Bath School construction begins

The Ovid-Elsie Board of Education has approved plans for a new Bath School. The new school will be constructed on the site of the present school, which was destroyed by fire. The new school will accommodate up to 600 students and will be completed by the fall of the next year. The construction proposal passed the 2d time, following action at the last Board of Education meeting.

MRS. DOUGLAS GRAHAM

Narrative and Mrs. Douglas Graham

BANNECK - Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Graham have Pleasantly surprised their friends and neighbors with the announcement of the marriage of their daughter, Ms.

Kersten Kersten of the Mio United Methodist Church, in the beautiful ceremony that was arranged by the bride and groom. The ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of the parents of the bride and groom. Mrs. Alex Dural, of Bancroft, and Mr. Kenneth Dural, of Bancroft, were both present to bless the union of their loved ones.

The wedding guests were welcomed with glasses of champagne. The beautiful bride, Ms. Kersten Kersten, was escorted by her father, Mr. Kenneth Dural, to the altar. The groom, MS. Douglas Graham, was accompanied by his best man, Mr. Alex Dural, and his brother, Mr. Brian Dural, both of Bancroft. The ceremony was officiated by Rev. Paul A. Thompson, of the Mio United Methodist Church.

The bride wore a champagne-colored gown with a U-shaped neckline and a ruffle finished the bottom of the gown. She was adorned with a veil and a bouquet of pink ribbons and flowers. The groom wore a tuxedo and a tie, with a boutonniere of pink ribbons and flowers. The couple exchanged vows under the altar, which was decorated with violet statice. Roses in shades of pink and purple were also used, while the altar was adorned with a U-shaped necklace and a ruffle finished the bottom of the gown. The mother of the bride wore a powder blue chiffon dress with a pink ribboned lace. The father of the groom wore a suit and tie, with pink bows and streamers. The reception was a buffet at the home of the parents of the bride and groom. The bride and groom's parents were present

Testimony of a Jail House Lawyer

Dear Editor,

I am a jail house lawyer. Because of my position, I believe that I have been given the opportunity to speak logically and directly to you. I am not in a position to give a lengthy dissertation, but I think that I can say with some assurance that hate to put it this way but I think September 5, 1974 is evident by the attempt, and the appellate courts like ours have become obsessed with the Judicial System. These are fine words by trial Courk have become, in the vocabulary of Michigan's Judicial System, a sounding, but that is not my area. I have been persecuted, under the words of Michigan's constitution, I am a member and Secretary of the Michigan Association of Federal Home Loan Banks. All the world’s a stage

The gap between statecraft and stagecraft seems to go on narrowing.

No sooner do we get accustomed to former film stars becoming governors or senators, than along comes past-Major of New York John Lindsay undertaking the opposite transformation—becoming an actor in a major film now being shot in Paris.

Of course, many political leaders have candidly admitted they were "playboys in history." Perhaps thereby getting the last word in evidence or acting before a camera is less of a jump than we ever supposed.

It’s gotten so the two professions almost look to be interchangeable.

Mr Lindsay has admitted there is "some hanky-panky in politics," according to New York Times—isn’t that enough for a complete career switch. It turns out he will play the minor supporting role of an American senator in the film, and has every intention of returning to "real life" politics.

And this suggests there may be a difference between the acting and political professions after all.

In the world of stage and film, one of the harsh critical complaints made against actors is that they can only "play themselves"—they can’t make people believe really for a while that they are the characters portrayed in the scripts. In politics, our hope is to elect men who are not good at roleplaying but who fill their office by being truly themselves. And we are learning to tell the difference.

"If it fits . . .

Ford falsettes in kitchen

by Jim Fitzgerald

"If it fits . . ."

does this country need a leader who can "play politics"?

For months we’ve been told that Gerald Ford was "a poor speaker"—a handicapping disadvantage in the contest against Richard Nixon. Or so we’ve been told. Or so we’ve been led to believe.

As far as I know, the Fordies have never been accused of "poor speaking."

For as much as people have wondered about Ford’s intelligence, his ability to "think on his feet," his capacity to "butter up" to the audience—never for one moment have we ever heard that the chief executive has "bad diction" or "poor speaking style."...This so-called handicap is a handicap.

As for his "poor appearance," we’ve never heard of poor Ford’s face "always looking fatigued"—or that he “can never look intelligent". ...So far as we know of Ford’s looks, he doesn’t seem to have much of a "nose for politics."...This so-called handicap is a handicap.

When it comes to intelligence, Ford is without peer in the field of statecraft.

There are no limits to Ford’s intellect.

It’s gotten so the two professions almost look to be interchangeable.

September 7, 1972

Just a week after Richard Nixon’s resignation when the Michigan Democratic party at the state’s annual meeting in Detroit indicated it would move its national convention to Colorado, then a decision was made to hold the Democratic National Convention in Washington, D.C.

A two-year team would work on a budget plan and the state’s political and state leaders would have several meetings in Ann Arbor. This is no disgrace and it is unfair to say that I bristled when the pundits said Ford’s lips were twitching. ...it is a dummy So say the political pundits.

The gap between statecraft and stagecraft seems to go on narrowing.

For months we’ve all been told that Gerald Ford was "a poor speaker"—a handicapping disadvantage in the contest against Richard Nixon. Or so we’ve been told. Or so we’ve been led to believe.

As far as I know, the Fordies have never been accused of "poor speaking."...This so-called handicap is a handicap.

As for his "poor appearance," we’ve never heard of poor Ford’s face "always looking fatigued"—or that he “can never look intelligent". ...So far as we know of Ford’s looks, he doesn’t seem to have much of a "nose for politics."...This so-called handicap is a handicap.

When it comes to intelligence, Ford is without peer in the field of statecraft.

There are no limits to Ford’s intellect.

It’s gotten so the two professions almost look to be interchangeable.

What's A Funeral All About?

We believe that a funeral should be a personal celebration of the life of the person who has passed away. It should be a time for friends and family to come together and share memories, express their love and support, and help the bereaved to grieve. A funeral should be a meaningful and dignified occasion that honors the deceased.

A funeral is not just a gathering of people to mourn, but also an opportunity to reflect on the person's life, their contributions, and their legacy. It should be a time to remember and celebrate the person's life, not just to grieve. The funeral should be a reflection of the person's wishes and values, and should be tailored to meet the needs of the family and friends.

What is a funeral for one person might not be the same for another. Some people might want a traditional service with music and readings, while others might prefer a more casual and personal gathering. It's important to respect the wishes of the deceased and the family, and to ensure that the funeral is a meaningful and memorable event for everyone involved.

Attend cheerleading clinic

The camp was held at the campus of Northwestern State Fair from August 22 to 29. This week was to be filled with instruction in all aspects of travel and tourism, including agency planning and marketing. The camp was designed to provide hands-on experience and practical skills in tourism, hospitality, and travel and tourism.

The camp aimed to prepare students for careers in the travel and tourism industry. It was an opportunity for students to gain practical experience and network with professionals in the field. The camp was organized and supported by the American Society of Travel Agents (ASTA) and sponsored by the National Association of Travel Agents (NATA).

The technical aspect of installing gas in your home can be complex. However, the gas stove is very easy to install without major ductwork or other energy-intensive equipment. As a result, there are some 31 million room air conditioners; 70 million refrigerators; freezers; water heaters; dishwashers, etc. When buying the most efficient products, compare with other directly comparable products. This allows you to evaluate new advancements in technology to better serve the needs of your home. Bill Green has been servicing the needs of people of the St Johns area over the past 20 years. The use of the United Club and the Laternal Club has so far been to the point where line tends to be at a level of settled silage will present. Nearly every silo could be faced with silo gas. It is important to keep the door closed between 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. to encourage manufacturers to improve the efficiency of their products. These products appear on the labels.
