More study for US-27 proposal

The State Highway Commission has prepared a report outlining its decision so that they're going to close the new U.S. 27
route and the Miller Road connection to it.
A copy of the report has been presented to the Bath Township Board of Trustees.

The Highway Commission has had to make a decision because of its financial data which indicate that it is impossible for the county to keep the road in service without a substantial amount of donation until their new road is completed.

At this time, the county has about $900,000
saved through the Miller Road connection, in the event the county is forced to donate a substantial amount of funds year after year until their new road is completed.

The Highway Commission was to have presented its report at its regular meeting last week, but due to the illness of its chairman, it has been delayed until the next meeting.

The report goes on to state that the commission still has to make a decision as to which road would be most desirable.

The commission is considering various factors such as the need for a new road,
the amount of money that would be required, and the effect on the Bath Township residents.

It is expected that the final decision will be made at the next meeting of the Highway Commission.

In the beginning of the project, it was planned that, when completed, the system would be connected with a sewage treatment plant. This was built by City, 6.J., but is still not completed. The basic construction of the plant was completed by the Bath Twp. Trustees in 1968, but it was announced that the plant was not fully completed and the system is connected with a sewage treatment plant.

Bob's will not be able to bear the cost of the project if it is not completed, and there will be no revenue until the project is completed, said Supervisor. Thomas (Woody) Woodruff, Bath Twp. Trustees.

This date doesn't mean anything," said supervisor. "It's just a date that was put on the calendar to let people know that the project is underway."

Ovid-Elsie teachers address school board with insurance demand

A large delegation of Ovid-Elsie teachers confronted their school board last week with a petition demanding increased insurance benefits. The teachers, who are also members of the Michigan Education Association, are concerned about the cost of health insurance.

"We feel that the fringe benefit is an important part of the total package," said one teacher. "We are not asking for anything extravagant, but we think we should be treated fairly." The teachers said that the current insurance plan is inadequate for the needs of today's teachers.

The school board, which had previously refused to negotiate with the teachers, agreed to discuss the matter further. However, they also emphasized the importance of maintaining a balance between the cost of insurance and the overall budget of the school district.

The teachers are hoping that their concerns will be addressed in the upcoming budget negotiations. They are committed to finding a solution that will benefit both the school district and its employees.

Vows are for Life

Scharf and Thomas can live in the same city, but are in fact quite different. I am a third grade student at Clinton County Grammar School and am eight years old. Thomas is an international professor at a university in Germany. I think his birthdate is very old (22-6-70). We met when we were young and have been married for 50 years. We are both grateful for our longevity and are grateful for the good things that have come our way, even the hard times.

Thoughts through a typewriter

"PHILADELPHIA QUIETLY"—There's nothing much a "driver courtesy," but there's also something to be said for an old-fashioned "courtesy," according to a recent article in the New York Times. The article notes that drivers are often not courteous to one another, even though they are expected to be. The next time you're driving, try to be courteous to other drivers. It only takes a little effort, and it can make a big difference.

Ford's refusal to lift grain moratorium disappoints farmers

Ford rejected a proposal by the United States to lift the grain moratorium, which has been in place since 1973. The proposal was made in response to a request from the Soviet Union, which has been experiencing a severe drought. However, Ford stated that the lifting of the moratorium would undermine the efforts of American farmers, who have been struggling to meet the demands of a growing population. The decision has been met with mixed reactions, with some farmers applauding the president's decision and others expressing concern about the impact on their livelihoods.

Report from the Senate

The Senate also discussed a number of other issues, including immigration reform and the budget.

LANSING—Phased testing is taking place in Michigan on a popular put-take program designed to protect small game during hunting season. The Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) reported that since last year there has been an additional 1,600 birds in 17 southern Michigan counties participating in the program. The number of birds has increased from 1974 to 1975, and the DNR has been working with local agencies to increase participation. The program is designed to help protect small game and ensure a better hunting season for the future. The DNR encourages hunters to participate in the program and follow the rules to help maintain a healthy population of small game in the state.
