Postal Service
to improve mail service

A nationwide Consumer Service Program, designed to improve mail service and to make it easier for customers to bring problems to the attention of the U.S. Postal Service, is expected to be ready for use by the end of 1976.

According to Keith A. Mishler, regional director of postal operations for the northern Great Lakes states, the program will provide customers with a consumer service card, through which their problems will be cataloged and analyzed. The program will be handled at all post offices.

"We want you to come to us with your problems," concluded Mishler. "The whole point of this program is to bring your problems and grievances to our attention at the earliest possible date so corrective action can be taken as early as possible.

"We expect about 7,000 cards a day when Sleepy Hollow is in full swing," notes Mishler. "The cards are arranged in such a way that they can be handled quickly and efficiently.

"A nationwide Consumer Service Program was tested earlier this year in Illinois, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island. Postal Operations in the test offices have indicated that the cards work well and are expected to be a valuable tool for spotting problem areas and trends.

"Management will have tables of baked-goods from the Community Services Association Office by calling 224-6702. The C.S.A. is sponsored by the Community Services Advisory Council. The program was tested earlier this year in Illinois, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island.

"Our experience with the cards has been very encouraging," concludes Mishler. "They are easy to use and help to keep the postal managers informed of the problems that may arise in handling mail service.

Records heartbeat-computer analysis follows in 28 seconds

At Memorial Hospital, the new EKG system will revolutionize the way of the future. Instead of a real-time continuous tracing of the heartbeats, a steady record of the heart is typed out right at the hospital.

Heartbeat is called an electrocardiogram (EKG or ECG).
From studying an EKG record, the heartbeat pattern can be deduced from a graph made of electrical activity of the heart.

An EKG requires complex equipment and maximum cooperation, but is now a simple task. Next time you visit your doctor, a nurse will attach a few wires to your chest, and within 28 seconds a graph will show the pattern of your heart's activities.

Now, 28 seconds after the test,
the test results will be in the hands of a cardiologist who will be able to

The ambiguous wording in the section of the Vietnam Era Veterans Bonus Bill pertaining to relatives of veterans killed or missing in action should be re-worded. As the bill reads now, only those who can be designated as dependents of the deceased veteran are eligible for the bonus the veteran would have received if he were alive.

For those veterans who never married and had no dependents, that means, except for a very loose interpretation of the law, that parents cannot receive their deceased son’s bonus. However, because of the wording of “dependents” in the bill, the Bonus Section advises parents of deceased Vietnam veterans to apply for the bonus on the basis that, at some time, the parent might have become a dependent of the veteran.

This is fine for those who do some investigating— but what about the parent, who reads the bill and, justifiably, feels they are not red tape caused by sloppy wording.

We argue that parents of deceased veterans without dependents should be entitled to the bonus their son would have received if he were alive.

It’s a pretty loose interpretation of the requirement for dependency and one that leads to unnecessary confusion.

We urge that parents of deceased veterans without dependents should be entitled to the bonus their son would have received if he were alive.

We urge the Michigan Legislature to change the wording of the Vietnam Veterans Bonus Law for deceased veterans as soon as possible. Parents of men who lost their lives in Vietnam have gone through enough and now having to put up with bureaucratic red tape caused by sloppy wording.

4-H Chatter

What is your image of 4-H?

by John Bulmer

Images are funny things... Hard to define... but I know when I see one. And I guess I just got mine, as a child, when I was told to hold my breath... to get a clear image. That's my idea of 4-H. It's all there. I'm reminded of the saying: "You can't return to the same river twice." And although nearly every 4-H participant was there during last Saturday's Awakened Open House, some people say the 4-H'ers who were there were "not the same people." We are brought together, growing, a bunch of people, but who we were when we first walked in the door has been lost. But, at the 4-H Fair, it is all there. All the 4-H'ers. From Pillow Peak, Feeder Dairy, Livestock Development, Washington Tech, Plant Science, or any other type of project, each person has a picture of themselves, the memories, the accomplishments, the friends they made. It is the picture I have.

Principles and showmanship in the program is important part of the 4-H program. It teaches the students the skills needed to be successful in future endeavors. It also develops physically, mentally, and socially. And, it teaches them the importance of learning to work with others. The real fun comes from doing things together, the fun is multiplied.

Some students may not have 4-H in their local area. The 4-H program is open to the public. To help more people learn some of the values of 4-H that would be in industry, agriculture, or marketing, career exploration, or just to have fun, the 4-H program often offers a "Fair" atmosphere. Perhaps the reason why the popular belief of playing a "fair" game is so prevalent.

The Vanishing American

Today’s dairy farmer milks cows on the edge of a chasm. Standing on one foot.

In a high wind.

From his precarious vantage point, he sees increasing costs of production necessities as seeds, feed, fuel and fertilizers; and he sees a farm income declining by combination.

About half of the U.S. dairy farmers in business five years ago no longer are.

In Michigan, the nation’s sixth-ranking dairy state, the number of dairy farmers has dropped by about 50 a decade ago to 7,700 last year. The number is expected to be about 50,000 by 1980.

Today’s dairy farmer knows he cannot stand alone. He knows he needs an ally.

For his standard of living, for his safety, for the future of dairy farming, that ally is MMPA, a milk marketing cooperative owned and controlled by those it serves.

MMPA, through a series of legislation, programs, pleads itself for the betterment of its dairy farmer members, MMPA works for a fair return on dairy farmers’ investments and works to maintain stability in the complex arena of dairy marketing.

Some of MMPA’s programs also benefit consumers. The Association encourages high milk production which, combined with sound and positive marketing practices, helps to keep milk prices down.

MMPA, along with other dairy industry leaders, pleads with the public in support of this state’s dairy farming industry—worth preserving.
