Clinton to merge with Ingham for mental health services

The Clinton County Board of Supervisors voted Monday to merge with the Ingham Mental Health Board for the foreseeable future. A vote of county commissioners was not required, as the merger will be handled on an intergovernmental basis as required by the Mental Health Department.

The action will be taken in the hopes that Ingham County will take over the Clinton County portion of the state's mental health service. The Ingham board will then have a chance to expand its services in the future. The Ingham County board has been working on the project for several years and has had several meetings with the Clinton County board.

The merger is expected to result in significant savings for both counties. Ingham County will benefit from the increased funding that comes with being part of a larger organization, while Clinton County will benefit from the expertise and experience of the Ingham County board.

How's your calcium supply and intake?

By JOSEPH Eigen

The world's health (or relative health) is based on adequate and good diet supplies of calcium as well as other nutrients. In America, the land of abundance, we often take for granted the food supplies that have been provided for us.

The importance of calcium cannot be overstated, for it is a vital nutrient that is essential for the proper functioning of the body. A deficiency in calcium can lead to serious health problems, including osteoporosis and weakened bones.

The average daily intake of calcium for adults in America is about 1000 mg, but it is recommended that adults aim for at least 1000 mg of calcium per day. This can be achieved through a variety of calcium-rich foods, including dairy products, leafy green vegetables, and fortified foods.

It is crucial to monitor one's calcium intake and make necessary adjustments to ensure adequate nutrition. The benefits of calcium are numerous, and neglecting this essential nutrient can have serious consequences.

DeWitt breaks 36-game winless streak

Panthers score safety in final seconds, win 8-6

by Jim Strobridge, Special

DeWITT—DAVID Pawkowski and their teammates were very conscious of the history that lay before them Saturday as they faced the Globe. The Defenders had dropped a 36-game winless streak and Pawkowski, a senior, was not about to let his team be defeated by the same team that had beaten his in last year's sectional sem finals.

The Panthers were out to make another statement on the football field. Their first time to wear a DeWitt uniform was in 1930.

They had decided to take the title in their first chance at meeting the defenders.

A written test is required to enter the competition, and the winning individuals are to receive a plaque and a check.

Clinton County a 30-name loser in traffic in 1968?

CLINTON COUNTY NEWS, St. Johns, Michigan

Australia, Canadian visit area

The Associated Countrywomen of the World recently held their annual international meeting in Sydney, Australia, and travel plans included a Sunday tour to the city of Laingsburg. Mrs. Alice Beta of Holt was one of those who went to Laingsburg to entertain two visitors from Australia, Mr. and Mrs. Kemp and sons.

Mr. and Mrs. Kemp and sons were hosted by Mrs. Clara Hughes in her home in Laingsburg. They were entertained for dinner, showing their own customs and providing rustic drinks typical of Australia. They also raised sheep on a station in the north central part of Canada, but there were no apple trees there. Mrs. Hughes had never seen an apple tree but had seen Michigan apples in a store.

The Kemps gave their guests a tour of the accident in which David King, 22, of rural Bath was killed in a two-car crash in 1968. Mr. and Mrs. King live north of St. Johns. Driven by Paul Beal, 20, of Bath, the car was struck head-on at the intersection of US-27 and French Road.

State police officials talk over the accident in front of the car driven by Franklin Young, 22, of rural St. Johns, involved in the fatal accident north of the city last week.

The United States Department of Agriculture under the agricultural conservation program, now makes the Soil Erosion Map available to the public.

The map, which is printed in color, shows the soil erosion danger level on a county basis. Each county is divided into four classes: (1) no danger, (2) minor, (3) moderate, and (4) great. The map also indicates the methods of soil conservation that can be used to control erosion.

The Soil Erosion Map is available from the local Soil Conservation District office, or from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C.

The Soil Erosion Map is a valuable tool for anyone interested in protecting the soil and improving the quality of the environment. It is especially useful for farmers, landowners, and anyone involved in land use planning.

Sampling initial step to efficiency

By G. G. McQueen

Reactor Agricultural agent

Sewage sampling is just one step in the overall sampling plan for sewage treatment plants. It is a very basic step in the total operation of a sewage plant. Each and every sample that is taken at any sewage treatment plant must be properly taken. There are strict specification rates of the group which must be followed. Over the past several years, annual and total samples in Clinton County have averaged about 2,600 per year.

Steel erosion structures installed

By Harry N. Reynolds

Steel erosion structures have been successfully installed on many farms in Michigan. The structures are designed to control erosion and prevent soil loss. They are particularly effective in areas with high water tables or slope gradients.

In photo at left, Thornton raises excellent steers on the Raymond Thornton farm. After two years, the steers are on the market, and Thornton is ready to assist you in becoming a Pool member.

New steel erosion control structures have been installed on the farms of several members of the Michigan Dairy Herd Improvement Association. These members include Holstein-Friesian Association member E.S. Duane and Velma Martin, who have installed the structures on their farms.

The structures consist of steel frames that are buried in the soil and then covered with soil. They are designed to slow the flow of water and reduce the velocity of runoff, thereby preventing erosion.

Cows earn new ‘E’ recognition

In Michigan, dairy cows are now earning an ‘E’ (excellent) designation for body type. The designation is given to cows that meet certain criteria for conformation and body condition. Holstein-Friesian Association members are eligible for the designation based on their previous performance.

The ‘E’ designation can improve a cow’s marketing value and help her produce more beef. It is awarded to cows that consistently produce high-quality milk and meet other specific requirements.

In the photo at left, Thornton assists contractor Walter A. McReynolds with the installation of steel erosion control structures. The Structures are expected to help control erosion and prevent soil loss in the area.

Feeder cattle sale dates set

Good for unstable conditions

The agricultural and industrial conservation committee in the area has set up a system for the sale of feeder cattle. The committee plans to hold sales at least twice per year. The sales will include both beef and dairy cattle, providing a market for farmers who want to sell their animals.

On the basis of their previous performances, Lida 5389885 and Sylvia Rocket have been designated as ‘E’ cows. Wheat is good dairy feed

The team-lime and fertilizer

Wheat can be a valuable feed for dairy animals. It contains high levels of protein and energy, making it a good source of nutrition for dairy cows. In some cases, wheat can be a more economical feed source than other grains.

Wheat is also a good source of water and is easily digestible. It can be included in dairy rations at varying levels, depending on the needs of the specific herd. Proper mixing and feeding practices are important for maximizing the benefits of wheat as a dairy feed.

JIM has a college degree in agriculture—Heinz, a diploma from junior college. And they're back on the land.

Less than five miles from the farm where they'd start their married life in a church. They'd be part of it.

They know the greatness of the nation to which they were born; a greatness rooted in the land and the people.

It's the same land their forebears tilled.

It's got to be the same kind of people.

That's why there's a church less than five miles away... and why they'll be part of it.
If you can't stay in the rain . . .

Michigan fall rains require the purchase of raincoats, hooded jackets and rain pants at school and church socials and on our travels. We will change clothes if we must, but after a while it is not pleasant to have to discard dry clothes for wet ones. Raincoats are an investment that will last many years, while casual pants can be discarded after just one or two washings.

A waterproof garment is usually protected with a water repellent treatment. This may be in the form of an impregnating wash or an impregnating spray. These treatments can be easily removed with soft cloth and warm water after the garment has been washed. Make sure, however, that the garment is dry before applying any water repellent treatment.

The manufacturer's instructions for treating or cleaning the outer garment must be followed carefully. The outer garment should be washed separately from the undergarments.

License plates—many functions, interesting history

What regulations Michigan has to follow, who issues them, how they are used, who collects fees, how they are used to finance highway maintenance, and how they can be obtained, are all subjects of the third in a series of articles about the history of Michigan license plates. We will now look at the history of Michigan license plates.

Primary families of license plates are: (1) classical, including the old metal types which had originally been issued in 1947, and (2) modern, using the "metal types" which were issued in 1959.

In many small communities, these families' names are used as a means of identifying each other. The one in the center is the "3M" package, which is used by modern license plates. The one on the left is the "metal types") package, which is used by classical license plates.

The man in charge of handling, ordering, selling, promoting, and maintaining the license plates is the Secretary of State. This is the year of the big emancipator's birth. On the 150th anniversary of the great emancipator, the Legislature... as a method of increasing fees, is Secretary of State...

In Michigan, the figure is $81.35 annually, more than 3.6-million licenses are issued annually, which are more resistant to the state's severe winters.

License plates are obviously improved over the "metal types" which were issued in 1947. They should be improved over the "metal types" which were issued in 1959. The "metal types" which were issued in 1959 have been more than one.

Some states, including Michigan, have used more than one. In Michigan, the figure is $81.35 annually, more than 3.6-million licenses are issued annually, which are more resistant to the state's severe winters.

Soil resource problems on urban fringes receiving SCD attention

"Soil erosion problems on the fringes of urban development are constantly becoming serious problems," Mrs. Dorothy W. Hill, assistant director of the Clinton County Soil Conservation District and residential development.

The erosion in the urban fringe areas is being caused by the increases in population and increase in construction activities.

"This type of construction is causing serious erosion problems," Mrs. Hill said. "The increase in population and the increase in construction activities have resulted in the soil erosion.

"The solution to this problem is to control the erosion by the construction activities," she said.

Time nonsense

Apparently this summer's experience with daylight-saving time has convinced Michigan farmers that it's a good idea.

They keep referring to "double day-light" time, because the federal act placed most of Michigan in the "Daylighth" time zone. This gives them a too-early start in the day on work such as hay, fruit or grain harvests, which in some cases is far from a "double day-light" time.

And 99.95% of the farmers I have seen three times in the last four years are now thinking of a new plan to make our country a day-lighting country.

The plan is simple: they want to have two "day-light" times, one in the morning and one in the evening.

I'm sure they'd also like to have two "night-light" times, one for the night and one for the day, but the farmers are still working on that part.

Stamp days

This spring the President announced stamp days, as part of his plan to reduce the national debt.

This activity, which operates in many states, allows people to buy U.S. savings stamps on a given day each week. When enough stamps have been accumulated, they may be converted into U.S. savings bonds. Savings stamps—available from local post offices—are sold at prices ranging from $2 to $5, and are also sold at post offices.

Who reads ads?

Who is the reader of newspaper advertising? This is not a new question. Research agencies have found some of the answers.

The reader of newspaper advertising is someone who is interested in buying something. They are interested in the products or services advertised, and are looking for a way to get those products or services. They are also looking for a way to make a decision about whether or not to buy the product or service advertised.

They are interested in the products or services advertised, and are looking for a way to get those products or services. They are also looking for a way to make a decision about whether or not to buy the product or service advertised.

The battle cry of feed 'em

By V. E. DOVER

There are only two things certain: death and taxes. With death, you get the tax, of course. With taxes, you get the death. If you die without paying your taxes, your estate is liable for the amount owed, and the government will collect it from your heirs.

Whether you die or not, you are always liable for the taxes you owe. If you die without paying your taxes, your estate is liable for the amount owed, and the government will collect it from your heirs.
Hidden propositions

The best way to deal with the problem is to change the voting system. Michel Sion, who heads the Michigan State University's Interdisciplinary Center for Political Science, says that the current system is a broken one in need of a major overhaul. "The current system," Sion says, "is a system that is designed to achieve the opposite of its intended purpose. It is designed to make it difficult for the voter to vote."

Sion's solution is to switch to a ranked-choice voting system, where voters rank their choices instead of just choosing one. This system has been successful in other countries and could work in the United States, Sion says.

The system used oversize alpha cards with a blue-green tint and had the voter count and give the machine-voter drop-off. Apol voting by paper ballot, the number of votes cast for each candidate is a well-founded fear.

This picture was taken at the Keyboard Templar Conclave in St. Johns. At this time, many Masons were attending for the first time, and the number of votes cast for each candidate was a well-founded fear.

Ovid OK's sewer contracts

Ovid, MI - Township officials have approved a contract for a new sewer system for the community.

The contract, valued at $412,000, includes a federall government loan of $270,000 and a local grant of $142,000. The remaining $100,000 will be financed through a Farm Home Administration loan.

There were six bidders for the contract, which was awarded to a company in Lansing. The company will begin work on the sewer system next month.

At their meeting last week, township officials discussed the proposed sewer system in detail. They expressed concern about the potential impact on the local environment.

A resolution by the council approved the contract. The resolution was seconded by Snyder and signed by Pettit, Klein, Simon, Halfmann and Jordan.

Motion called, 5 yea, 0 nay. Meeting adjourned.

Carson City Hospital

Dear Friends:

On Sunday, September 22, 1968 we wish to invite you to see the complete facilities of Carson City Hospital. Conducted tours will be held between the hours of 1:00 P.M., and 6:00 P.M. Doctors and Employees of the staff will be on hand.

The conducted tour of the 71 bed acute hospital will include all areas which have been constructed over the past several years; and the new Pediatric Unit which has been occupied since April. Not included in the tour are those areas in the hospital necessarily restricted to hospital personnel.

The Extended Care Facility which occupies the entire South line of the hospital block, and will offer 46 beds will be unoccupied until after the Open House, and will be totally available for inspection during the tour. This unit is especially designed to avoid the institutional look — the rooms are individual carpeted to avoid the institutional look — the rooms are individual, carpeted, equipped with television, telephones and piped oxygen. Throughout the unit are numerous decorated rooms and corridors. The Recreation Room and the Dining Room are both designed with floor to ceiling glass walls of glass to create a free and spacious atmosphere. The full service second floor houses the completely equipped residents' kitchen.

The Pediatric Unit and the Extended Care each have new passenger elevators.

The remodelling of the kitchen dietary and dining room areas has more than doubled the food service area.

We are proud of the complete care facilities we offer to the area, and we invite you to visit us during the Open House.

Sincerely,

Donald McKenna
Administrator
