producers with news and technical information.

The survey results also showed that the state’s dairy production during the coming year will be expected to increase one pound per day during the coming year. While U.S. milk production has declined in recent years, the Michigan Milk Messenger has been able to increase the survey results, reported in an earlier edition of the association’s monthly magazine.
The document includes a mix of business and personal announcements, legal notices, and business directory listings. The content is a mixture of advertisements, legal notices, and personal announcements, typical of a small town newspaper. There are also editorials and articles related to local news and events. The text is largely in English and is formatted in a way that is typical of a newspaper layout, with sections for local news, obituaries, and announcements. The document is a snapshot of the community's activities and legal proceedings as of the date of publication.

Up to us

A fresh breeze is blowing through the land and evidence of its impact can be seen in the report that big budget, often a number of years in the red, ended fiscal 1969 with a surplus of more than $3 billion. The fact that the federal government's annual budget is in sharp contrast to the $25.2 billion deficit recorded then.

Value of integrity

Business firms throughout the country are trying to get people interested in them; this is the essence of our economic system. Paradoxically, in the vital pre­cision of the dollar, a great number of federal programs and services.

Only the cliques of the United States, by our patience, understanding and support of controls and commonsense in federal spending policies can assure that a few years from now the dollar will still be worth more than the paper it is printed on.

County officials praised in publication

Online publication of a story which was for the News apparently published by Lee H. Robinson, President of Michigan County Officers’ Association. And according to the Michigan Governor, the proposed legislation at this week’s County Officers’ Association was approved.

MERBEIN SCHOOL IN 1924

These students attended the Merbein School, five miles south of St. Johns on Price Road in 1924. The teacher was Mrs. Ethel Price and the school officer was Mr. L. R. Price. Students shown above include: Kenneth Mills, Raymond Millner, Vernon Mills, Nellie Sullivan, P. J. Sullivan, Norval VanWeer, Ada VanWeer, Jack van Weer's family, and others.

The picture was contributed by Mrs. Letha Wineland...

Different days

- In days of old, we are told.
  - Scene was very light.
  - St. Johns was a big world.
  - To people of today.
  - It's a different world.
  - To people of tomorrow.
  - It's a different world.
  - To people of today.
  - It's a different world.
  - To people of tomorrow.
